"If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders' Fields."

Dedication

In memory of Wisconsin's greatest Heroes, the gallant men who sacrificed their lives on the altar of democracy,—this Badger is most reverently dedicated.

The spirit of these men will carry on. They went forward inspired with the true "On Wisconsin" spirit, and they laid down their lives that the world might be rescued from the throes of autocracy.

The University of Wisconsin will not forget their unselfish sacrifices, and the world will never break faith with the heroic men who gave their lives that others might live in security and happiness.

FOREWORD

The soul of an institution whose sons have gone forth as Wisconsin men have gone is understood only by those who know war-time Wisconsin.

This book is intended as a monument to the part our University has taken in the War—a history of her war-time achievements, and a graphic interpretation of her indomitable spirit.

If the Liberty Badger interprets that spirit accurately and preserves fittingly Wisconsin's proud war-time record, it fulfills the purpose for which it was undertaken, and the class of 1920 takes pride in feeling that its gift to Wisconsin is of historical and permanent value.

In Memoriam

Charles Richard Van Hise

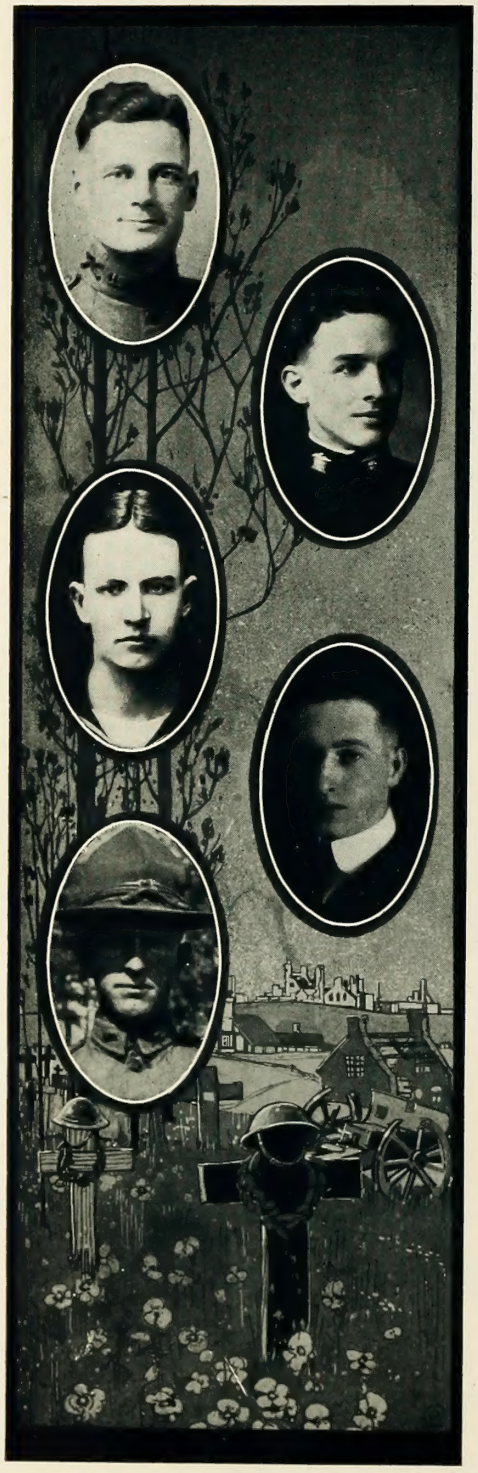

"We rejoice that he has dwelt among us, and that his spirit will continue to mould the life of the University. 'They may rest from their labours; and their works do follow them'"

Died for Democracy

"We will keep
True faith with you who lie asleep.
With each a cross to mark his bed,
And poppies blowing overhead."

—America's Answer.

Morgan MacDonald Anderson, '18 . Milwaukee

Lieutenant, Infantry

Killed in action October 5, 1918, while participating in the American offensive southeast of Chateau Thierry. He was s senior law student at the time of his entrance into the service, and was a member of Sigma Chi and Phi Delta Phi. He entered the university with A.B. degree from Beloit College.

Herbert Laflin Avery, '18 . . Shreveport, La.

Lieutenant, U. S. N. R. F.

Died of Spanish influenza on November 12, 1918, aboard the U. S. S. Hubbard, then enroute to France with American troops. Buried at Arlington National Cemetery in accordance with a wish he expressed shortly before his death. While at the university he was enrolled in the course in electrical engineering. At the close of the second semester of 1917, he enlisted in the Navy, and took his training at Pelham Bay. In three months he was advanced to the rank of ensign, and was later made assistant navigation officer on the supply ship Sudberry. Shortly before his death he was commissioned lieutenant and transferred to the transport service. He was a member of Chi Phi.

Charles Walker Baldwin, '19 . . West Allis

Second Class Seaman, U. S. N. R. F.

Died of heart trouble after swimming hour on August 1, 1918, while in training at the U. S. Naval Auxiliary Reserve School, Municipal Pier, Chicago. The first gold star on the monster service flag at the Pier was placed there in his memory. He enlisted in February, 1918, but was not called into active service until July. While at Wisconsin he took an active part in athletics. He was a member of Sigma Chi.

William Guy Bartlett, '16 . . . New Glarus

Private, Medical Corps

Died of spinal meningitis on January 25, 1918, when stationed at Jefferson Barracks, Missouri. He was a graduate of the Pharmacy Course, and had been in the drug business for a year before his enlistment. Buried at Monroe, Wisconsin, with Masonic rites. While a student, he appeared on several musical programs and was a member of the varsity baseball team.

Guy Black, '17 . . . . . Fort Atkinson

Lieutenant, Infantry

Killed in action while advancing toward enemy lines east of Chateau Thierry, on September 14, 1918. He was a member of Artus, Delta Sigma Rho, and Phi Alpha Delta. He was a leader in forensic work at Wisconsin, was on the staffs of various student publications, and was one of the most prominent men in his class.

"In Flanders' Fields the poppies blow between the crosses, row on row—

Raymond Francis Bloecher, '16 . . Wittenberg

Lieutenant, Infantry

Killed by a bursting shell on July 18, 1918, the first day of the American drive at Soissons. He was a member of a machine gun company and, a few hours before his death, had taken command of the company following the death of the regular commanding officer earlier in the day. While in the university he was a member of the varsity football team.

Fern Bristol, '18 . . . . . Oakfield

Private, Infantry

Died of pneumonia at the Naval Base Hospital, Brest, France, on March 9, 1918. At the end of his junior year in the university, Bristol had enlisted in the Wisconsin National Guard, leaving for Camp Douglas in August. In late autumn, he was transferred to Waco, Texas, where he was in training until February. On February 12, 1918, he sailed from New York as a member of the now famous 32nd Division. He was the second Wisconsin man to die in the service.

John Willam Buckley, '20 . . Grand Rapids

Lieutenant, Aviation Corps

Killed on November 8, 1918, while on a photographic observing mission in an aviation school in central France, where he was acting as an instructor. He was one of the first Wisconsin men to enter the service, having enlisted on May 13, 1917. Previous to his death he had done several months of service flying on the Flanders front. Air conditions on the fatal day were unfavorable, and it was noted that he encountered rough flying while ascending. The plane made a tailspin, and as he attempted to right it, the horizontal stabilizer crumpled. The machine made a two thousand foot nose dive, crushing Lieutenant Buckley and an oberver to death.

Alexander Bradley Burns, '20 Downer's Grove, Ill.

Corporal, Field Artillery

Died in the Chaufontaine Hospital, near Luneville, France, on March 10, 1918, as the result of twenty-four shrapnel wounds received two days earlier while repairing the battery telephone line under bombardment. He had been cited for bravery in American and French dispatches dated March 7. As the results of his efforts on that day, communication between neighboring French and American field artillery was restored after having been broken by enemy action for more than six hours. He was recommended for the Croix de Guerre, and was awarded it after his death, being the first man of his regiment to win a decoration. He was not yet twenty at the time of his death.

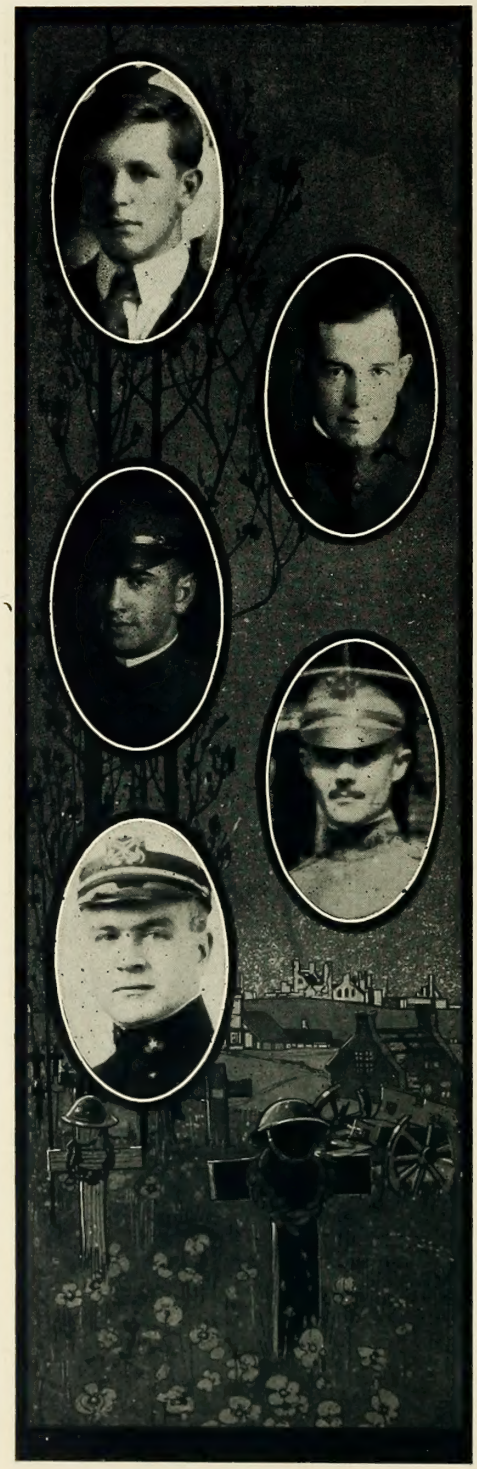

William Batman Cairns, '19 . . . Madison

Sergeant, Infantry

Killed in action July 30, 1918, during the drive of the now historic 32nd Division towards Fismes. As a member of Company G of the 127th Infantry, he had been in the very midst of desperate fighting for two weeks before his death.

—That mark our place; and in the sky the larks, still bravely singing, fly.—

John Gerald Caradine, '20 . . . . Monroe

Corporal, Infantry

Died at an American base hospital on August 12, 1918, as the result of wounds received six days earlier from a bursting high explosive shrapnel shell during the battle of Chateau Thierry. He enlisted in the Wisconsin National Guard in June, 1914, and served on the border for thirty months, after which time he entered the university. He remained in attendance until the declaration of war against Germany, when he was ordered to report for guard duty at Camp Douglas. From there he was transferred to Waco, Texas, where his company became a unit of the 32nd Division. His company left for overseas service in February, but he was held in quarantine at Camp Merritt until April, when he rejoined his company in the Alsace-Lorraine sector. He was wounded just after the capture of Fismes.

George Albert Cary, '15 . . . Richmond, Va.

Lieutenant, Aviation Corps

Died on November 19, 1918, of injuries received in a crash at Kelly Field No. 2, South Antonio, Texas. He entered the Princeton Aviation Ground School on September 12, 1917, remaining there until December 2, when he was transferred to Kelly Field and made instructor in charge of formation flying, and final tester on the Headquarters Flight Board. He acted in this capacity until his death, nearly a year later. He was a member of Phi Kappa Sigma.

Marcus Thomas Casey, '19 . . New Richmond

Lieutenant, Infantry

Died of pneumonia on the Archangel front, September 16, 1918, as his ambition to see active service was about to be realized. Six weeks before the close of his junior year, in the spring of 1918, he entered the officers' training camp at Fort Sheridan. He was later transferred to Camp Custer and immediately after being commissioned was ordered overseas, arriving in England early in August. He left for Russia in three weeks, and had been in that country but five days at the time of his death. He was a brilliant student and a well known athlete. He was elected to Phi Beta Kappa in his junior year, was a member of Artus and Phi Kappa Psi, and was on the university track team.

Lieutenant, Infantry

Killed in action at Fismes, August 6, 1918, during the first great American advance about Chateau Thierry. He was a member of the noted Company G, 127th Infantry, N. G., 32nd Division, which was cited for distinguished service during the initial American offensive. He was among the first of Wisconsin's men to enlist in the service, receiving his commission at the first officers' training camp at Fort Sheridan.

John Mark Connolly, '18 . . . . Milwaukee

[Warrant Machinist, U. S. N. R. F.

Died of pneumonia at the Brooklyn Naval Hospital, December 21, 1918. Graduating as an electrical engineer, he at once enlisted in the Naval Reserve Corps, going to Pelham Bay. From there he was transferred to Stevens Institute, Hoboken, N. J., for further training. He sailed for France in October, and remained with his ship at Bordeaux, returning to the United States on December 3. While in New York he caught a bad cold which developed into pneumonia, and resulted in his death. He had been recommended for promotion to an ensign. While at the university he was an instructor in telegraphy

— Scarce heard amidst the guns below. —

Harry Worthington Craig, '19 . Cleveland, Ohio

Lieutenant, Aviation Corps

Killed near Soissons on October 20, 1918, while making an observation flight over German trenches. He had been in France for several months before his death, and had piloted gunning, bombing, and observation planes. For his bravery at Fismes, where he secured important photographs of enemy-held territory, he was awarded a Croix de Guerre. Ten days before his death, he successfully conducted a bombing expedition, destroying large quantities of German stores. For this he was decorated with the Croix de Guerre with the Palm just before his death. He was a member of Chi Psi.

Marion Charles Cranefield, '18 . . . Madison

Lieutenant, Infantry

Killed on the field of battle on July 30, 1918, at Chateau Thierry, where the famous 32nd Division of Wisconsin and Michigan troops stopped the westward flow of Hun troops and, almost unaided, routed them after more than a week of desperate fighting, turning the tide of victory in favor of the allies. A member of Company G, to which Lieutenant Cranefield was attached, states that although badly wounded in a charge, Lieutenant Cranefield crept along, urging his men forward, until he was struck in the head by a bullet. "He fell with his face towards the enemy."

Paul Monser Currie, '18 . . . Minneapolis

Lieutenant, Aviation Corps

Died in an aerial collison with a second plane at Kelly Field No. 2, South Antonio, Texas, on May 27, 1918, just before completing his flying course. He had not yet been commissioned but, having been recommended to be made a pilot, his commission was sent to his parents upon its arrival. He was buried in Lakewood Cemetery with full military honors. He was a member of Chi Psi.

Frank Aloysins Daley, '12 . . . . Madison

Sergeant, Field Hospital Corps

Died of pneumonia on November 20, 1918, at the now famous Field Hospital 127, which is attached to the 32nd Division. As a non-commissioned officer of the 127th Field Hospital Corps, serving under Major Lorenz of Madison, he was in the thick of the fight at Chateau Thierry and at Fismes, going out upon the battle field to give first aid to the wounded and directing their transportation to the field and base hospitals. During the decisive struggle of the first week of August, he was obliged to remain in No Man's Land for three days and nights, under two fires, unable to return to American lines. He had enlisted in the summer of 1917, and after being trained at Waco, Texas, left for overseas in January, 1918. He graduated from the law school in 1914, and was engaged in the practice of that profession at the time of his enlistment.

Harry Dillon, '14 . . . . . Mondovi

Lieutenant, Infantry

Killed in the battle of Argonne Forest on October 2, 1918, by a shrapnel shell. For three months before his death, he had gone through heavy fighting in the vicinity of Chateau Thierry, among other things, leading his men over the top on four consecutive days and taking all objectives assigned to him. He was cited for conspicuous bravery in the vicinity of Soissons in the operations from July 18–23, 1918, and won the Croix de Guerre and was recommended for promotion as the result of his gallantry in action at Chateau Thierry proper on August 5. He was a graduate from the College of Agriculture.

—We are the dead. Short days ago we lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow.—

Clarence Oliver Docken, '17 . . . Madison

Sergeant, Quartermaster Corps

Died of spinal meningitis in the American military hospital at Liverpool, England, on February 20, 1918. As a member of the 32nd Division, consisting of Wisconsin and Michigan troops, he had been stationed at Camp Douglas and Camp McArthur for several months before embarking from Camp Merritt the middle of February, 1918. He was taken ill the day before arriving in England, and died in the newly established government hospital, to which he had been transferred for better treatment, in less than a day after he had been moved. Buried in grave 64, section 6, Kirkdale Cemetery, Liverpool. While at the university, he acted as assistant to Coach Jones and Director Ehler, and was a member of the First Regimental Band.

Joseph Conway Dodd, '18 . . Louisville, Ky.

Corporal, Engineering Corps

Died as the result of shrapnel wounds received while moving towards enemy lines near Lillars, France, on April 9, 1918. On the night of April 8, with seven others, he went out to the line to make important repairs on the road in preparation for a general advance in the morning. Word of the proposed movement reached German ears, and a heavy barrage was put down on the road in the gray of the dawn. It was necessary for the repair detail to abandon their work and seek safety. It was while creeping towards the nearest shell hole, one in the direction of the Hun-held territory, that he was gassed and received more than a score of wounds. He died while being dragged to the shelter of the shell hole by his companions.

John Andrew Doherty, '17 . . . . Madison

Lieutenant, Infantry

Killed in the battle of Chateau Thierry on July 20, 1918. Enlisting shortly after the outbreak of the war, he was commissioned as first lieutenant in the second Plattsburg camp, and sent overseas immediately, arriving in France early in 1918. After several months in the front line trenches, under constant shell fire, he took active part in the battle of Cantigny, from which he came unscathed. In repelling the German attack at the beginning of the battle of Chateau Thierry a short time later, he was killed by a high explosive shell. While at the university he was well known as an instructor in Physical Education.

Lloyd Thomas Dolan, '21 . . . Rhinelander

Private, Quartermaster Corps

Died of Spanish Influenza at Camp Green, N. C., on October 17, 1918. He had enlisted at the close of his freshman year, and was immediately sent to Camp Green. At the time of his death he was a member of a division which was preparing for overseas service and which sailed ten days after his death.

Trueworthy Orin David Durgin, '18 . Racine

Ensign, Navy Engineer

Died of the Spanish Influenza at the United States Naval Hospital, Great Lakes, Illinois, on October 1, 1918. Enlisting in the Naval Reserve Force at the close of his junior year, he received his training at the Municipal Pier, Chicago, and was there commissioned ensign. He was serving as instructor at the Pier when taken ill.

—Loved and were loved, and now we lie in Flanders' Fields.—

Leland Raymond Duxbury, '15 . . . Hixton

Landsman, Radio Division, U. S. N. R. F.

Died at Camp Perry, Great Lakes, Illinois, on September 28, 1918, of double pneumonia, following an attack of Spanish Influenza. He was landsman for the Chief Electrician of Camp Perry at the time of his death. He graduated from the College of Agriculture in 1915.

Star Sedgewick Eaton, '17 . . . Madison

Captain, Infantry

Killed at Thiacourt, France, between Verdun and Metz, on September 14, 1918, while the Germans were making their last stand in that sector. While a junior he enlisted in the Wisconsin National Guard, and served on the Mexican border during the summer of 1916. In March, 1917, he was commissioned second lieutenant, and served as instructor at various mid-western camps until May, 1918, when he was commissioned captain and ordered overseas with a casualty company. He was married just before sailing. His first action was at Vaux, where he won the Distinguished Service Cross "for extraordinary heroism in action." He had captured a large number of prisoners and much enemy ammunition, and had personally led an attack against a machine gun nest, routing and capturing the gunners. He remained at the front and was in the thick of the decisive battles of the war.

Emery Eatough, '15 . . . . Sturgeon Bay

1st Class Sergeant, Infantry

Died of pneumonia at U. S. Base Hospital No. 7, France, on September 16, 1918, as the result of gas wounds at Chateau Thierry some weeks before. Enlisting in July, 1917, he was trained at Camp Douglas and Camp McArthur, Waco, Texas. As a member of the historic 32nd Division, he sailed from Camp Merritt late in February, 1918, arriving in France the first of March. Held in a military hospital at Brest for two months, following an attack of pneumonia. Rejoined his company on the Alsace-Lorraine front in May. Later he transferred to the Somme region where he took part in the battle of Cantigny, escaping unhurt. During the severe eight-day battle of Chateau Thierry, in early August, he was severely gassed and removed to the Base Hospital, where he died.

Wilmer H. Ecke, '17 Narragansett Pier, R. I.

Private, Field Artillery

Shot by a German sniper as he was helping shell an enemy ammunition train near the Belgian border. He died at his post as he was about to man his gun. Enlisting in the summer of 1917, he was trained at Boxford, Mass., and was sent overseas in October of the same year. He had completed just a year of service when he met his death. At the university he was a prominent member of the Cercle Francais and the Germanistische Gesellschaft, appearing in every dramatic production of the two clubs during the academic year 1916–1917. He was a brilliant student, and was candidate for the Cecil Rhodes scholarship at the time of his enlistment.

Frank Joseph Entrop, '18 . Cleveland, Ohio

Ensign, Radio Corps, U. S. N. R. F.

Died of Spanish Influenza at the Naval Hospital, Chelsea, Mass., on September 30, 1918. Enlisting in spring, he was sent to Harvard University for training as a radio operator. He had been commissioned a week before his death, and was under orders to report at New York for assignment to the transport service. He was a graduate from the Commerce School, and while in the university served on the staff of the Commerce Magazine.

—Take up our quarrel with the foe!—

John Lyman Galvin, '20 . . . Cottage Grove

Corporal, Field Artillery

Killed near Fismes, in the battle of Chateau Thierry, on August 11, 1918, as result of shrapnel wound received while rescuing horses picketed in a patch of woods which was being shelled by the Germans. Their rescue was necessary to keep an entire battery in action. As a member of the liasson detail, he had been called upon to repair broken telephone lines under fire for nearly three weeks before his death and had been cited for valor in several dispatches. He was a member of the 32nd Division, and received his training at Waco, Texas. He lies buried on a hilltop commanding a view of Chateau Thierry, his grave marked with a special cross for bravery.

Edward Grant Garnsey, '19 Grand Haven, Mich.

Lieutenant, Aviation Corps

Killed in action on October 29, 1918, while in pursuit of enemy aerial raiders who had been bombing an American supply depot. The 94th Aero Pursuit Squad of the Third Army, to which Lieutenant Garnsey belonged, had followed the enemy destroyers and was some miles back of the front line enemy trenches when anti-aircraft guns opened fire on them. Garnsey fell to the ground and was crushed to death. Eddie Rickenbacker, America's greatest of all aces, with whom Lieutenant Garnsey was associated, paid a visit to Garnsey's home on his return to this country, and offered his sympathy to the grief-stricken parents. Garnsey was a member of Kappa Sigma and won a football "W" in his sophomore year.

Albert Frank Gilmore, '19 . Elizabeth, N. J.

Lieutenant, Aviation Corps

Died of pneumonia in the American Aviation Hospital near Issodun, France, on October 3, 1918, while on his way from a French aviation training field to the American aviation field at Issodun, where he was to serve as an instructor. Before entering the American service shortly after the outbreak of the war, he served for nine months with the American Red Cross Ambulance Unit of the French army. He was cited in Paris dispatches for good services rendered at Verdun. Buried in the American cemetery at Issodun.

William Hugo Gloger, '17 . . . Watertown

Statistician, Geological Survey

Died at the George Washington University Hospital, Washington, D. C., on October 2, 1918, of pneumonia, which followed an attack of Spanish Influenza. He was employed in the field and office work of the Geological Survey from October, 1917, and was stationed in Colorado, New Mexico, and Washington representing the Bureau of Mines in the western manganese fields.

William Henry Graham, '18 . . Whitewater

Corporal, Infantry

Killed during the American advance at Chateau Thierry on the morning of August 2, 1918. Just before his death, Corporal Graham and his squad of men had been sent back for ammunition. As they were returning, a high explosive shell burst in front of them, killing five and wounding the other three. Of the wounded, only one recovered. Previous to his European service, Corporal Graham had served in the National Guard for five years, and had been on the Mexican border for two years.

—To you, from falling hands, we throw the torch. Be yours to hold it high!—

Thomas Edward Maley Hefferan, '18 Chicago, Ill.

Lieutenant, Infantry

Killed by machine gun fire at Chateau Thierry on August 1, 1918, while leading his platoon in an attack on an enemy machine gun nest. Enlisting in the French service as a Red Cross ambulance driver in February, 1917, Lieutenant Hefferan was one of seven who formed Wisconsin's first contingent. He served in the Verdun sector until October, 1917, when he was discharged from the French service to enter an officers' training camp at Fort Sheridan, Ill. He was commissioned in December, and returned to Europe in January. Before his death, he saw active service in Alsace-Lorraine and Belgium. "Tom" Hefferan was one of the foremost students Wisconsin has ever produced. He was one of the founders of the Wisconsin Literary Magazine, was University Editor of The Daily Cardinal, and was the author of many popular poems. At the time of his death, he was wearing a Wisconsin arm band. Buried at Chaumery, close to the grave of Quentin Roosevelt. He was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon.

Harmon Porter Hook, '20 . . Oak Park, Ill.

Cadet, Aviation Corps

Died at his home while on furlough from March Field, California, on December 15, 1918, of Spanish Influenza. Enlisting in the University of Chicago Ambulance Unit, he was in training at Allentown, Pa., where he became a 1st class sergeant. He remained there until March, 1918, when, at his own request, he was transferred to the aviation service and sent to the Princeton Ground School. In June he was ordered to March Field, Riverside, California, for actual flying training. He was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon.

Leon Beck Hook, '16 . . . . Wauwatosa

Flying Cadet, Naval Aviation Detachment

Died of Spanish Influenza at Seattle, Washington, on October 14, 1918, while in training as a flying cadet in Company 5, Naval Aviation Detachment. Cadet Hook attended the University in 1913 and 1914, later graduating from Harvard in 1916. He was a brilliant student and established an enviable college record while at Wisconsin. He was the author of several articles on historical subjects, the result of research work along original lines.

Harold Herman Holling, '18 . . . Plymouth

Observer, Baloon Aviation Service

Died of pneumonia at Columbus Flying School on April 4, 1918, following the contraction of a severe cold while doing practice observation work in a rainstorm. He had completed his ground school training at Omaha, Nebraska, three months before.

Theodore Robert Hoyer, '12 . Syracuse, N. Y.

Lieutenant, Infantry

Killed by enemy machine gun fire on July 18, 1918, at Chateau Thierry. Was a member of a party of volunteers to carry in the wounded. Hoyer entered the First Officers' Training Camp at Fort Sheridan in 1917. He was commissioned and assigned to the 32nd Division as an infantry instructor and sent to Waco, Texas. He embarked from Camp Merritt, N. J., when the Division left this country in February, 1918, and saw several months of active service on the Alsatian and Belgian fronts before meeting his death. He was the most prominent member in his class, being editor in chief of the Daily Cardinal and The Wisconsin Magazine, a member of White Spades, Iron Cross, Sigma Delta Chi, the Student Conference, the Y. M. C. A. Cabinet, and the Wisconsin Dramatic Society. He was a member of Sigma Chi fraternity.

—If ye break faith with us who die we shall not sleep, though poppies grow in Flanders' Fields.

Eugene Blanchard Jones, '17 . . Wilmette, Ill.

Lieutenant, Aviation Corps

Killed in combat behind the German lines on September 13, 1918, the second day of the St. Mihiel offensive. As a member of Major William Thaw's 103rd Aero Pursuit Squadron, Lafayette Escadrille, he, with three others, had crossed over the Hun lines to bomb a road over which enemy troops were moving to the front. They were attacked by eight "Chasse" planes, and in the struggle, four Huns and Lieutenant Jones were brought down in flames. While at the university, Jones was a student in the College of Agriculture.

Julius Leo Jordan, '18 . . . . . Antigo

Private, Chemical Warfare Service

Died of Spanish Influenza at Cleveland, Ohio, on October 15, 1918. At the time of his death, he was stationed at a government gas mask factory and was acting as inspector.

Asher Esaias Kelly, '17 . . . . Rice Lake

Lieutenant, Aviation Corps

Killed by a direct shot while flying over enemy trenches near Bar Le Duc, France on September 26, 1918. As flight commander he had led many observation tours and bombing raids in the six months preceding his death. He had been recommended for promotion to captain. He was awarded the Distinguished Cross. Entering the mechanical engineering course in the fall of 1913, he enlisted some months before graduation and was granted a diploma in absentia. His training was received at Rantoul, Illinois, and he went overseas as a first lieutenant. He was a member of Pi Tau Sigma and Theta Xi.

Harold Everett Kinne, '18 . . Orofino, Idaho

Lieutenant, Infantry

Killed in action near Soissons on July 19, 1918, the second day of the big American offensive, which marked the turning point of the war. It was while heading off a Hun counter attack towards evening that he was struck in the head by a machine gun bullet. A member of Wisconsin's first contingent which was sent to Fort Sheridan in the spring of 1917, Lieutenant Kinne was commissioned there and was one of five men from the camp sent overseas for immediate service. He was an officer in the first regiment of Americans to occupy front line trenches. He had been in active sectors for six months at the time of his death. As a student, he was one of the leading men of his class, being prominent both as an intercollegiate debater and as an athlete. He received three scholarships while at Wisconsin. He was a member of Kappa Sigma.

Alfred Karl Koss, '20 . . . . . Madison

Private, Infantry

Died of Spanish Influenza at Camp Grant, Illinois, on October 13, 1918. He was working in the Depot Brigade Personell Office as personell clerk and filer at the time he was taken ill.

—Rest ye in peace, ye Flanders dead!—

Edward Mack, '14 . . . . . Kewaunee

Private, Field Hospital Corps

Died of pneumonia at the Base Hospital, Camp Custer, Michigan, on March 4, 1918. He was engaged in army Y. M. C. A. work at the time of his enlistment. In the Field Hospital Corps, he was Chief Recorder at the Base Hospital at Camp Custer. In the evenings, he acted as instructor in French and Public Speaking at various of the Camp Y. M. C. A.'s. He entered the university from Whitewater Normal.

George Gaylord Macnish, '16 . Steven's Point

Lieutenant, Infantry

Died at the American Base Hospital, Chateauroux, France, of cerebal hemorrhage following a bayonet lesson in which he was serving as an instructor. He was pronounced "one of the best bayonet instructors in the army" by his superior officers. Graduating from the engineering course, he was in the employ of the Santa Fe Railroad until the spring of 1917, when he enlisted and was sent to the First Officers' Training Camp at Fort Sheridan, where he was commissioned. He served at Camp Custer, Camp Green, and Camp Mills before he was sent overseas in December, 1917. He attended officers' school for three months before taking up his duties as instructor. He had applied for transfer to the front just before his death.

John Franklin Merrill, '17 Neshanic Station, N. J.

Lieutenant, Aviation Corps

Disappeared in a fight with a "Taube" in central France on the morning of October 4, 1918. While his death has never been officially confirmed, it was reported that his body was found in No Man's Land and buried by a detail of field hospital workers. His name has never appeared on prisoner lists. He was acting as a flight commander in observation work when he disappeared.

John Tendrum Mitchell, '17 . . . Milwaukee

Lieutenant, A. S. S. C.

Killed in a fall from his plane at Toul, France, on May 27, 1918. Enlisting in the Aviation Section of the Signal Corps, he was trained at the Aviation Ground School at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and the American flying school at Paris, where he was commissioned in September. He had charge of the construction of two fields up to the time of his death. Buried in the Sevastopol Cemetery, Toul. As a student, he was very prominent in athletics, and was a member of Chi Psi, White Spades, Star and Arrow, Skull and Crescent, and The Friars.

Roger Emmett Moore, '15 . . . . Madison

Instructor, F. A. O. T. School

Died of pneumonia at Camp Zachary Taylor on October 2, 1918, following an attack of Spanish Influenza. After graduating from the university, he was employed in the mathematics department as instructor.

—The fight that you so bravely led we've taken up.—

Benjamin Harrison Mueller, '11 . . . Alma

Lieutenant, Infantry

Died at an American Field Hospital at Beauvard, France, on July 27, 1918, of wounds received the day before while leading an attack against an enemy machine gun nest. He enlisted on May 4, 1917, and was commissioned at the First Officers' Training Camp at Fort Benjamin Harrison. After being stationed in several American infantry training camps, he was transferred overseas in October, 1917. He had seen five months of front line service and was slated for promotion to a captaincy at the time of his death. Buried in the American cemetery, Bezu le Guery, Aisne, France.

Henry Richard Murphy, '15 . . Beaver Dam

Under call; unassigned

Died of typhoid pneumonia at Trinity Hospital, Milwaukee, on April 3, 1918. He was to have entrained for Camp Stevens, Oregon, on the day of his death.

John Bastian Nelson, '14 . . . Eau Claire

Lieutenant, Infantry

Killed in the battle of Argonne Forest on October 8, 1918, while leading his men against the Kremhilde line. He was commissioned first lieutenant at Fort Sheridan, 1917, and assigned to the 32nd Division, which was being formed at Waco, Texas. After several months spent in training men there, he embarked from Camp Merritt, N. J. Although stationed in the quiet Alsace-Lorraine sector at first, he was later sent north. He had seen four months of constant fighting at Chateau Thierry and along the Belgian front at the time of his death.

George Bernard Noble, '17 . Portland, Oregon

Lieutenant, Infantry

Died of infection following wounds received near the Ourcq River in the American advance northeast of Chateau Thierry on July 28, 1918. Although he had been wounded at the beginning of the action, he refused to be evacuated and remained in command of his platoon until ordered off the field by his superior officer in the late afternoon. He was awarded a Distinguished Service Medal before his death.

Wellborn Saxon Priddy, '17 . . . Chicago

Lieutenant, Infantry

Died of gas poisining near Badonvillier, France, on May 29, 1918. He was one of Wisconsin's first contingent of 150 men which entrained for Fort Sheridan a few days after the outbreak of hostilities. Commissioned there, he was sent to France in September, 1917, for instruction and observation with the first unit of the new army officers to be sent overseas. He had seen six months of front line service before he was gassed. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for "heroically defending an important post near Badonvillier against a large force of the enemy and continuing to perform his duty after having been fatally gassed." He was a member of Chi Psi.

—And we will keep true faith with you who lie asleep.—

Floyd Allen Ramsay, '20 . . . . . Beloit

Sergeant, Infantry

Died of Spanish Influenza near Nevers, France, on August 21, 1918. Enlisted in the Wisconsin National Guard in February, 1914, and served on the Mexican border in 1916. Before the outbreak of the war, he reenlisted and was stationed at Camp Douglas. In the fall of 1917, he was transferred to Waco, Texas, where the 32nd Division was being formed, and after six months of training there, sailed from Camp Merritt, N. J., at the end of January, 1918. He served in the Alsace-Lorraine sector and along the Belgian lines, and had gone through the battle of Chateau Thierry before the time of his death.

Eugene Washburn Roark, Graduate . Madison

Cadet, Aviation Corps

Died of Spanish Influenza on October 18, 1918, while in training in the naval aviation ground school at Minneapolis, where he had enlisted five weeks before. Before his enlistment, he was acting as an instructor in the department of patheology doing research work leading to a doctor's degree.

John Basil Roberts, '18 . . . . . Madison

Lieutenant, Infantry

Died in an American field hospital near Drevegny, France, following wounds received from a high explosive shell which had burst near him the day before. The same shell killed his commanding officer, Capt. Myron C. West, of Madison, with whom he was in conversation. He had served as a private, corporal, and sergeant on the Mexican border in 1916, and reenlisted at the outbreak of hostilities in the spring of 1917. He was in training at Camp Douglas, and was later transferred to Waco, Texas, where he was assigned to the 32nd Division, then being formed. He embarked from Camp Merritt in February, 1918, and had served in the Alsace-Lorraine sector, along the Belgian border, and had gone through the early part of the battle of Chateau Thierry at the time of his death.

Donald Sage McCormack, '19 . . . . Delavan

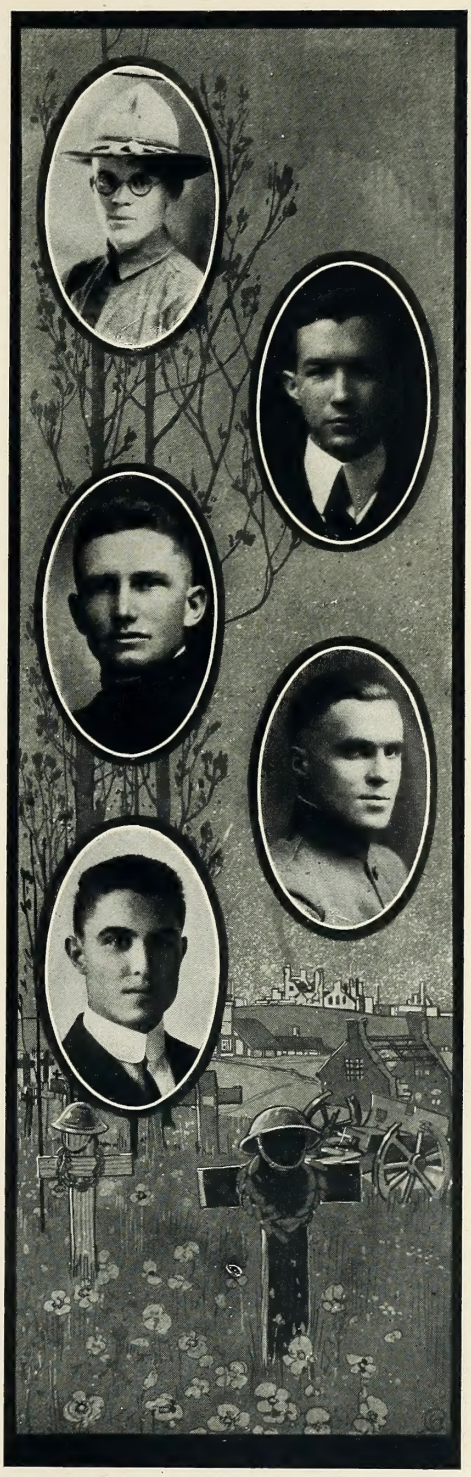

Lieutenant, Aviation Corps

Killed at Issoudon, France, on August 11, 1918, while flying alone over the field where he was being trained. His plane was at an altitude of 3,000 feet when it fell to earth, crushing him to death. He was to have been transferred to the front for observation work in another ten days.

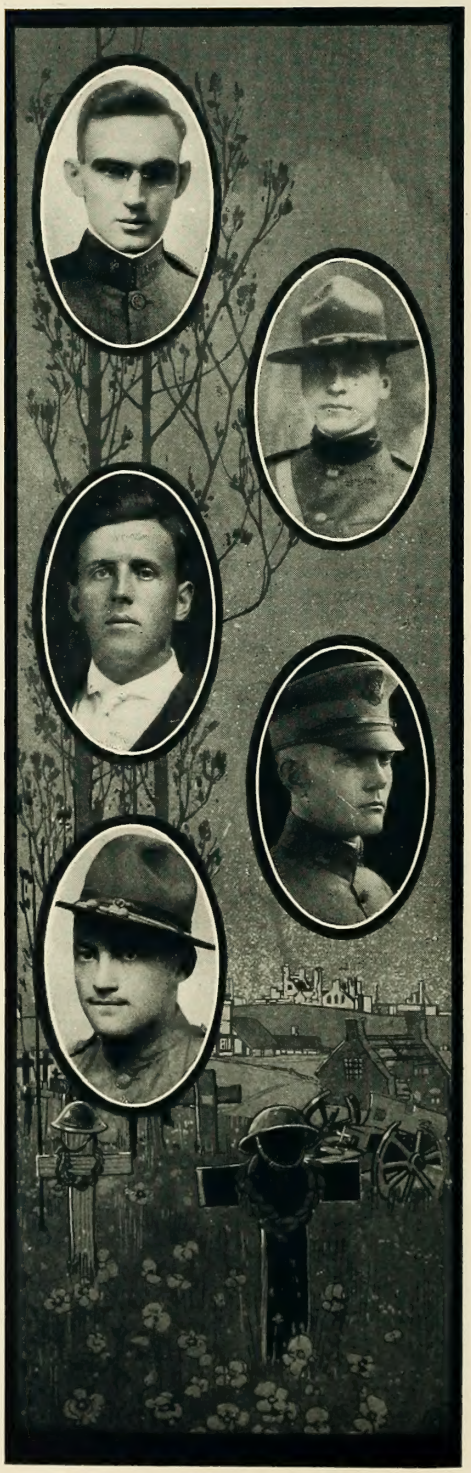

Carl Searle, '15 . . . . . Topeka, Kansas

Private, Medical Reserve Corps

Died in the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, Maryland, on October 9, 1918, of Spanish Influenza. At the time of his death, he was a student in the Johns Hopkins Medical School and, as an enlisted member of the Medical Reserve Corps, expected to be called for immediate service at any time. During the summer of 1918, he was engaged in experimental work on war gases at the American University, Washington.

— With each a cross to mark his bed, and poppies blowing overhead,—

Earl Eugene Smith, '17 . . . . . Oshkosh

Sergeant, Infantry

Died of pneumonia following an attack of Spanish Influenza on October 12, 1918, while attending an officers' training camp at Camp Zachary Taylor, Kentucky. He had enlisted early in 1918 in the aviation section of the army and was stationed at Camp McArthur, and Camp Taliaferro, Texas. After passing his ground school tests, he was transferred to Camp Taylor. He had been there but three days when taken ill.

Willis Daniel Storer, '16 . . . Chicago, Ill.

Lieutenant, Field Artillery

Killed in the battle of Argonne Forest, October 2, 1918. He had been commissioned at Camp Zachary Taylor, Kentucky, and was immediately sent overseas as an "honor man." He received further training at Fontambleau, where he once more completed his work with "honor" grades. He had seen four months of front line fighting before the battle of the Argonne. When word of his death was received, it was learned that he had been engaged to Miss Ethel Grace Garbutt of Milwaukee, whom he had met while both were students here. Their engagement was to have been announced after his return. He was a member of the Zeta Psi fraternity, and an alumnus of Culver Military Academy.

Earl Allison Thomas, '17 . Williamsburg, Va.

Private, Quartermaster Corps

Killed on the Belgian border while moving towards the front with a truckload of provisions over a road which was being bombed by Hun destroyer planes. The bomb which caused his death hit the road ten feet in front of the truck and blew the machine to pieces, killing all the occupants.

Carl Titus Thompson, '13 . . . . Curtiss

Lieutenant, Infantry

Killed by machine gun fire in the region east of Chateau Thierry on August 31, 1918, while leading an advance against a series of machine gun pits. Five days before, just at the close of the severe fighting at Chateau Thierry proper, he had been wounded in nine places by a shrapnel shell, but was able to continue in the advance which drove the Huns eastward.

Hyman Tishler, '21 . . . . . Milwaukee

1st Class Private, Engineers

Died on September 6, 1918, during the St. Mihiel offensive, of wounds received while repairing a bridge which had been destroyed by Hun bombers earlier in the day.

—Where once his own life blood ran red;—

Karl Wagner, '21 . . . . . Madison

Private, Engineers

Died of pneumonia at Brest, France, on April 18, 1918. Enlisting in February, he was assigned to the 20th Forestry Engineers and received six weeks of intensive training at Washington, after which he left for overseas from Camp Merritt. While on board ship he contracted a bad cold, which developed into pneumonia shortly after arriving at Brest. He died in the American Base Hospital at Brest five days after reaching France.

William Wallrich, '17 . . . . . Shawano

Lieutenant, Infantry

Killed in action July 23, 1918, near Jaulgonne while participating in the allied offensive at Chateau Thierry which started on July 18. He was a member of Wisconsin's famous first contingent to Fort Sheridan, and was commissioned there. He received his university diploma while in camp. Arriving in France in the spring of 1918, he was made regimental gas officer and had been in charge of several gas attacks before his death.

Lyman Case Ward, '16 . . St. Louis, Mo.

Major, Infantry

Killed while routing an enemy machine gun nest in the Verdun sector on the morning of November 9, 1917. He enlisted immediately after the declaration of war and was sent to the First Officers' Training Camp at Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia, where he was commissioned captain. He sailed for France the latter part of July, and was a member of the first unit of American men to be placed in front line trenches. On October 30 he was made a major. One week later he was fatally wounded. His grave at Haudroment bears the inscription: "Killed while gallantly leading his batallion in action."

Donald William White, '18 . . . Manitowoc

Lieutenant, Infantry

Killed in action on November 1, 1918, while repelling an enemy attack northeast of Chateau Thierry. Killed by machine gun fire while leading his platoon in a charge on an enemy machine gun nest. Was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for extraordinary heroism under fire. He was a member of Alpha Sigma Phi.

Franklin Charles Williams, '17 . . Milwaukee

Sergeant, Field Artillery

Died of pneumonia in the Mossley Hill Red Cross Hospital, Liverpool, England, on April 3, 1918. As a member of the 32nd Division, he had been trained at Waco, Texas, until early in the new year, when he was transferred to Camp Merritt, New Jersey, for embarkation. Leaving near the end of March, he was taken ill on the transport just before England was reached. He was a first sergeant, and had been recommended for admission to the officers' training camp at Gaumure, France. He was a member of Chi Psi.

—So let your rest be sweet and deep in Flanders' Fields.—

Elmer William Witthuhn, '17 . . . Appleton

Private, Infantry

Died of pneumonia following an attack of Spanish Influenza while stationed at Fort Oglethorpe. At the time of his death, he was in an overseas company and would have left for a point of embarkation early in the month had the epidemic which was sweeping the country not halted the movement of all troops.

Gustave De Neveu Wright, '17 . Fond du Lac

Lieutenant, Infantry

Killed by an explosive shell in the settlement of Vaux Pretre, near Premont, France, on October 8, 1918, while repelling Hun attacks. He had seen many months of service opposite the Hindenburg Line, and had been recommended for promotion as the result of his distinguished conduct. The 30th Division, of which he was a member, won for itself the name "Wild Cat Division."

Alexander Frank Zache, '16 . . . Milwaukee

Radio Branch, Marine Service

Died of pneumonia at the U. S. Marine Hospital, Philadelphia, on December 4, 1918. He enlisted in the radio service at Great Lakes in January, 1918, and in June was sent to the Harvard Radio School to complete his course. Ten days before his death he was assigned to the U. S. S. Minnesota with the rank of Petty Officer, Electrician Radio, Second Class. After completing the journalism course at the university, he joined the staff of the Milwaukee Journal, and was state editor of that paper at the time of his death.

Albert H. Ostrander, '21 . . . . Columbus

Private, Infantry

Died July 19, 1918, of wounds received in the fighting around Chateau Thierry the day before. He was wounded by an enemy barrage set up preceding a noon Hun attack which was not repulsed until evening.

Frank Austin Sturtevant, '15 . Oak Park, Ill.

Lieutenant, Infantry

Killed in action on October 9, 1918, while leading an attack against enemy lines northeast of Chateau Thierry. He entered the First Officers' Training Camp at Fort Sheridan in May, 1917, and was commissioned in August. He was transferred to Camp Custer, Michigan, where he served as drill instructor until July, 1918, when he was sent overseas as a member of the 85th Division. In September he was transferred to the 32nd Division and was made Battalion Scout Officer. He was a member of Alpha Delta Phi.

—Fear not that you have died for naught, the torch ye threw to us we caught;—

Carl Berger, '17 . . . . . Mayville

Lieutenant, Infantry

Killed in the Durna sector, three hundred miles from Archangel, Russia, while defending a food supply station against an attack by Bolshevik forces. His body was removed to American Headquarters at Archangel, and buried there. The funeral was arranged by Lieut. Alfred Kliefoth, a former University of Wisconsin man, connected with the American embassy.

James Blaine Lampert, '10 . . . Oshkosh

Lieutenant Colonel, Engineers

Died of pneumonia at Toul, France, on January 6, 1919, after serving with the American forces in France for seventeen months. He went abroad with the first regiment of engineers in August, 1917, and had charge of the construction of military roads, railroads, and bridges in the war area during most of that time. At the time of his death he was serving on the staff of General Deakyne, chief engineer of the Second Army.

Stephenson Lewis, '17 . . . Cleveland, Ohio

Lieutenant, Field Artillery

Killed by a bursting shell thirty miles northwest of Verdun on October 31, 1918. Graduating in February, 1917, he at once enlisted in the American Ambulance Field service with the French army, and sailed the next month. He served at Verdun for six months, and was cited in dispatches for bravery. He attended an American officers' training camp at Samur and, after being commissioned there, took part in the heavy fighting at St. Mihiel and in the Argonne district. Buried in the American Battle-Area Cemetery, Commune Romagne-sous-Montfaucon, Meuse. While on a short vacation trip to Switzerland, he climbed Mt. Blanc alone without a guide, a feat never before accomplished. He was a member of Alpha Delta Phi.

Ronald Henry Mahre, '16 . . . . Amery

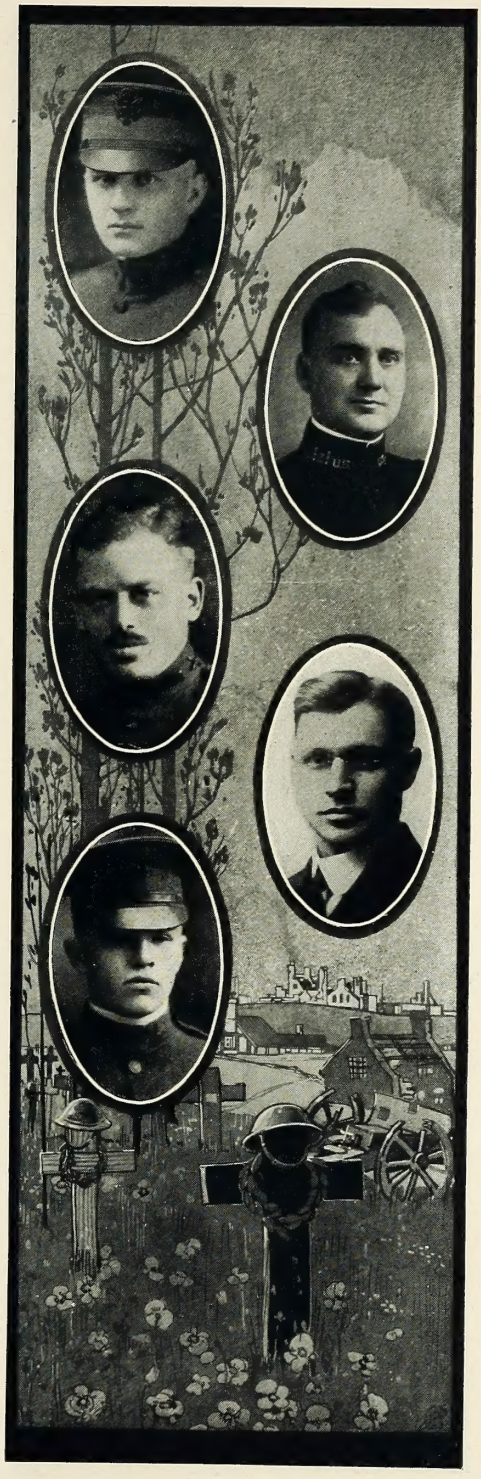

Private, Medical Corps of the Navy

Died at the Great Lakes Training Station on September 21, 1918, of influenza. He enlisted in the Navy ,May 1918, and served as apprentice in the Central Hospital. He was ready to take his examination for overseas service at the time of his death.

Kenneth L. McHugh, '20 . . . Milwaukee

Corporal, Field Artillery

Killed by a bursting shell at Mount Falcon, France, thirteen miles from Verdun, on October 25, 1918. Corporal McHugh arrived in the war zone in May, 1918, and fought in the battles of St. Mihiel and Chateau Thierry. He had been at Verdun, throwing gas bombs beyond enemy lines, for about a month before his death. Buried in the American cemetery at Verdun.

—Ten million hands will hold it high, and Freedom's light shall never die!—

John Gordon Mitchell, '20 . . . Milwaukee

Lieutenant, Infantry

Died of influenza at Red Cross Hospital No. 3, Paris, on January 4, 1919. He had been on a vacation in Nice following six months of front line service, and caught a bad cold on his return journey. He was commissioned at Fort Sheridan in the spring of 1918. While at the university he was a law student and a varsity football, basketball, and track man. He was a member of Beta Theta Pi.

Helene Parkinson Peck, '13 . . . Darlington

1st Class Yeoman, U. S. N. R. F.

Died of pneumonia at Washington, D. C., on November 13, 1918, following an attack of influenza. At the outbreak of the war she was engaged in teaching French and German in a South Dakota high school, but in response to the government's urgent call for women war workers, she fitted herself for civil service work and enlisted in the Naval Reserve Force. She was assigned to the central office of the Bureau of Navigation, where she acted as senior clerk. She was a member of Kappa Alpha Theta.

Charles Henry Ulmer, '20 . . Pottsville, Pa.

Lieutenant, Marines

Died of wounds received in the battle of Bellau Wood, after almost a year of service overseas. He was cited in several dispatches for bravery in the fighting about Verdun, where he was under continual fire for four months. The date of his death and the nature of his injuries have not been ascertained. A casualty report published in the fall of 1918 simply stated that he "died of wounds received in action; previously reported wounded."

John Crowell Van Riper, Jr., '13 So. Bend, Ind.

Lieutenant, Chemical Warfare Service

Died of bronchial pneumonia at Tours, France, on December 16, 1918. Enlisted in July, 1918, was commissioned in six weeks, and sailed for France in September. After training at Chaumont, he was transferred to the 88th Division as assistant divisional gas officer. He was a graduate of the agricultural course and was one of the most prominent men in the university at his time. He was captain of the varsity basketball and half-back of the football team in 1913.

Hilbert Charles Wallber, '08 . . Milwaukee

Lieutenant, Field Artillery

Killed in action near Fismes, France, on August 19, 1918. He enlisted in the Wisconsin National Guard in 1912, reenlisted in 1915, and served on the Mexican border for three months in 1916. In May, 1917, when the National Guard was called out for the "Great Adventure," he was commissioned first lieutenant at Camp Douglas. In September he was transferred to Waco, Texas, where the 32nd Division was being formed, remaining there until ordered overseas in March, 1918. In the battle of Chateau Thierry he was struck by a shell fragment and died instantly. He was buried in Courville.

Spirit of Sacrifice

By Lucile Selk '20

"Greater love hath no man than this: that a man lay down his life for his friends."

Home Again!

I'm back, boys, back from the muddy, shell-torn fields of France to the smooth green slope of the Big Hill, the best place in the world to be, our Alma Mater, twice as beautiful and glorious after we have been away, fighting for her, dreaming of her, and oh, old pals,—longing for her —

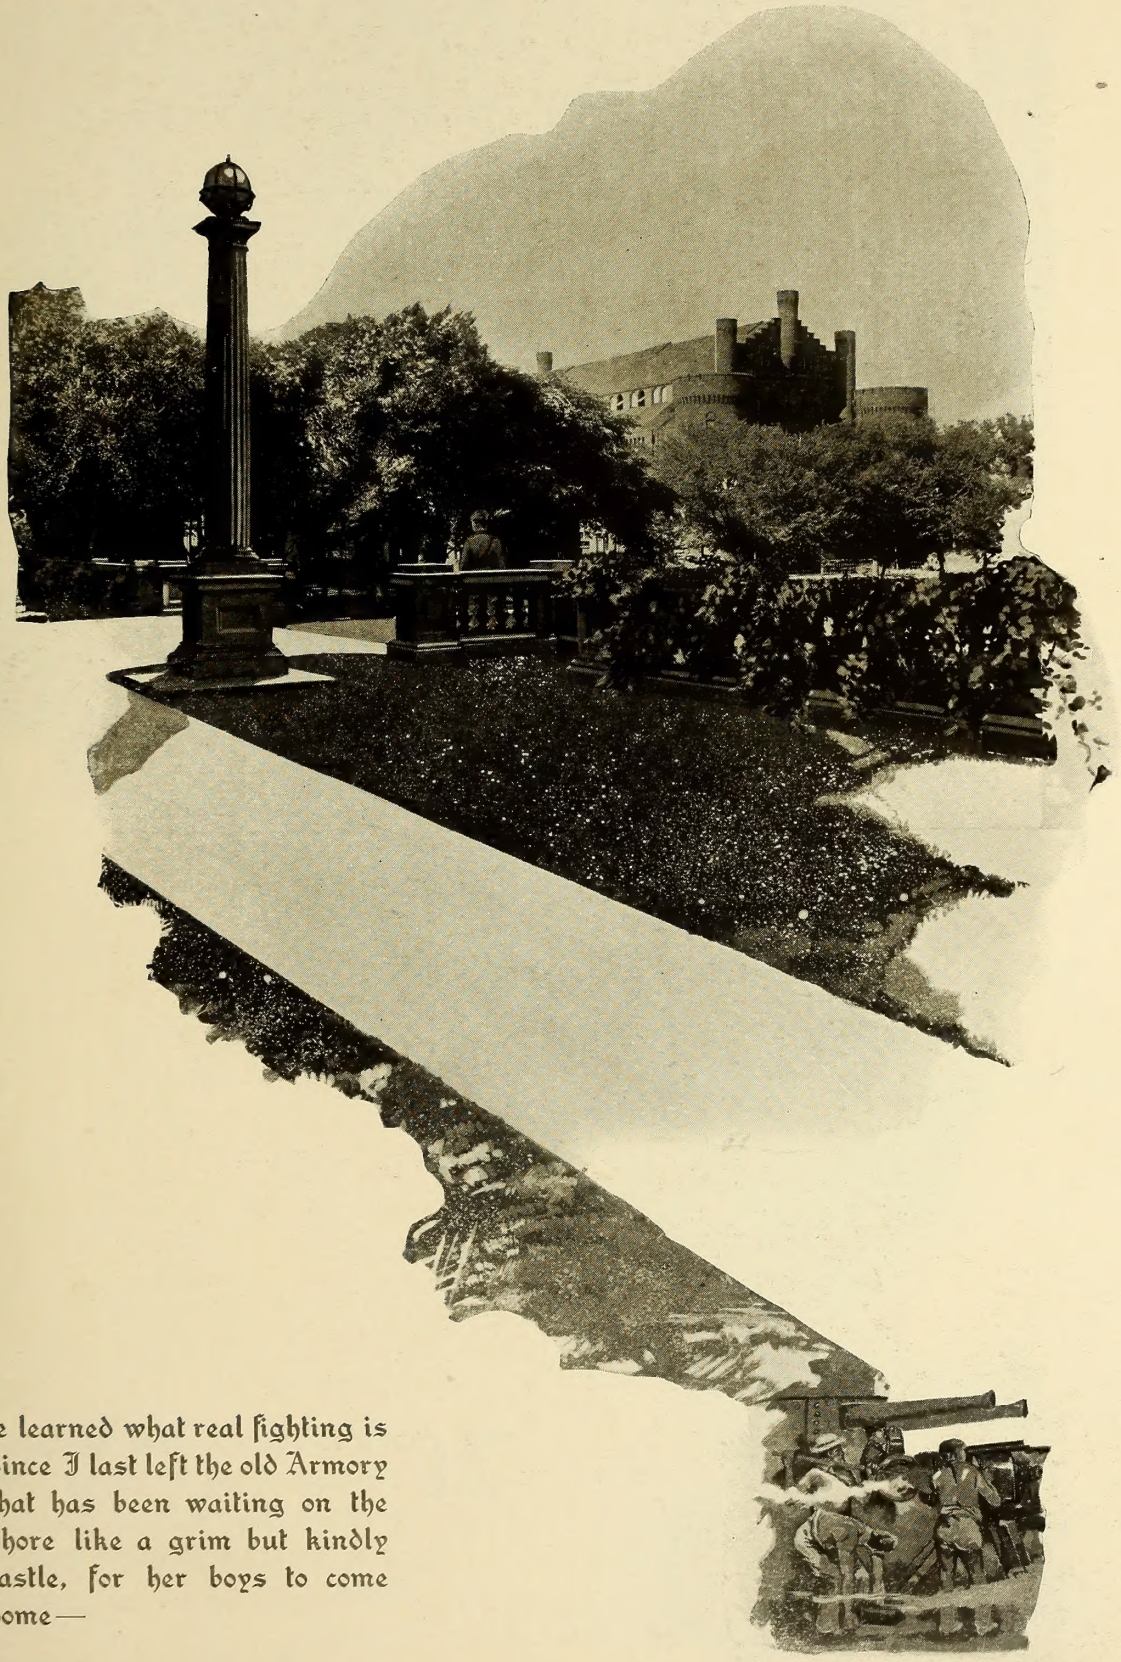

It's great to stand again in the familiar doorway and look with Old Abe down the tree-bordered vista of green—

Oh, it's over the top every time for a Wisconsin man whether he is charging into an enemy's trench or up the winding road of the hill of learning—

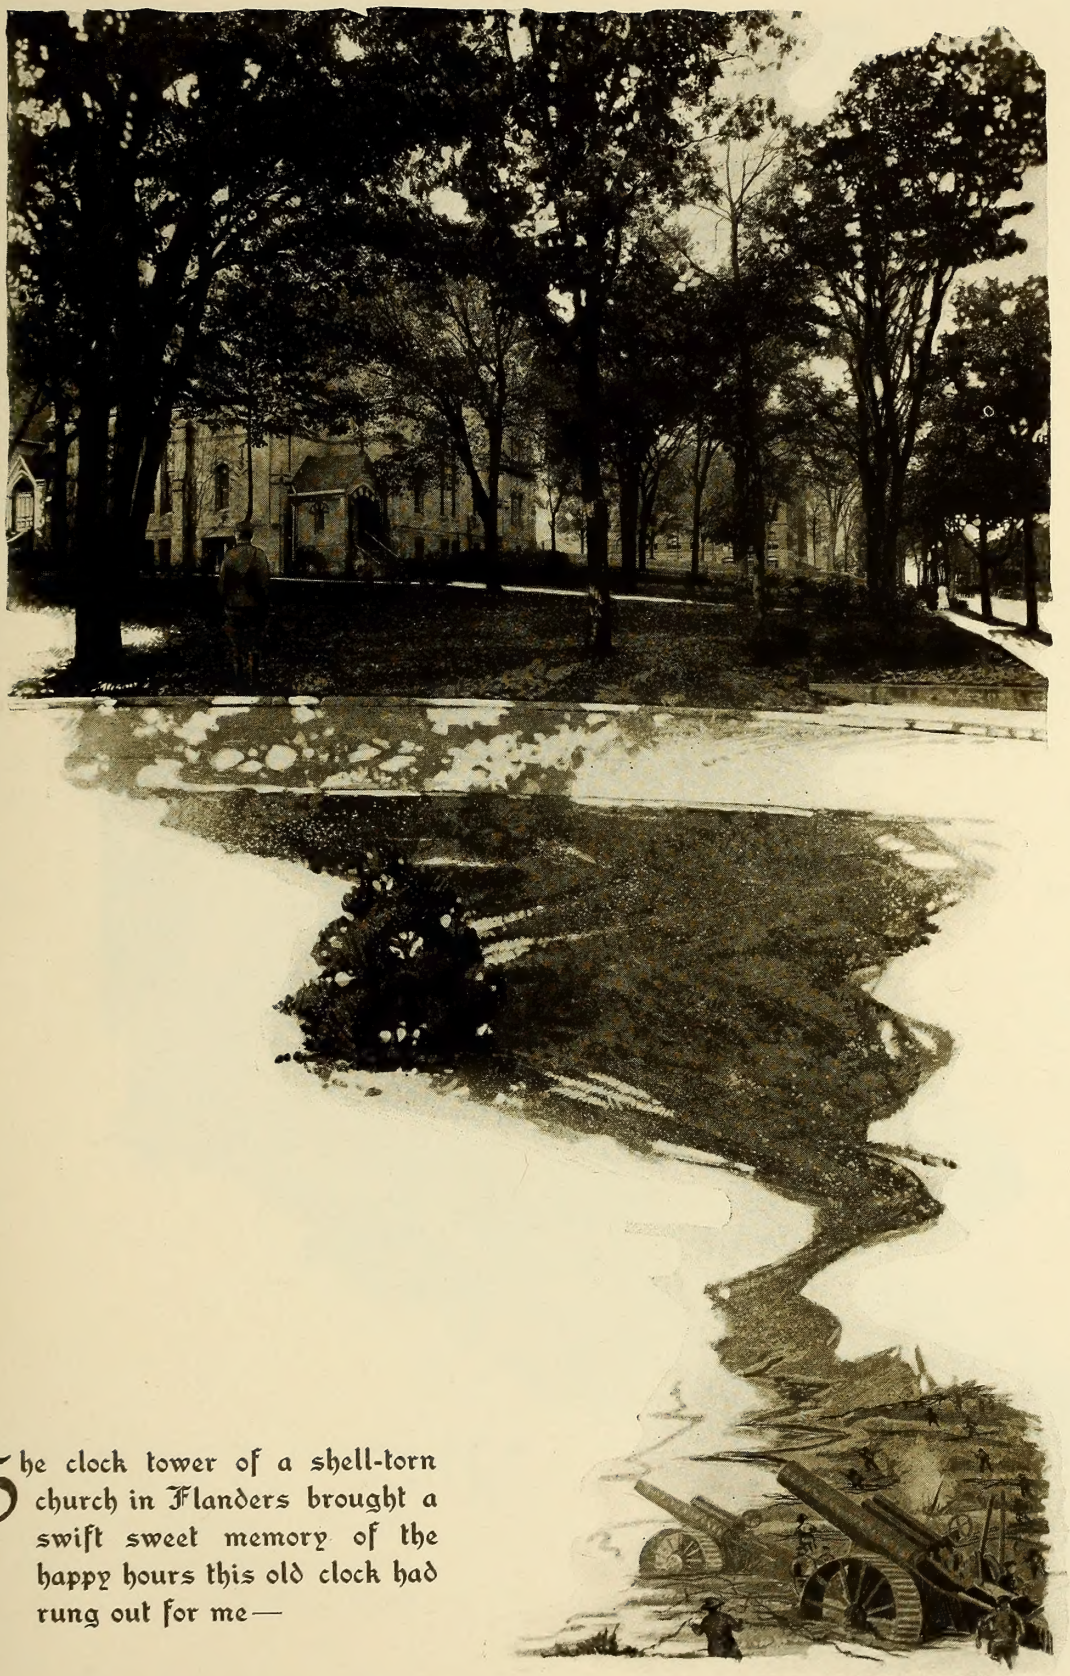

Ah! A stroll past Lathrop, and I hear as of old the shrill shouts of the girls at play—

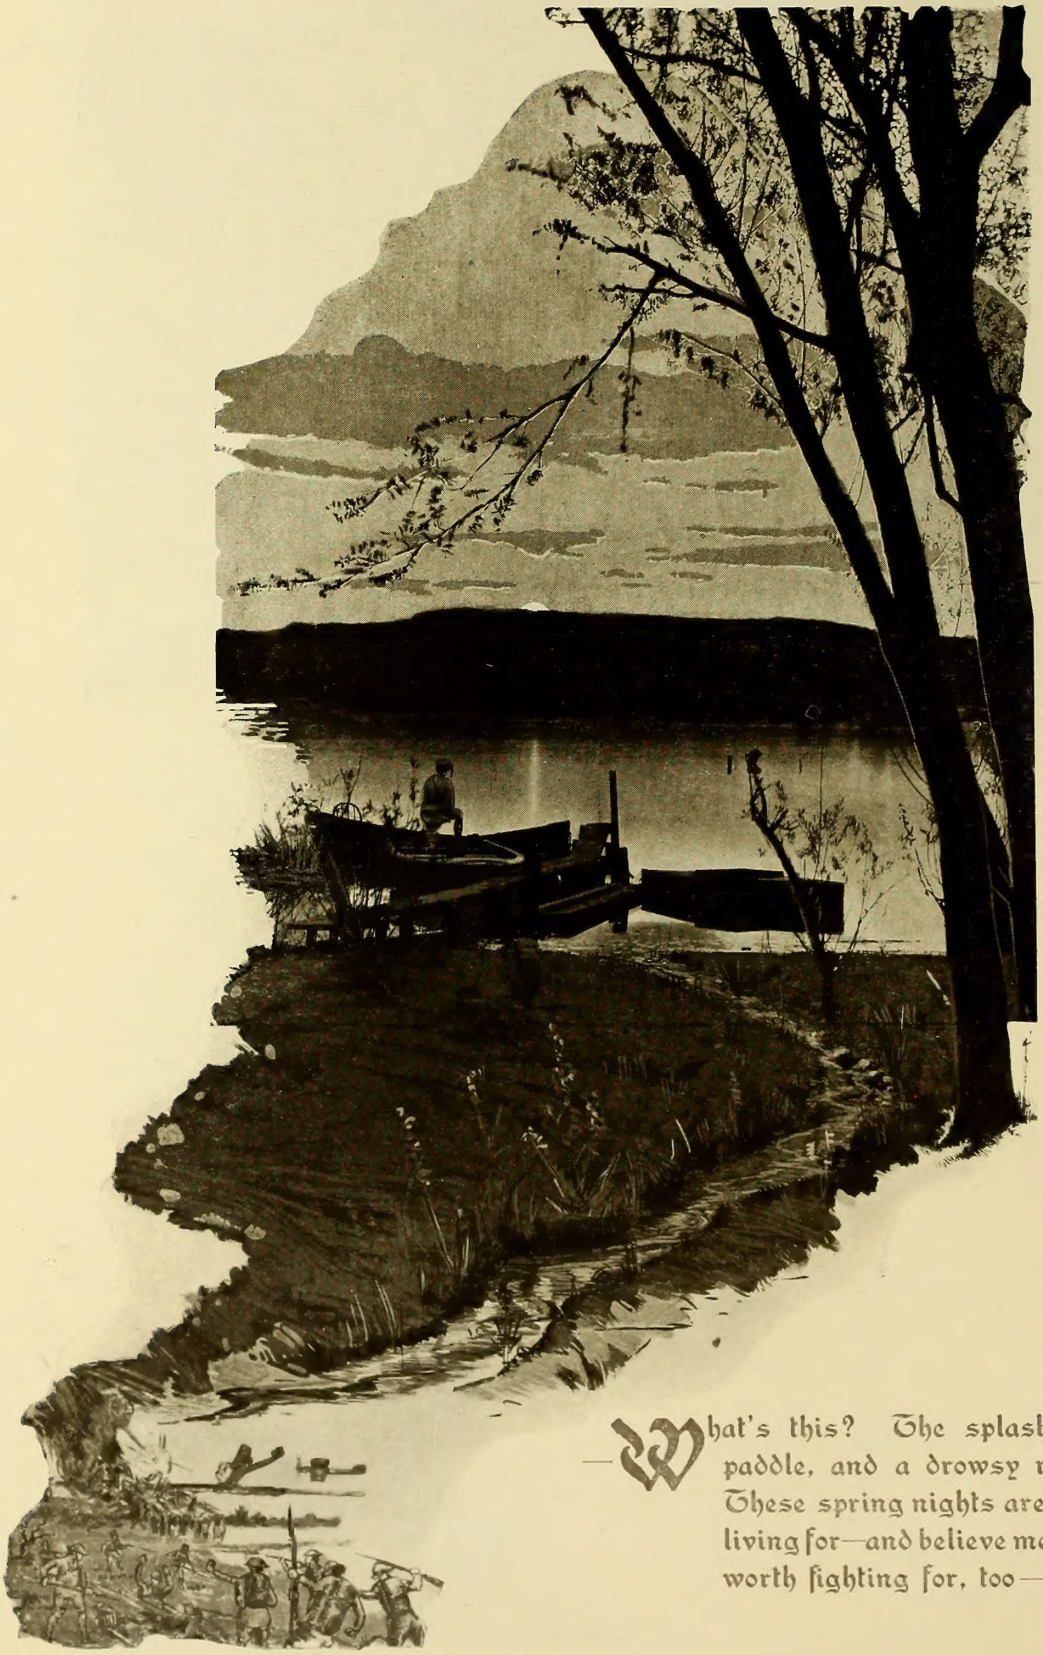

I've learned what real fighting is since I last left the old Armory that has been waiting on the shore like a grim but kindly castle, for her boys to come home—

— How I've longed to stroll the shady coolness of the Drive as I've tramped the roads of France with the red mud heavy on my boots—

The clock tower of a shell-torn church in Flanders brought a swift sweet memory of the happy hours this old clock had rung out for me—

—What's this? The splash of a paddle, and a drowsy ripple? These spring nights are worth living for—and believe me, pals, worth fighting for, too—

And the rustic agrics—what a joy it has always been to stare along the white ribbon of walk that leads over Ag campus—

—Look at that vista of calm water thru the trees! It's the soul-inspiring quiet that I've dreamed of when the earth trembled with the thunder of big guns—

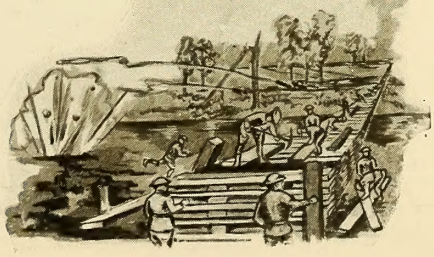

And there is Picnic Point, stretching its long emerald finger out into the shining blue of our lake—

And this dreaming sunset water where one can drift, and with Her, forget that submarines and battleships ever wrecked human life—

And the observatory, high on the Hill, trying to plumb the twinkling infinity of the skies, unmindful either of the bitterness of strife or the glory of peace—

—The friendly willows ever shadowing the gray old rocks with slender leaves of silver green—Nothing here to remind one of war—

—Boys, there's not a bit of sunshiny blue in all France like our own lake on a summer afternoon—

—This glorious golden after-glow which fills ones heart with Peace—the inspired and purposeful Peace that comes with a return from strife and horror to the sweet, mad youth of old Wisconsin—

In Memoriam

Charles Richard Van Hise

"It was the supreme merit of Dr. Van Hise as president of the University of Wisconsin that from the first he conceived the problems of a state university in a new way and with broad comprehension, both of the duties and possibilities of such an institution. He saw clearly its duty of carrying knowledge beyond the campus and making it directly effective in the life of the state; and he conceived and executed this duty to an extent and on a scale never before attempted."—President E. A. Birge.

President Charles Richard Van Hise

By Dean Scott H. Goodnight

He was in truth a man.

As a scientist, as a conservationist, as a thinker on economic and industrial problems, and as an educator, his name will live in the minds of men in the world at large for generations. His co-workers in and outside the University will be inspired through life by their memories of his unflagging zeal and persistence in the attainment of high purposes, of his gallant bearing when assailed—unafraid, unresentful, and unfaltering—of the well-reasoned justice of his judgments, which might err but were never petty, and of his vigorous self-discipline and ever-broadening scope of interests.

The students, however, the true beneficiaries of his life work, could not all meet him freely from day to day. They knew him at first only by his cheery "good morning" on the hill, but from that time on their love and reverence grew apace. They soon admiringly learned that he was an advocate of manly sports; that he himself excelled in walking, riding, and canoeing; that he had a keen interest in competitive athletics.

His innate "squareness" was proverbial. He consistently sponsored student self government as the one principle of student control wholly compatible with the proper training of citizens for democracy. One of his great unfinished tasks was to provide an adequate Union and Commons for Wisconsin men. None of his predecessors for many years back had maintained such close contact with student leaders or possessed their confidence to such a degree.

During the war, America's just cause had no more earnest champion, the League of Nations no abler advocate, our boys in the service no more loyal friend and ardent supporter. His last public address, delivered from the Library steps three days before his death, was an inspirational appeal to the students of the S. A. T. C. unit.

But the full import of the great lesson of his life comes to the student after college days are over, after experience and responsibility have begun their long schooling and distance has lent a bit of perspective to the view of college life. Then the first vision that rises before the retrospective glance is that of a sturdy, virile incarnation of the Wisconsin spirit, of the genuine Wisconsin spirit—whole-hearted, altruistic service toward fellow man and commonwealth.

He was in truth a Wisconsin man.

A Tribute by the Faculty

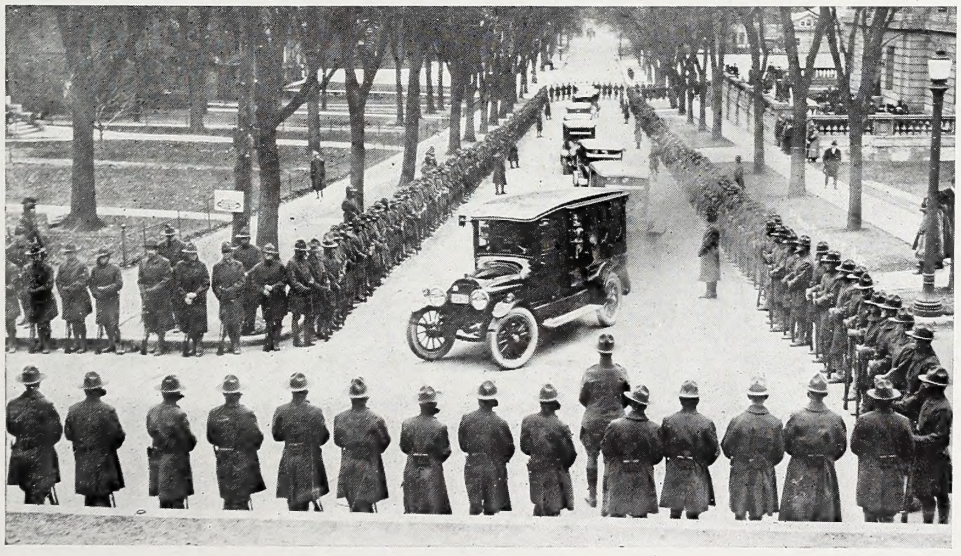

"We, the Faculty of the University, would pay our tribute of respect and love to our departed leader, President Charles R. Van Hise. His death has afflicted us with the deepest sense of public and personal loss. We rejoice, however, in the service that he rendered to his fellow men. He preached the gospel of service and he practiced it with insight and energy. His service was not the condescension of the great to the humble but the solicitude of the elder brother for his brethren. To him the great object in life was to release the capacities of men, to help them learn how to help themselves.

"His broad conception of the part that the University should have in this work of spiritual liberation was firmly grounded in respect for pure scholarship and his success in securing its fuller realization is one of his titles to grateful remembrance. He had a democrat's faith in the ability of the people of Wisconsin to recognize the worth of university training. No opposition, no doubts or fears, could shake his confidence in their unfaltering and full support of the University which sought to open to all a door to richer and nobler living.

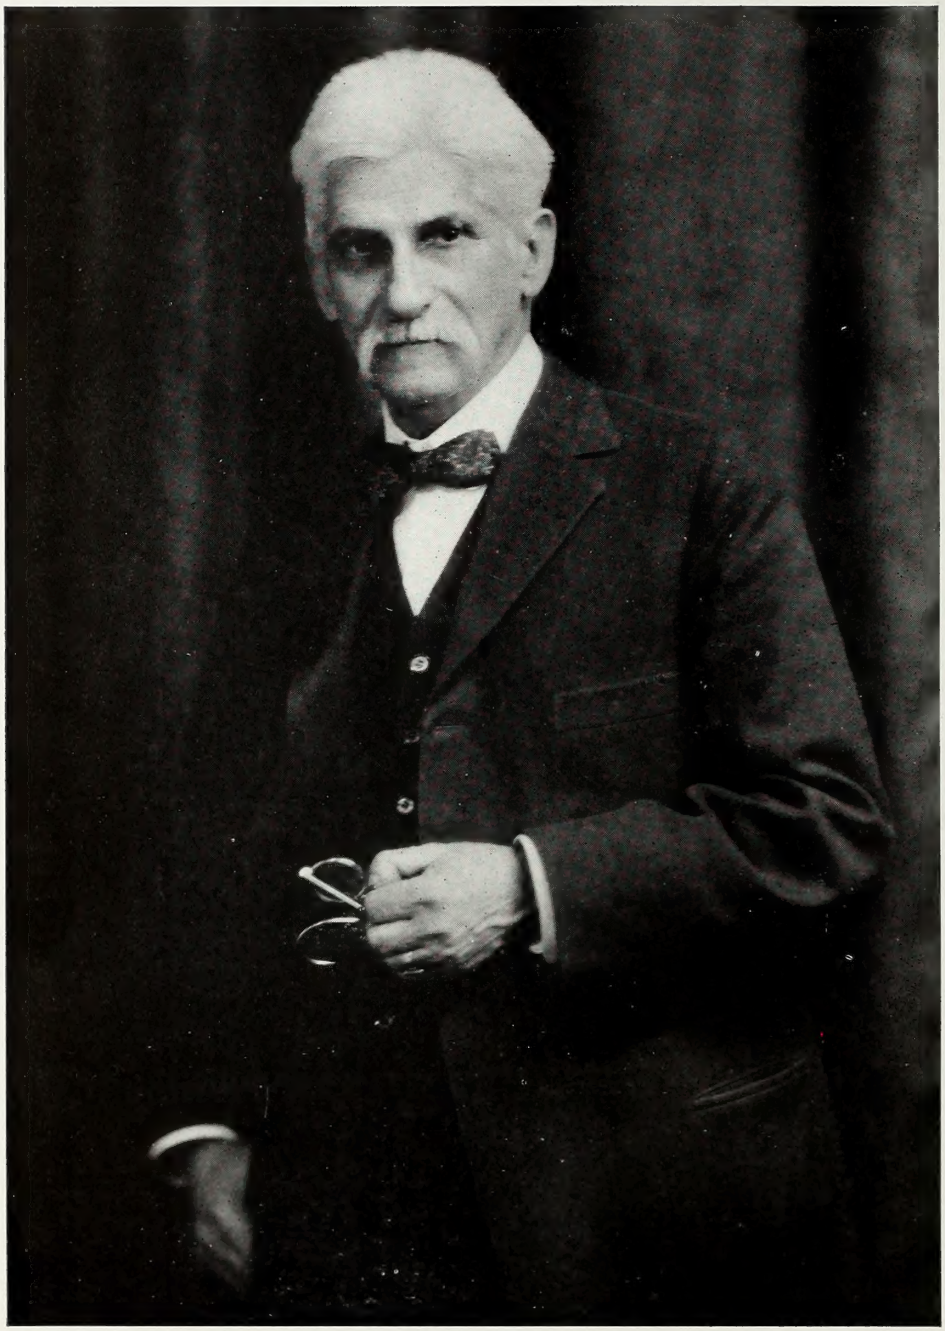

"He was truly a democratic leader. He was simple in his tastes, delighting in the curling smoke of the campfire and the small, still voices of the wild woods. He was accessible to everyone and sought advice from all who would offer it; he respected honest opponents and worked with them as harmoniously after a conflict as before; he endured even malicious personal criticism with serenity. His tolerance was indeed amazing and it sprang, not from indifference or disdain, but from single-hearted devotion to the larger, benign purposes that he cherished for men, and from the concentration of his strength upon the effort to realize them.

"It was characteristic of the steady and consistent broadening of his interests that he passed from the study of the forces which have knit the outer fabric of the earth to the investigation of some of the potent influences which make or mar the welfare of men. The well-being of the people of Wisconsin, of the people of the Nation, engaged the productive energies of his mature manhood. When the great war came and threatened the destruction of western civilization he bent all the powers of his mind and heart to the great problem of gaining the victory for liberty and justice and then, in these later, stupendous weeks, to the greater problem of making that victory secure through the organization of a brotherhood of free nations. The leader who began his presidency with the noble ideal of freeing human capacity throughout the commonwealth of Wisconsin fittingly crowned his brief days in the fulness of his powers with well-wrought plans for ensuring to national and to individual capacity a free opportunity throughout a liberated world.

"We rejoice that he has dwelt among us and that his spirit has moulded and will continue to mould the life of the University. 'They may rest from their labours; and their works do follow them.'"

Our New "Prexy"

Wisconsin After the War

By President E. A. Birge

Wisconsin after the war will have more students than ever. War has shown to the world the value of college training with unexampled force and clearness. The youth of Wisconsin will be no slower to "catch on" than are those elsewhere. Technical and professional courses of study will be crowded and new lines of technical instruction for both men and women will develop as a necessity of preparedness for peace.

The moral training of war on the individual will have its effect on the university. There will be a new earnestness in college life and a new appreciation of responsibility to the state. The "big tent" (to use President Wilson's term) will be the center of things. The side-shows will be numerous as they always have been in university life but they will be side-shows. University men in the west have dreaded the invasion of our universities by the eastern conception of college as a chance for four years of club life instead of an opportunity for vigorous intellectual work. We no longer dread this situation. "Carry on" will be the word in university life for faculty and students alike.

We may be sure of these results. Others no more important are more interesting because more doubtful. War concentrates attention not only on preparedness but also on preparedness for immediate and specific duties. There is a real danger that this limitation of purposes which is necessary in war may be carried over unchanged into peace where it is harmful. A university which limits its teaching to vocational instruction ceases to be a university and students who look only to preparation for the immediate duties of the future are not university students. The Morrill Act of 1862 in establishing the college of agriculture and mechanics made it the duty of the land grant colleges to teach the "branches of learning related to agriculture and mechanic arts;" thus keeping the institution as a seat of learning rather than making it into a vocational school.

Here then lies one of the most important problems of a university like ours—to serve the immediate needs of the state and not to lose touch or let its students lose touch of those wider aspects of learning on which the intellectual life of the state depends and on which in the end rest its prosperity and happiness.

Letters and Science After the War

By Acting Dean G. C. Sellery

IT is not easy to forecast the evolution of a complex college like Letters and Science, and when the forecaster is a novice, and knows that he is, the results are not likely to be startling.

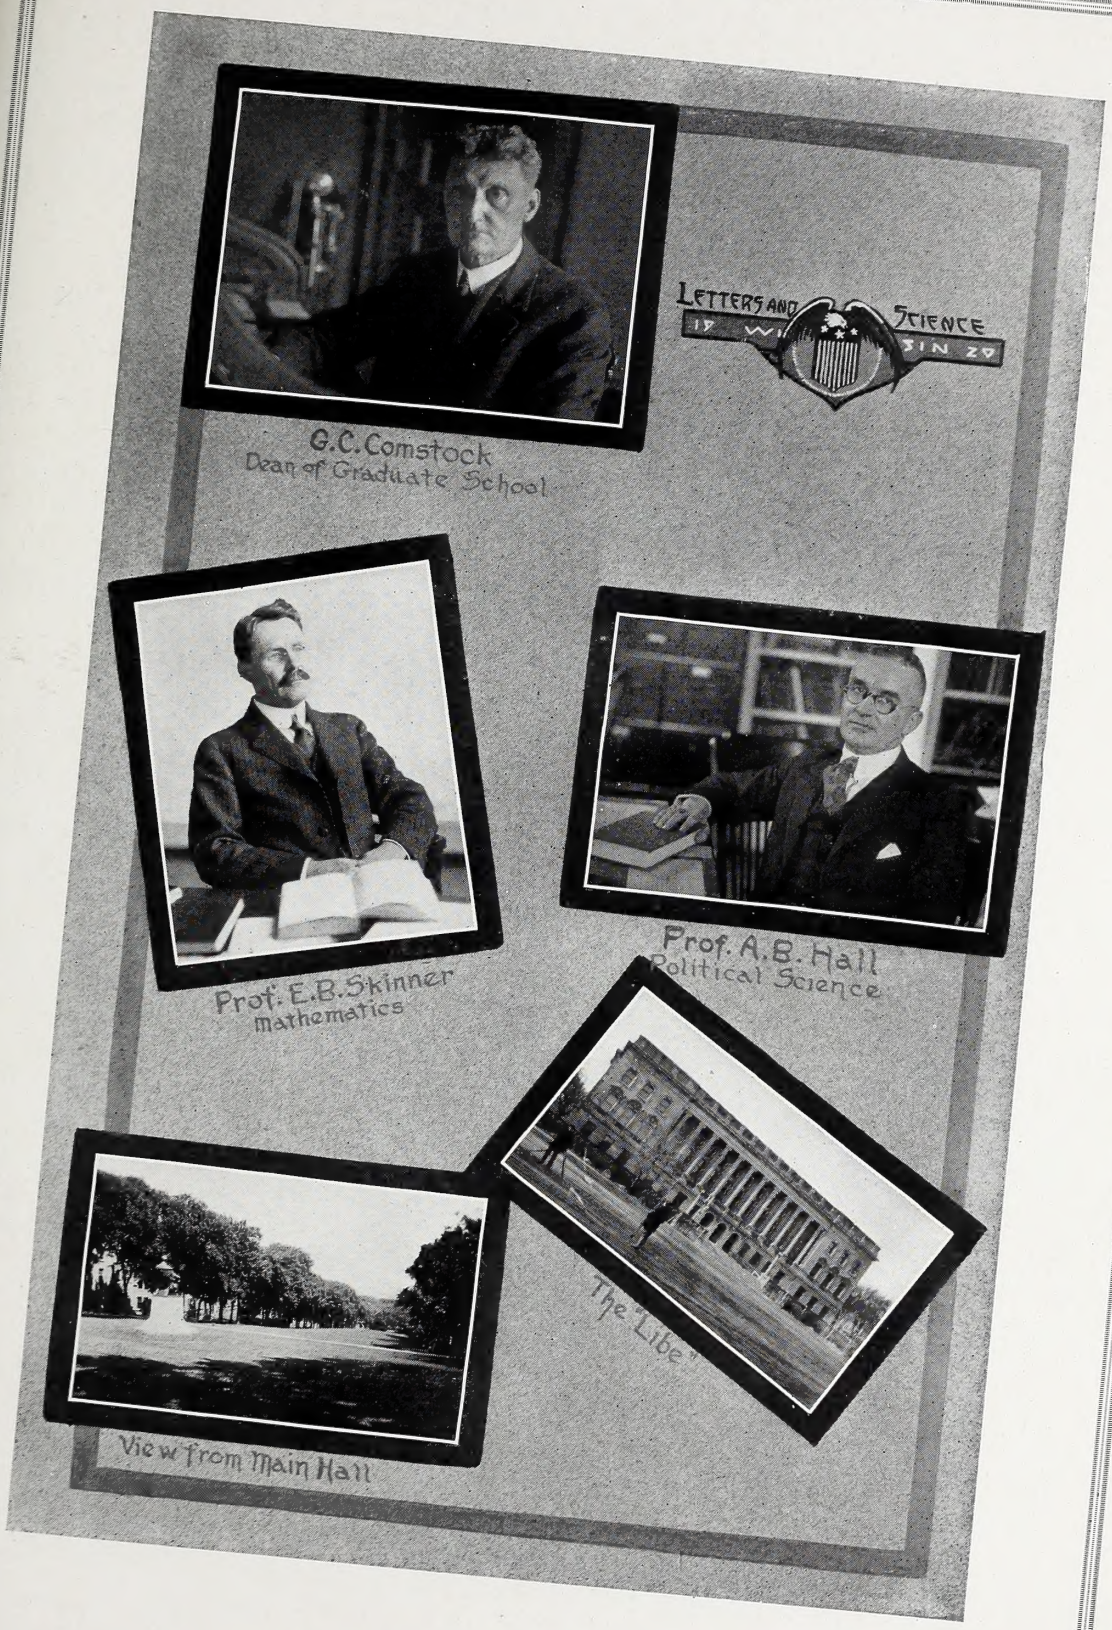

The College will undoubtedly try to do its work better than before the war. The instructors are good teachers; they will bo better teaching, talking less and having more discussion with and from the students, and stressing careful work in the laboratories. The quasi-professional courses will be strengthened to meet the demand, created by sharper international competition and the need of repairing the war's destruction, for increased production of goods and of trained leaders in production and distribuiton. Equally vigorous, I am sure, will be the effort of the College more effectively to train young men and women to appreciate literature, philosophy, history and the other subjects which brighten life and make rest and leisure a joy and not a bore. There will soon be established, I hope, courses in painting and architecture, and these, together with music and the history and appreciation of architecture, painture, and sculpture, will make the fine arts a force in the higher life of the College.

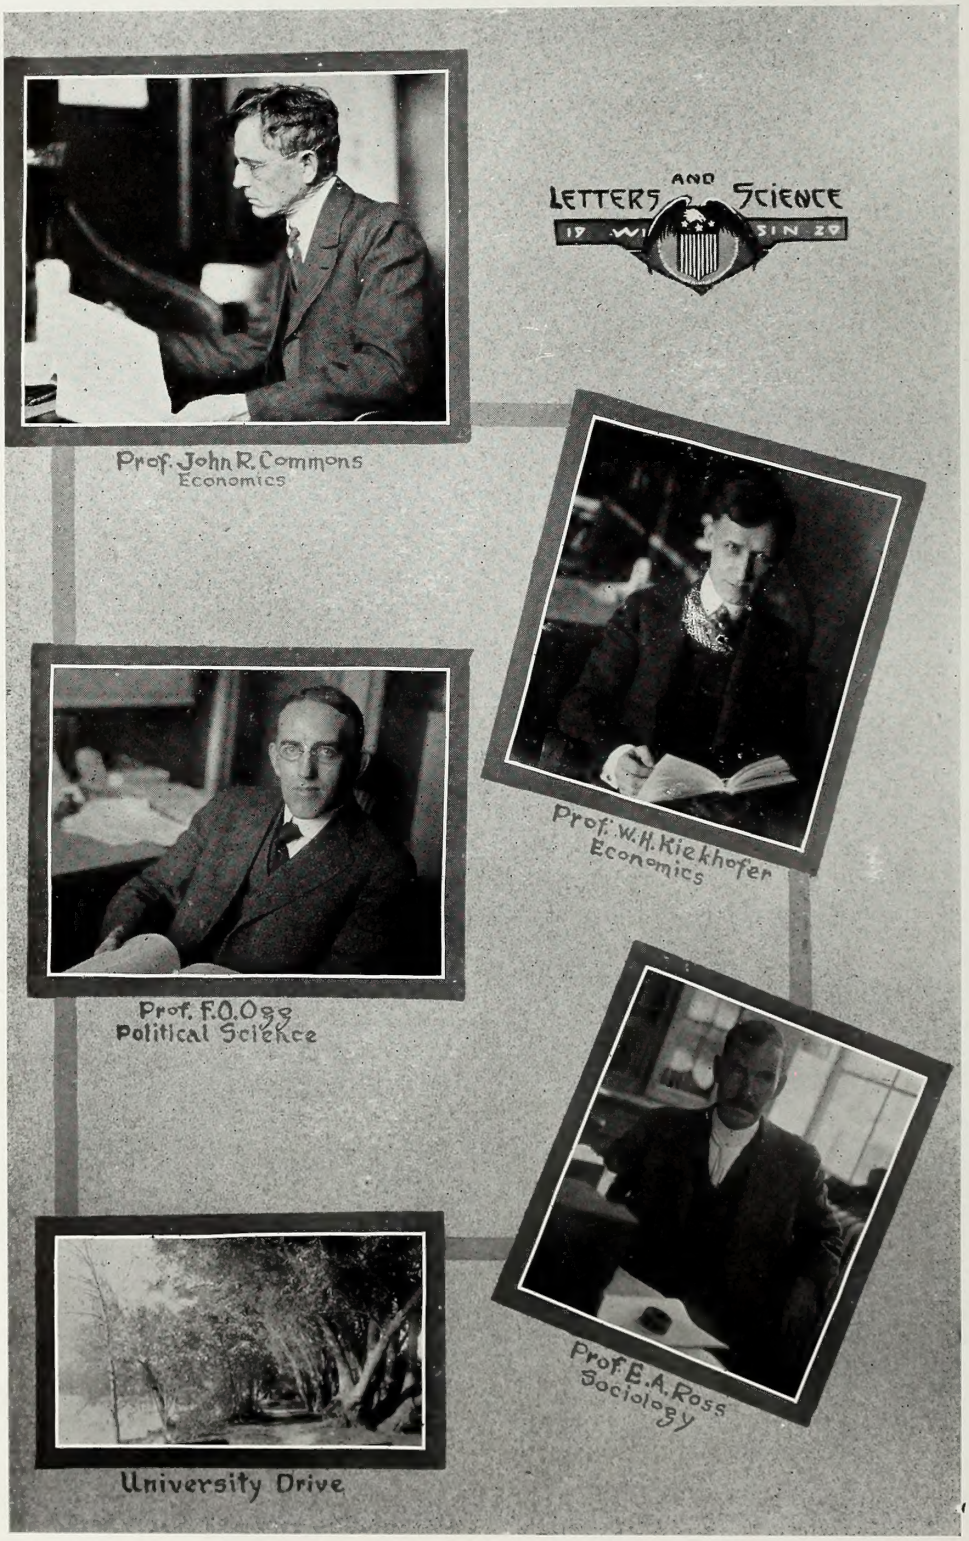

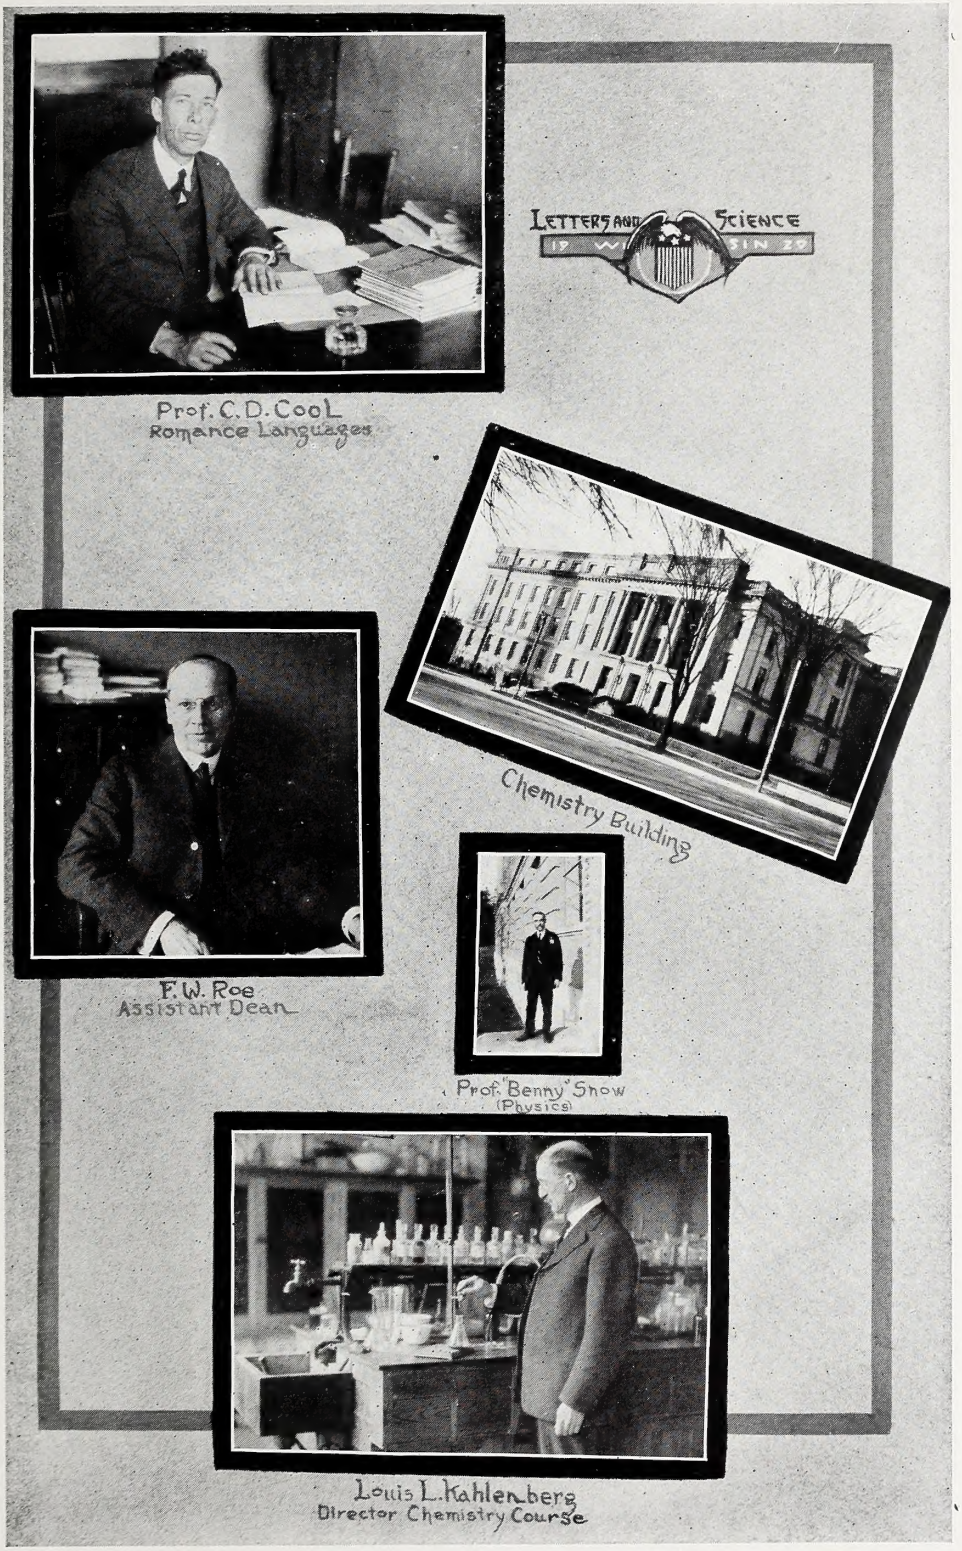

DEAN G. C. SELLERY

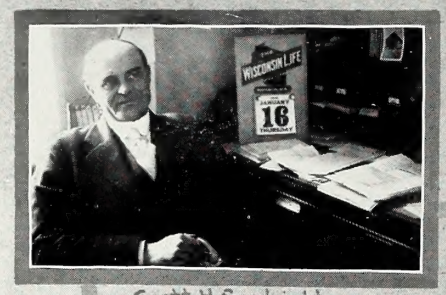

The instructors will teach better and the students will work better. The war has taught us what youth can do when they are in earnest; and the peace will not take away from the coming college generation of students that high, cheerful, earnestness, which makes work go.

Finally, the faculty and the students will more than ever be comrades-in-arms, working together to establish, as an essential element of our far-famed Wisconsin spirit, the tradition that Wisconsin loves workers and does not tolerate drones.

Commerce After the War

By W. A. Scott, Director Course in Commerce

DURING the war, on account of a shortage both of students and of faculty, some of the courses in the Commerce program as well as plans for the future were suspended. At the earliest possible moment we expect to revive these courses and to proceed with the development of our plans. We have already made progress in this direction.

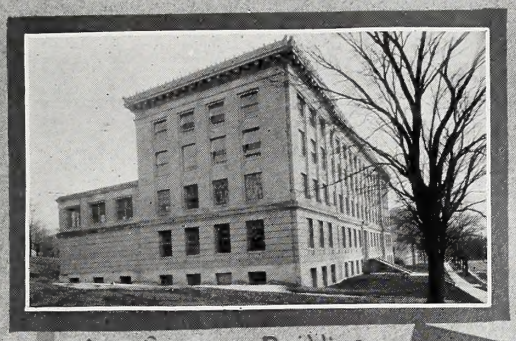

PROF. W. A. SCOTT

Just before Christmas a new group was organized in the interests particularly of young women who wish to prepare themselves for secretarial positions. It is available for juniors and seniors in the Commerce Course and includes courses in Factory and Office Administration, Buying and Credits, Marketing Methods, Retail Advertising, Advanced Commercial Correspondence, Corporation Finance, Investments, Statistics and Publicity and Printing.

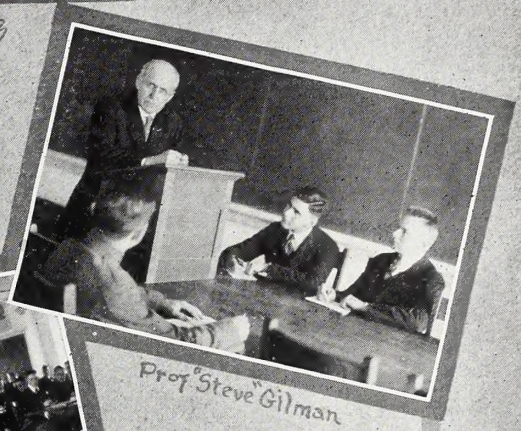

Still more recently special attention has been called to our Real Estate group in the hope that this important business may attract well trained young men and women who will appreciate its public responsibilities.

In the new epoch we are just entering, American business men and women will play an important role and the Course in Commerce expects to aid them in every possible manner in preparation for their new responsibilities. Its organization is sufficiently elastic to permit such modifications and adjustments as the new conditions may require.

Agriculture and the War

By Dean H. L. Russell

"SERVICE" was the watchword of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture in the war. The entire facilities of the college were placed at the disposal of the state and federal authorities.

From the College Halls 553 students and 18 members of the faculty joined the colors. Three of "our boys" won the Croix de Guerre. Twenty-two men made the supreme sacrifice. The memory of their heroic deeds will be a flaming torch, bequeathed to us to cherish so that the sacred fires of patriotism kindled by them shall never die down, but burn with undimished brightness as the years increase.

The Agricultural Extension Service of the College in cooperation with the Federal Covernment, and the State Council of Defense, carried on vigorous campaigns for the production and conservation of food. Members of the Department of Home Economics cooperated with the Federal Food Director and the State Council of Defense in arousing the women of the state to the needs of the hour. Faculty members released from teaching voluntarily took the field as county agents, demonstration and emergency food agents. Farmers were assisted in securing labor. The director of the United States Boys' Working Reserve was aided by the county agents and members of the faculty in a campaign for boy labor on the farms. Students of the college, too young to join the army, were found in the furrows and fields doing their part to help win the war.

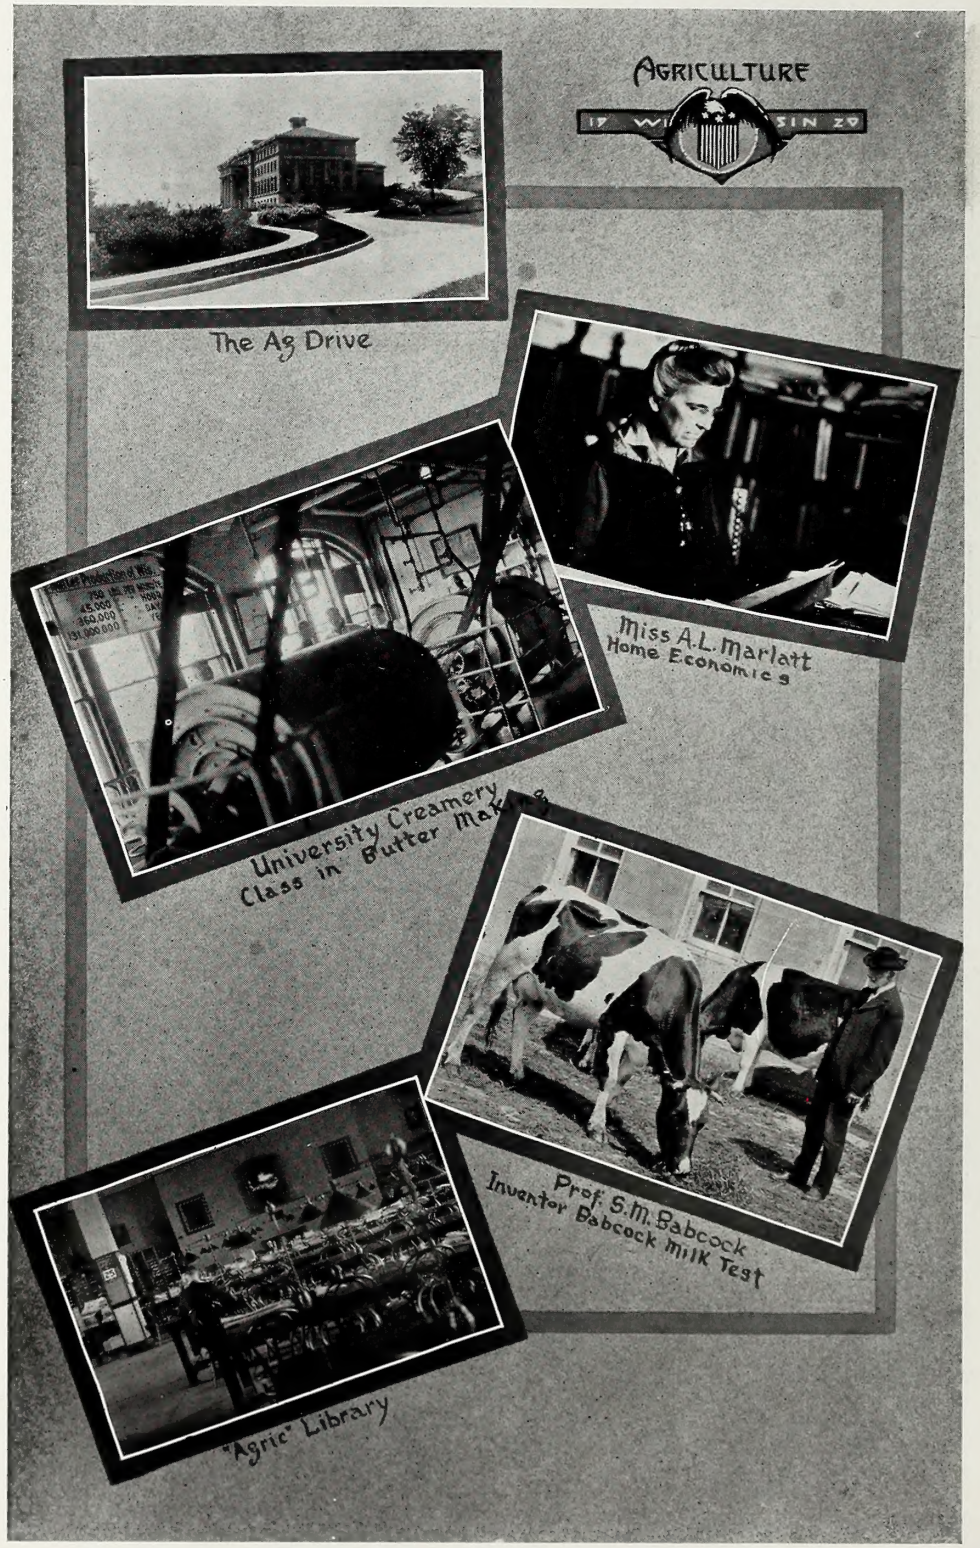

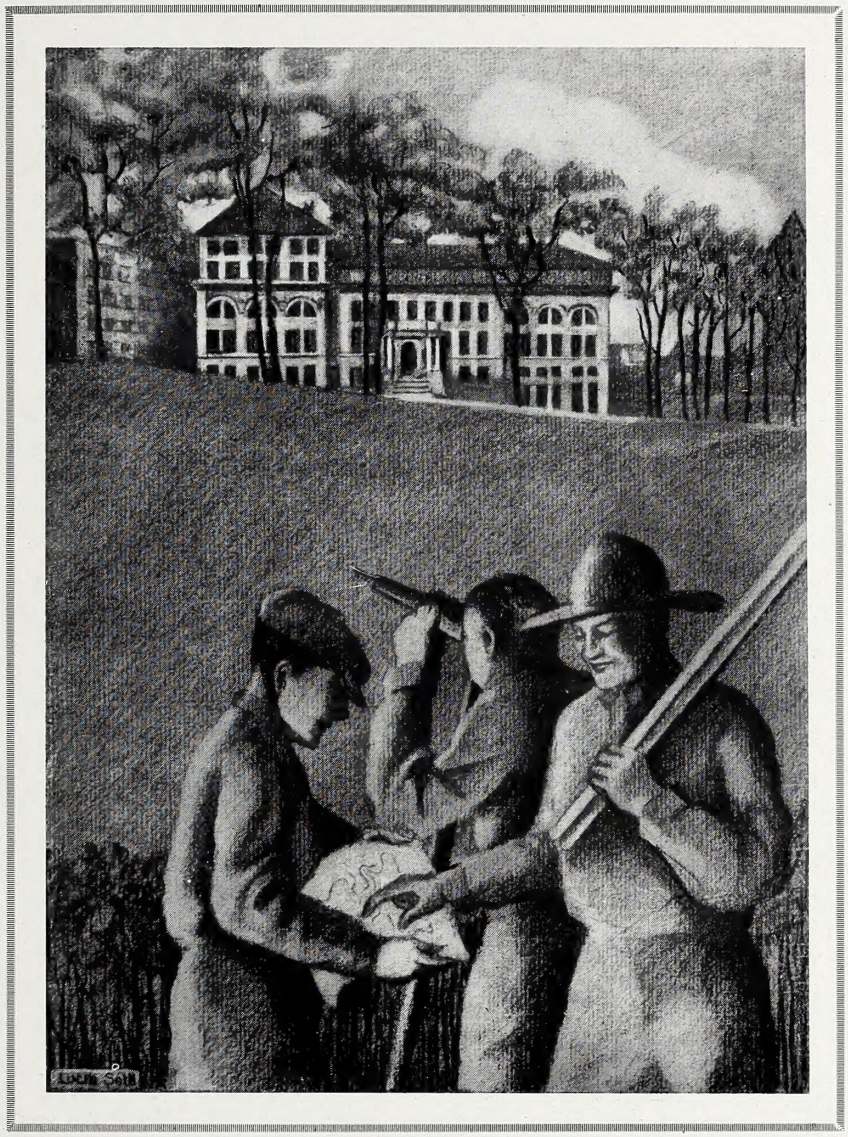

DEAN H. L. RUSSELL

Special campaigns were carried on under the direction of the college for increasing the acreage of fall and winter wheat, the production of milk, and the saving of dairy calves. Farmers were urged to increase their acreage of sugar beets, and thus aid in overcoming the sugar shortage. Boys' and girls' clubs were organized, war garden associations were aided, and county campaigns waged for the formation of sheep and pig clubs.

The record made by the Wisconsin farmer in livestock and crop production during the war is an enviable one. The college is proud to have aided him in his work, and glories in his success. When the history of Wisconsin's part in the war is written, it will be found that the college and the farmers of the state met whole-heartedly and loyally every demand made upon them by the exigencies of the war.

Engineering

Engineering After the War

By Dean F. E. Turneaure

THE great war just ended has obliged all fighting nations to utilize to the utmost their material resources, their transportation facilities, and innumerable products of invention and research; and for the successful utilization of these resources the physicist, the chemist, and the engineer have been in great demand.

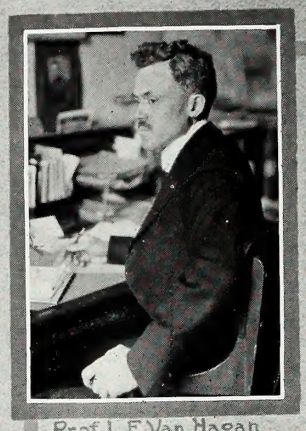

Young engineers who have been trained in the schools of this country have most emphatically made good, and the training of such men both preceding and during the war constitutes the chief contribution of the engineering colleges of this country to the winning of the war. The young graduates of these schools have shown great capacity for special and intensive military training, and the broad, fundamental courses which have been taught have been found to be satisfactory. These same general courses, condensed about one-third, were continued, on request of the war department, during the operation of the S. A. T. C.

DEAN F. E. TURNEAURE

Besides carrying on the regular college work, the Engineering college has had a large part in the vocational training of about two thousand mechanics during the past year in fifteen different short courses. Many members of the faculty have contributed directly to war work by research and special investigation, and the College has furnished a strong quota of engineers from its faculty for technical branches of the army. Problems of peace and reconstruction will call for an increasing number of engineers, and this university will doubtless do its full share in the training of these men along very much the same lines as have proven successful in the past.

Law

Law After the War

By Dean H. S. Richards

UNLESS the forces of disorder loosened by the war destroy our civilization, we may reasonably look forward, as a result of it, to an accelerated emphasis on state control and state supervision over the activities of its citizens, a tendency already well marked. This will in turn mean extensive and complex legislation, and the multiplication of governmental agencies. If this governmental control is to even approximate the hope of its sponsors we will require intelligent and trained leadership. In short, the need of trained men on the bench, at the bar, on the administrative board, and in the legislative hall will be greater than ever. The just and wise administration of a modern state requires something more than good intentions and a villingness to hold office. Knowledge comes through study and training wisdom through knowledge and experience.

DEAN H. S. RICHARDS

The law schools can best serve the coming era by insisting upon a thorough training in the principles of law, superimposed upon a broad college training. The greater importance of international law, as the result of the peace conference, the need of some knowledge of other systems of law, as the importance of our foreign trade increases, will require attention to these subjects in the law school curriculum.

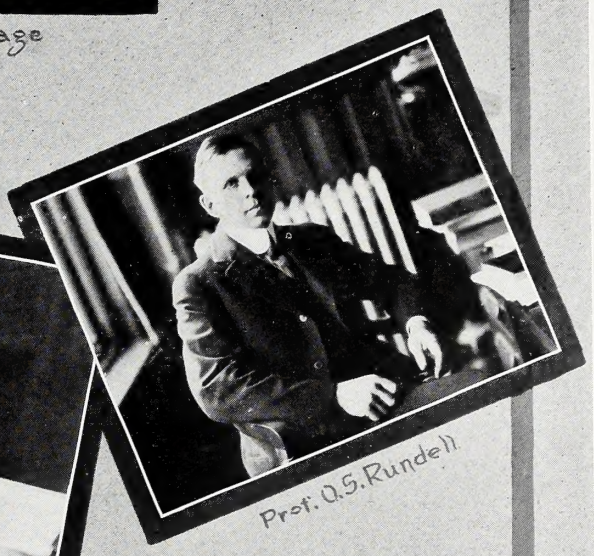

The great war was a battle for our Anglo-Saxon ideals of liberty and law,—won for us slowly and painfully by the blood of our forbears, and now preserved for us by the bloody sacrifice of our sons and brothers. The path of duty is plain,—to raise up a body of enlightened and trained men to defend our heritage, and lead the way to better things.

The University School of Music has made very rapid growth in all its departments, at the same time maintaining very high standards.

The faculty includes men and women whose training and experience is of the broadest kind from a literary as well as a musical standpoint.

During the past year many changes have taken place in the personnel of the faculty. In the piano department Miss Helen Curderson of the University of South Dakota succeeds Mrs. Doris Carter Peterson. In the voice department Mr. E. Earle Swinney of the University of Illinois succeeds Mr. Ernest Chamberlain, and Miss Josephine Jones of Emporia State Normal School, Kansas, succeeds Mrs. Minnie Bergman Lupfer. Miss Lucille Campbell, a graduate of the University School of Music under Mr. L. L. Townsend, is succeeding Leon L. Iltis in the piano department. Mr. Wm. E. Yates of Western Military Academy, Alton, Illinois, is Director of the Regimental Band and instructor of orchestral instruments, succeeding J. E. Saugstad.

Medicine

Medicine After the War

By Dean C. R. Bardeen

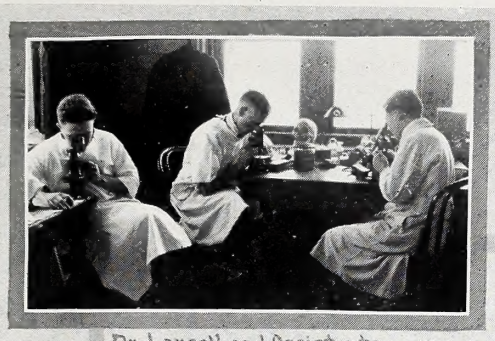

THE importance of medicine for successful warfare induced the government during the war to take special steps to keep medical students in school and medical teachers at instruction and research. Medicine is no less important in time of peace than in time of war. The war indeed has served to emphasize the need of more efficient application of medical science to the preventive cure of disease. In the movement to bring this about the medical school should play an active part. As soon as facilities can be provided the work of the medical school should be extended so as to include instruction in the clinical branches. It will take a considerable number of years to develop adequate facilities for giving the complete medical course under the auspices of the University. It is hoped, however, that when instruction in the last half of the medical course is undertaken it may be undertaken in such a way as to be a distinctly helpful factor in the movement now under way toward the higher standards of health and bodily vigor in Wisconsin.

DEAN C. R. BARDEEN

Meanwhile the new infirmary at the University will enable us to care more adequately for the health of the students and the Bradley Memorial Hospital will enable us to study problems of importance in the control of disease. We have been fortunate enough to receive $15,000 from private gifts for the erection and equipment of these buildings.

The constantly increasing number of medical students is taxing our resources to maintain our standards. The capacity of our students for work is shown by the fact that they even did good work during the recent S. A. T. C. regime at the University.

The work of the Department of Physical Education this year suffered, of course, from obstacles developing out of the war, but the aim of the department, to enable the greatest number of students to participate in athletics, has never been lost sight of for a moment and, on the whole, the efforts in that direction have been productive of much benefit.

Considerable energy was spent unavailingly when the school was virtually an S. A. T. C. camp, as elaborate plans for inter-company and inter-barracks athletic contests had to be abandoned with the breaking-up of the camp just before Christmas, before the schedules could be commenced. In that it spurred the S. A. T. C. men on to greater participation in healthy sports, in anticipation of the organized competition soon to commence, the department's labors however, were well rewarded.

The transition from planning S. A. T. C. athletics to the work attending athletics uninfluenced by the war was not an easy one, but the department feels that it has made the change as quickly as was possible and that the "athletics for all" idea at Wisconsin will again be in full swing before the school year ends.

The physical educational staff gave of its best men to the country's war cause. Coaches Richards, football, Steinauer, gymnastics, Hindman, swimming, Benish, cross-country, and Dr. J. C. Elsom, medical examiner and director of corrective gymnastics, all went into service during the year.

The University Extension Division in Wisconsin is one of the co-ordinate colleges of the University—the extra-mural college. It constitutes the instrument of teaching and of authentic information for the adult democracy throughout the state. It serves not only those who are disadvantaged by taking educational opportunities to them, but it affords all people a means of keeping abreast.

Thus the practicing engineer, architect or doctor, on the one hand, or the artisan, clerk or laborer, on the other, quite as well as the student who contemplates a university degree course, may study and learn at home and without interference with their daily vocations. This is done through consecutive teaching courses by mail or local class, by forum instruction and package library service, by lyceum courses, and by bureau, information and visual instruction methods.

In this way the University committed to the unbiased search for the truth, may serve continuously an entire state wide democracy.

The Library School After the War

The war proved that librarians had a special preparation which fitted them for reliable positions in federal departments, business houses, and emergency work war of an advanced order. This demand, which could in itself be only partially supplied, left public libraries with diminished staffs. The recognition of library training and the demand for it has brought a consequent increase in salaries.

It is evident that more trained librarians are needed. During the last fourteen months the Library School received 339 requests for workers to fill vacancies in the following positions: librarians of public libraries, of branch, county, college, normal school, and high school libraries; librarians for children's departments, for reference, cataloguing, and lending departments; librarians for business, municipal, newspaper, hospital, agricultural, and other special libraries; for assistants in these same libraries; and for workers in various lines of war service. The Wisconsin Library School must do its share in training more librarians to meet these demands.

TRY FROSH WHO BREAK "U" RULES
Student Court Will Soon Be Organized to Govern Underclassmen.
The student court will be organized and ready to try cases of violations of university traditions next week, according to Joseph Beach, president pro tem of the student senate.
After the formation of the body its members appoint the prosecuting attorney, who is usually one of the law students. The court has jurisdiction over all student offenses and deals with those who violate the traditions of the university as also with those who disregard the rules and hate freshmen without the sanction of the court.
Members Soon Chosen.
Its membership will be chosen at the next meeting of the senate, which is scheduled for Wednesday night, and the court will immediately prepare to dispense justice to those unruly under classmen who have been so imprudent as to break the university traditions.
Names of the classmen guilty of violations should be placed before the court at once to be acted upon as the judiciary body sees fit, but no students shall attempt to punish offenders without permission from the court.
In forming the court the executive committee of the student senate draws up a list of eighteen men from the junior and senior classes and submits this list to the senate. From this list the senate selects nine men to compose the student court.
There are no qualifications which the candidates must meet, nor are there any rules governing the selection of the jurists; but it is the custom to select two or three men from the law school and one or two from the various other colleges so that most of the colleges may be represented.
SOPHS TO ENFORCE FROSH TRADITIONS
Big Rush is Scheduled by Senate Committee for Middle of April
FRESHMAN TRADITIONS
1. No freshman shall wear a derby or stiff hat except on Frum night. The prescribed green cap shall be worn in the fall between registration and November 1, and in the spring between the first of the next quarter and the end of examinations.
2. Freshmen and sophomores shall not sit or lean on the gym fence.
3. No freshman shall carry a pertinent to an upperclassmen.
4. Between November and March every freshman shall wear on his coat lapel a small green button with a red center.
Minor Traditions.
1. No freshman shall smoke on the university grounds except in the Wisconsin Union before May 1.
2. No freshman or sophomore shall wear corduroy trousers.
3. No freshman shall carry a cane unless physically disabled.
4. No freshman shall sit or loiter on the steps of any university building.
Swift and sure punishment follows the violation of any of the above traditions by any freshman according to the verdict of the sophomore traditions committee. The committee met this noon and discussed the problems of taking the yearlings to task who have violated the customs of the university.
Frosh Violate Traditions.
Among the men who are under the watchful eye of the traditions committee for past folly are P. Bardell, Tom Reynolds, Eugene Andersen, Hugh Conway, E. Keiser, and John
EIGHT FRESHMEN THROWN IN LAKE
FROSH VIOLATE ALL TRADITIONS
Disciplinary Measures to Be Taken Against Unruly Yearlings
SOPHOMORES DUCK 30 FRESHMEN IN BIG LAKE PARTY
Break Into Fraternity Houses in Quest of Fugitive First Year Men
FAVOR FROSH ENGINEERS IN PICKING VICTIMS
SENATE ORDERS FROSH CAPS FOR NEXT QUARTER
Suspends Rule to Confirm Duncan's Election.
Every freshman will have to wear his green cap on the first day of the third quarter. This is the decree which the student senate made at the meeting held last night and it comes as the first interruption in the hitherto placid life of the yearlings.
FROSH WILL LIVE IN PEACE UNLESS THEY ARE UNRULY
Senate Puts Damper on Lake Parties By Threatening Suspension For Act
TRADITION VIOLATORS TO REACH MENDOTA LEGALLY
There shall be no lake parties.
This was the answer of the student senate yesterday afternoon in a special session called by President Charles E. Van Hise to consider the hazing problem which has pervaded the Lake quarter for the past week. President Van Hise impressed upon the senate that the activities of the underclassmen made immediate and drastic measures necessary and promised to back it to the limit to prevent further infractions of the peace and to use his executive authority to enforce its decrees.
Coupled with the prohibition of lake parties goes the provision that the male students and the chairmen of the respective traditions committees of the respective shall be held responsible to the senate for the maintenance of good order in the future and for the suppression of all lake parties.
Severe Violators.
Infringements of this law will be brought before the student senate for

ARMY

A Word for the Students Army Training Corps

By Major Joseph D. Holloway, Commandant

WHEN the Students Army Training Corps was planned and the matter put before the various educational institutions throughout the country, the War Department, through the Committee on Education and Special Training of the General Staff, was attempting something in the nature of an entirely new departure from the usual army method of obtaining suitable officer material. Such a step had of necessity to be taken to keep pace with the rapid expansion of the army to meet the then existing emergency.

MAJOR JOSEPH D. HOLLOWAY

The S. A. T. C. was instituted to form practically a depot from which material could be drawn that would after training furnish the bulk of the commissioned personnel of the various branches of the army, chiefly Infantry and Artillery, Heavy and Field. Unfortunately, with the signing of the armistice, the need for officer material became of no importance for the furtherance of the War Department's plans, and orders were received not to send any more candidates to Officers' Training Camps. Nothing could have proved more detrimental to the morale and good discipline of the unit than to have the hopes of hundreds of young men shattered and quite naturally interest in academic and military work lagged. Those men who earnestly desired a university education at government expense continued their work diligently, although their chances becoming commissioned officers were gone; they deserve great credit. Others, whose interests were not along educational lines, deserve credit for the time they have given to both the educational and military work with the one purpose of securing a commission in the military forces.

Undoubtedly, had the war continued, the future of the S. A. T. C. was assured and it would have been only a matter of time until conditions would have so adjusted themselves that all conflicts would have been removed and better men would have been graduated from the University and from Officers' Training Camps than ever before.

The University of Wisconsin Section of the Chemical Warfare Service is a branch of the Medical Division, and has been concerned with a study of the effects produced by poison gases used in warfare, methods of protection against them and treatment of conditions arising from exposure to them. The Section consisted during the height of its activity of eight commissioned officers, thirty-two non-commissioned officers and enlisted men, and twenty civilians. A total of about seventy reports dealing with various phases of the work have been submitted to the Director of the Chemical Warfare Service since the establishment of the Section in July 1918. Most of the military and civilian personnel were discharged following the orders for demobilization during the month of December.

MARINES

The Marines

By Lt. Walter W. Multer, U. S. M. C.

THE Marine Section of the University of Wisconsin was at first termed an experiment, but as the weeks went by, the men began to show real signs of that spirit and snappiness which makes for a successful military unit. The spirit of the Marines at the University was the same as would be found aboard ships, or in France. They were always there to do the job, with the material at hand, and never coming back until it was finished.

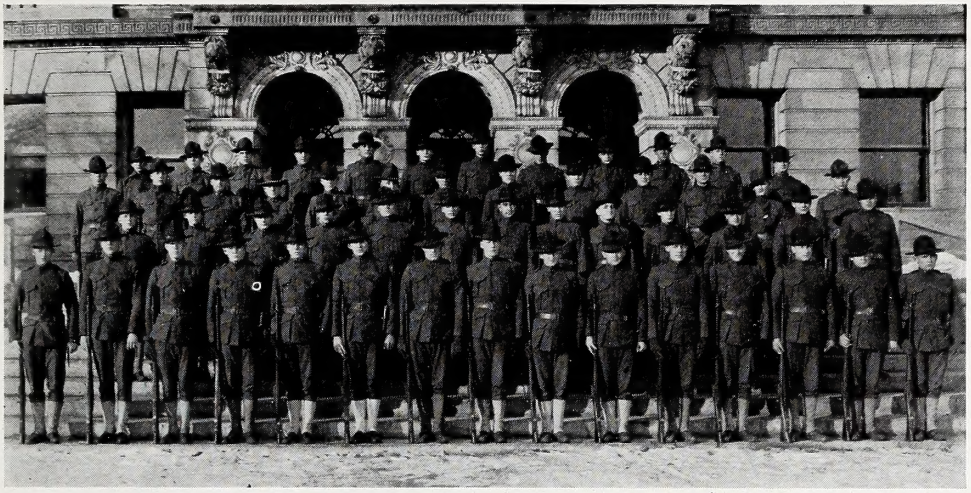

LT. WALTER W. MULTER

In athletics the Marines came out with seven "W's". This in itself proves a theory that a Marine never comes back until he has accomplished his mission. The Marine Corps says to its men very much the same as the ancient Spartan mothers said to their sons: "If you go into battle and lose, never come home, for there will be no home." Translating this literally we get exactly what is told us in an "Unwritten General Order."

This indescribable something called Marine Spirit is no other than that which won Belleau Wood and caused its name to be changed and go down in history as Bois de la Marine. It is the same that won Chateau Thierry in the fifty-ninth minute of the last hour. This same "esprit de corps" was in the heart of every man in the Marine Section, and if he had been given a chance in France or Siberia, he would have made the Badger University proud of his name.

Doings of the Devil Dogs

For three months the embryo "Teufel Hunden" lived a checkered non-combatant career. Expecting eventual action overseas, they were as "hard-boiled" as a Marine is expected to be, but the ups and downs of S. A. T. C. kept the Marine Camp in constant turmoil.

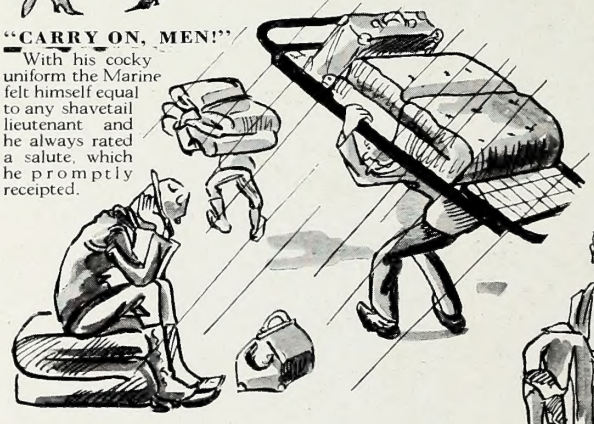

"CARRY ON, MEN!"

With his cocky uniform the Marine felt himself equal to any shavetail lieutenant and he always rated a salute, which he promptly receipted.

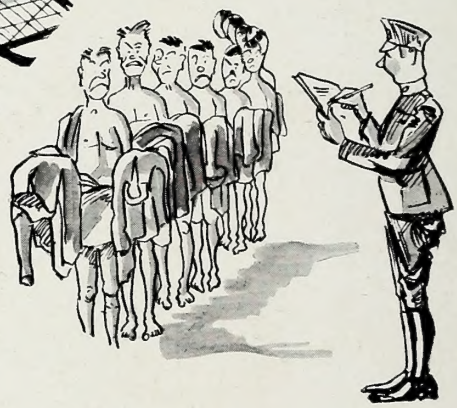

REVEILLE—10 A. M.

There was no bugler in the Marine Camp, and the sleepy birds were awakened in this manner.

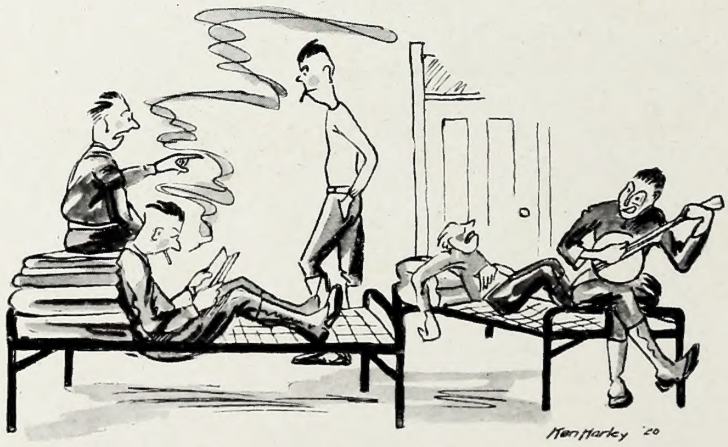

SHIFT QUARTERS!

Orders to move barrix were issued and carried out no less than 17 times. A Marine did not rate truck service.

CHECKING IN

Given 24 hours to hand in clothing on the eve of discharge. Every barrel in Madison was requisitioned—still many of the hounds were confined to quarters pending arrival of the "civies" from home.

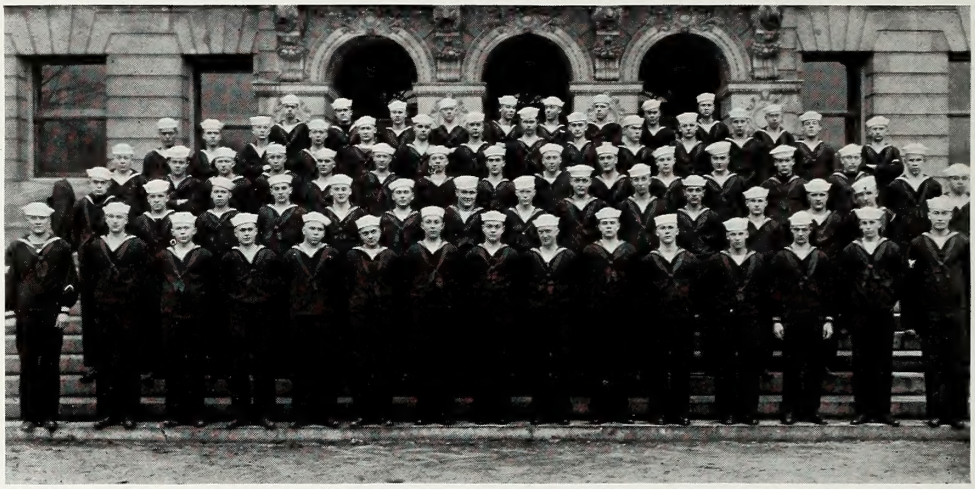

A TYPICAL SESSION

Between drill hours and when the call of classes was buried in an atmosphere of smoke and bunk.

College Athletics After the War

By Tom E. Jones

THE past year and a half has been a great laboratory experiment in the development of human material. We should profit by the results of this experiment. It has brought out strikingly the defects in the preparation of our man power. The nation's first and most important concern during the period just past has been to develop and condition those recruited for military service. Modern warfare has demonstrated that the carefully trained and conditioned man is still the most important factor in victory. Military authorities say that the condition of the American soldier was one of the decisive factors in the war. It was because they possessed the ability to think quickly and act independently in emergencies. These qualities they acquired largely through athletics.

We have learned much about playing as well as fighting in this war. One of the bright sides of the great struggle is that the interest of the general public has been aroused to a proper appreciation of the importance of physical education. It has emphasized the great opportunity and responsibility of schools with reference to physical training and I am confident that the future will see more athletics, rather than less, in the schools. Physical fitness is just as important as mental fitness in making useful citizens, and a definite period should be arranged for it on the program of every student. One hour a day is not too much to give to this very important part of the student's education.

TOM E. JONES

The new impetus will be along the line of intramural sports. Athletics for all and everybody in athletics. The normal and best way to develop intercollegiate athletics is by backing them up with hundreds in a good program of intramural athletics.

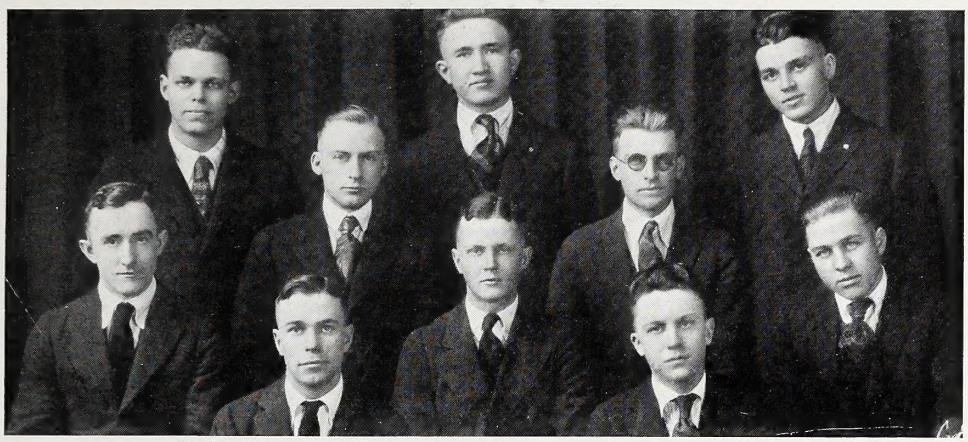

Intercollegiate athletics will always have their place in developing institutional loyalty and inspiring the non-athletic to better efforts. The competitive spirit is fundamentally a good thing and needs to be developed in the entire student body. The strenuous, competitive fighting type of game instills in the men the spirit of determination. One of the definite lessons taught by the war was that athletics are of real military value. It was what supplied our men with the spirit that enabled them to do things which caused the German to gasp in amazement from his first encounter with them. Whenever it was necessary to put in just a little more "punch" in order to attain a result, our men went after it, as they did back on the old gridiron with the ball on the two-yard line, fourth down and the goal to make. This is the spirit that athletics put into every man—the "Never Quit" spirit, and the knowledge of this did more to beat the Kaiser than our bullets.

It is common knowledge that the Army and Navy authorities were inclined to place college athletes in a preferred class as officer material. We have every reason to be proud of the war records of our athletes. Wisconsin has given freely of her best men in every sport and during this period we have carried on the athletic program and have tried to uphold the honor of the school in these sports.

College athletics have passed successfully through this critical period and now is the opportune time to make improvements. We should not quietly drift back into the old channels but should take the new impetus given to sport to "carry on" on a broader basis than in the past. We should realize that this whole question is simply one phase of education and that a definite place should be arranged for it in the program of every student. Athletics are an essential part of the education of every college man and the right sort of athletic training will go a long way toward building up a rugged and enduring citizenship.

The Intercollegiate Conference Medal

The Intercollegiate Conference Medal is awarded annually at each of the ten schools composing the Western Intercollegiate Athletic Association to the graduating student who has shown himself to be the best scholar-athlete of his class. The selection is made by the faculty and athletic council. The medal, of gold, was designed by Dr. Tait MacKenzie, of the University of Pennsylvania. It was innovated in 1915.

Kennedy

Martin "Tom" Kennedy was the first Wisconsin man to receive the medal. It was presented to him the year of his graduation, in 1915, in recognition of his service on three 'varsity crews and on two 'varsity football squads, in conjunction with the scholastic average of 85.4 that he maintained for four years.

Harvey

Dow Harvey, holder of the Wisconsin record for the half-mile run, was presented with the emblem in 1916. He won three W's in track, captaining the team his senior year, and one W in cross country. His average for four years of scholastic work was 91.1.

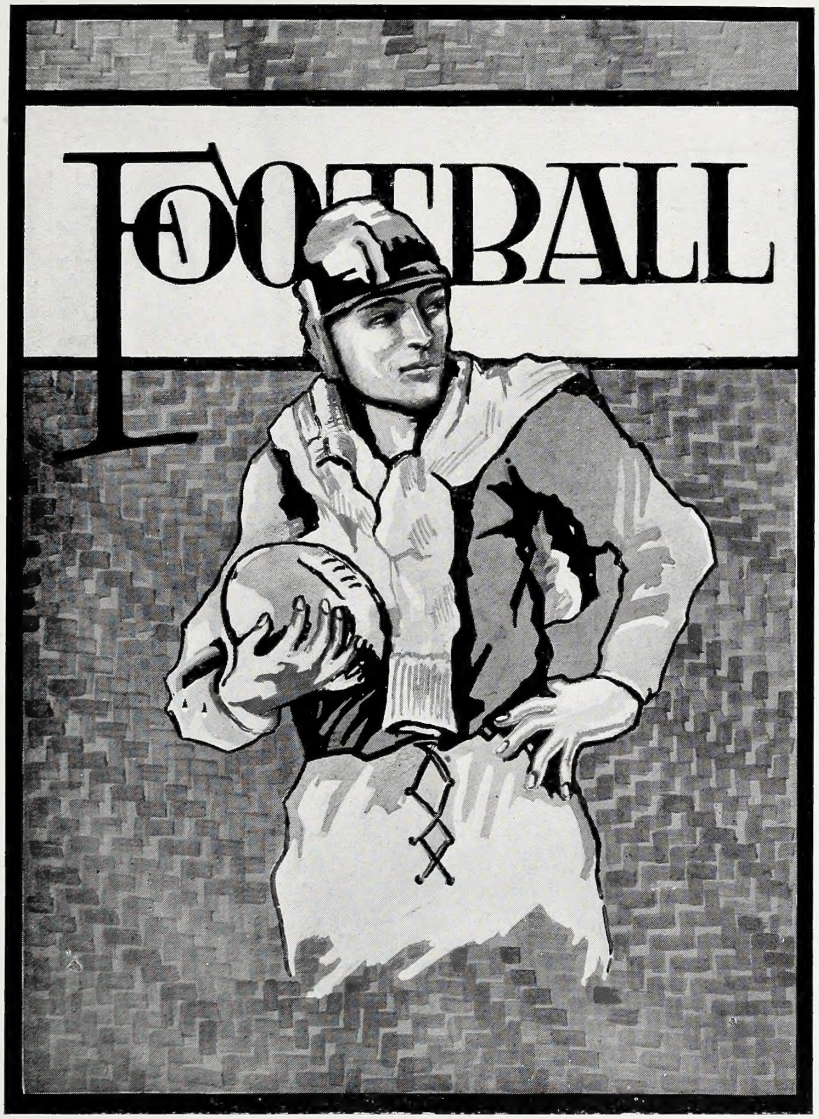

Burke

Mead Burke, who won three W's as a hurdler on the 'varsity track team, received the award in 1917. His scholastic average was 87.6. Burke holds the 'varsity indoor record for the 40 yard high hurdles.

Simpson

Eber Simpson, Wisconsin's greatest all-round athlete, was the last recipient of the medal, being awarded it in 1918. His record of winning seven W's in three sports, added to an average of 84, gained him the honor. Eber played quarter and half on three 'varsity football teams, guard and forward on two 'varsity basketball fives, and filled in at nearly every position on the 'varsity baseball team for two seasons.

The Coaching Staff

Wisconsin's coaching staff, disrupted at the very outset of the season by a war demand which took Head Coach John Richards to Washington and out of football for 1918, at times assumed the proportions of that record staff of 1916, when Dr. Withington, introducing the Harvard system here, had as assistants King, Soucy and Dougherty, who came with him from the East, and Buck, Mucks, and Driver, Wisconsin men.

When Coach Richards left for war work, the responsibility for the team's showing fell upon Guy Lowman, basketball coach and aide to Richards on the gridiron in 1917. Lowman was assisted during the season by "Peewee" Vaughn, a member of former 'varsity football squads, Tom Jones, who had handled the freshman elevens for several years, and Maurice Kent, the latest acquisition to the Wisconsin physical education staff, who came from Iowa, where he had specialized in coaching baseball.

The 1918 Season

By Harold Gill '20

The 1918 football season at Wisconsin?

Well, to begin with, let me paraphrase by saying "It was not a success—and it was a success."

Under the microscope which reveals only cold, glaring figures, and which is applied by the uninitiated public, including, unfortunately, some of the students here, Wisconsin's conference record for the past season was certainly not what might be expected, in the usual order of things, of a school which has always maintained a ranking in football on a par with Chicago and Minnesota as makers of gridiron history in the middle west.

Based upon unfeeling figures, it was a failure, for the 1918 Badger eleven

Finished in fifth place in the Big Ten.

Won only one of the three conference games played.

Won only three of the six games played all season.

Scored a total of only 42 points, as against 45 by opponents.

To those who have followed conference athletics for any length of time, however, with an eye to more than the material things, the record spells success. For such persons know that, out of absolutely the worst football material in the history of the school and under conditions which had never been even approximated before, an eleven was pieced together that on the closing day of the season might have given any team in the conference a battle for top honors.

Words are too inadequate to describe the mess which prevailed at Wisconsin when the first call was issued for football candidates. A man versed in all the tragic lore of history, equipped with eloquence that might rival the Blind Master, is needed to tell of the disastrous conditions which attained.

There never was a time since the first Wisconsin team stepped onto a football field, back in 1883, when prospects were so hopeless.

Consider!

Barr Getting Away for an End Run

Sundt

Below

There was not one football "W" man in school, not one veteran, for the first time in history.

There was one of the smallest squads of candidates ever known here, with freshmen, raw, unschooled frosh, outnumbering the others three to one.

And from this squad was picked a team, composed almost entirely of first-year men, men new to conference football; a team which step by step, despite innumerable obstacles, was molded into a fighting, talented eleven that won its last two games in a decisive manner and finished the schedule with a burst of speed indicative of class, the culmination of two months of as rapid progress as was ever made by any team.

I wonder if you fully realize just what it means not to have even one man back from the eleven of the year previous. Such a thing had never happened at Wisconsin until last fall. Such a thing will probably never happen again. Such a thing had never been even dreamed of.

It meant that the coaches were without a man who knew the Wisconsin style of play, without a man who had had undergone his baptism of fire in conference football. It meant that there was not a veteran to build with.

Carpenter, Scott, Weston, Gould, Davey, Kieckhefer, Sivyer, Bondi, Jacobi, Keyes, Olson Mueller—all of whom had seen Big Ten service in 1917—LOST; not one back in school.

And the coaches had been counting on having nearly every man of them back!

Remained only Mann, substitute tackle on the 1917 squad. As he was the only member of that aggregation back, he was chosen captain, and the coaches, regarding their pre-season plans sorrowfully, discarded them with a sigh and plunged whole-heartedly into the work of making an eleven out of the disheartening material afforded them.

The material alone was enough to drive any coach crazy, but when obstacles began to pile up daily with the start of practice it is astonishing that the Mendota asylum did not claim a batch of recruits from Camp Randall.

Stopping an Illinois Drive Through Center

Brumm

Usher

In the first place, the start of practice was delayed more than a week by the slowness with which candidates appeared. As stated before, they were, in the main, freshmen, and it was some time before they had adjusted themselves to university conditions, had arranged schedules, and had performed the many little duties incumbent upon entering college. In the meanwhile, a few candidates worked out daily, waiting for more to show up.

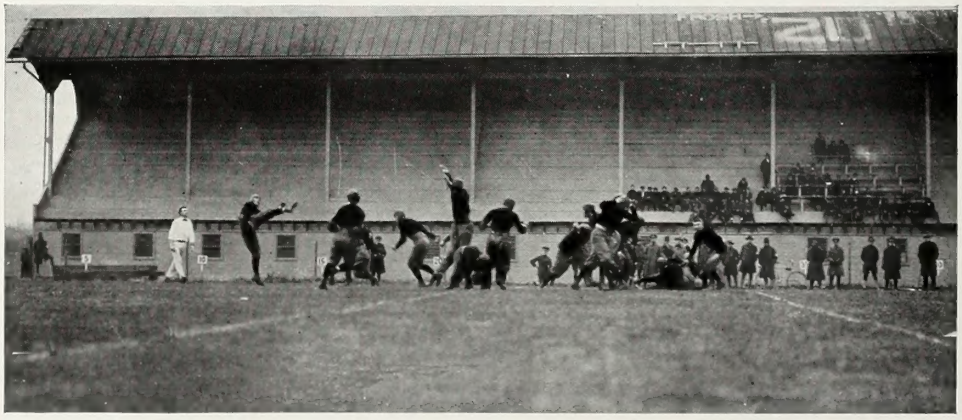

Then came delay while arrangements were made to permit candidates, all of whom were S. A. T. C. men, to practice, delay consequent with rearranging of drill hours, class periods, and the like.

Sliding over these obstacles to practice, mountainous in themselves, we come to the season proper.

The first games, with Ripon and Beloit, were postponed because of the "flu." Whatever advantage of more time for preparation was derived from these postponments, however, was off-set by delay in conditioning caused by slowing-up of the practice as a result of the effects of the epidemic here.

Then another blow descended on the Cardinal camp. Coach John Richards was called to Washington on a war mission which kept him away from the game for the rest of the season. Hurried efforts to get another gridiron coach failed, and Coach Lowman, who had been rendering capable assistance to Richards, was given the job.

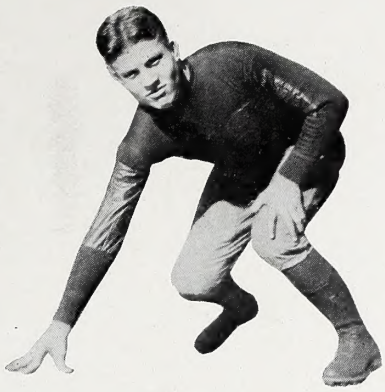

Finally, a date was arranged for the Beloit game, but the contest with Ripon was definitely cancelled, leaving the Badger coaches with the "between-the-devil-and-the-deep-sea" choice of sending an inexperienced eleven into its initial conference game with only one practice game under its belt or of scheduling the strong Camp Grant team for the first game.

Camp Grant Forced to Punt

Ellingson

Leaper

Eklund

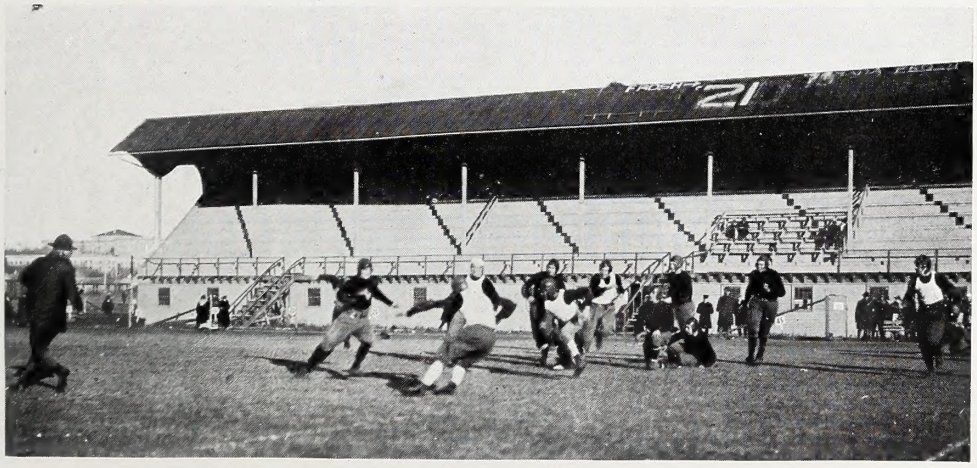

Deciding that at least two practice games were necessary, Camp Grant was invited here for the opening encounter, and the husky soldier eleven was returned victor, on a lucky touchdown resulting from an intercepted pass, by the score of 7 to 0.

Beloit came next and Wisconsin chalked up a win, 21 to 0, showing considerable improvement over the work of the Saturday previous.

To the initiated, the playing of the Badgers in these contests was worthy enough to exempt them from much criticism, but to the fans, accustomed to seeing Cardinal elevens score 50 point victories in pre-conference games, the outlook for the season was certainly discouraging.

Then followed the first conference game of the season, against Illinois, at Camp Randall. Illinois had veterans. Wisconsin had none. That tells the story. Illinois won, 23 to 0, but two of its touchdowns were the result of lucky recoveries of fumbles. Wisconsin threatened to score several times, but the punch in the backline was lacking. The Badger showing, against a team which later was accorded premier honors in the Big Ten, was all that might have been expected.

A second defeat, at the hands of Minnesota at Minneapolis, sent the Wisconsin hopes lower, but honors accrued to the Cardinal eleven because of its great stand against the Northmen. Stubborn resistance throughout the game, with a desperate defense checking the Gopher marches under the goal-posts on several occasions, confirmed the prowess of the Wisconsin line. The offense was still weak, however, and inexperience spoiled several chances which might have led to scores. A 40-yard forward pass in the last quarter gave Minnesota its only touchdown and earned a 6 to 0 victory. Wisconsin stopped the Gophers four times inside the 10 yard line.

Smith Gains on the Scrubs

Brader

Donaghey

Kuehn

The first Wisconsin win came against Ohio State the following Saturday, at Columbus, a strengthened backfield ripping through the enemy forwards for long gains and turning in a 14 to 3 victory. The line continued its stellar work and the closest State came to scoring was in the second quarter, when three points were registered on a field goal from the 25-yard line when the Badger wall stopped further advances.

The final contest of the season, against the Michigan Agricultural College eleven here on Thanksgiving day, was a stubborn battle, which was won by Wisconsin in the last few minutes of play, 7 to 6. The Badgers fought an up-hill game all the way, on a field that was covered with several inches of soft snow. The ball was so wet that it was almost impossible to handle, and one of the Cardinal team's best stratagems, the forward pass, was useless.

On its playing in the final pair of games, Wisconsin was entitled to ranking among the leaders. It is doubtful whether Illinois could have repeated its victory had another game been played following the contest with the Aggies. The team had found itself, had acquired confidence in its ability, and, greatest of all factors, the offense had become formidable.

With not a man of the team lost by graduation, and a dozen or more "W" men of other seasons expected back from service, one of the greatest elevens in history seems assured. True, all the other schools will have an unusual wealth of material, as much, if not more, than at Wisconsin, but, given the men, the old Wisconsin spirit that never admits defeat will do the rest.

Coach John Richards, who was called away for special war work hardly before he had started work with the eleven, will probably be back on the job, ready to pick up the loose ends and start a winning regime which should extend far into the years and place Wisconsin again on top in western conference gridiron records.

Why We Didn't Win the Championship

Next Fall—Oh Boy!

Often, in the intoxication of unrestrained imagining, we've wondered how it would seem to watch some of the gridiron immortals back at Camp Randall. In wild day-dreams we've been thrilled time after time by conjuring visions of "Keckie" Moll booting one over from 40 yards out; of Vanderboom crashing over center; of "Butts" Butler smearing a play; of "Coots" Cunningham barking his signals; of "Biddy" Rogers weaving through the interference and bringing down the runner; of Al Tandberg striving for six inches and a touchdown.

Now those fond imaginings seem about to become actualities, for when the early rays of the next September sun slant down on the white-lined field at Camp Randall there's going to be a bunch of wonder-workers of other days back.

Oh, boy! what a team we're going to have!

Imagine four Wisconsin captains playing on the same team.

They'll be there—Paulie Meyers, leader of the 1916 squad; "Chuck" Carpenter, captain-elect for last fall; Mann, captain last season, and Sundt, captain-elect for 1919.

And—sweet patootie!—with them will be Davey, backfield flash, and Kieckhefer, Scott, and Sivyer, linemen, all of of the 1917 eleven, who chose to smash the Hindenburg line in preference to disrupting those of Wilce, Stagg and Williams.

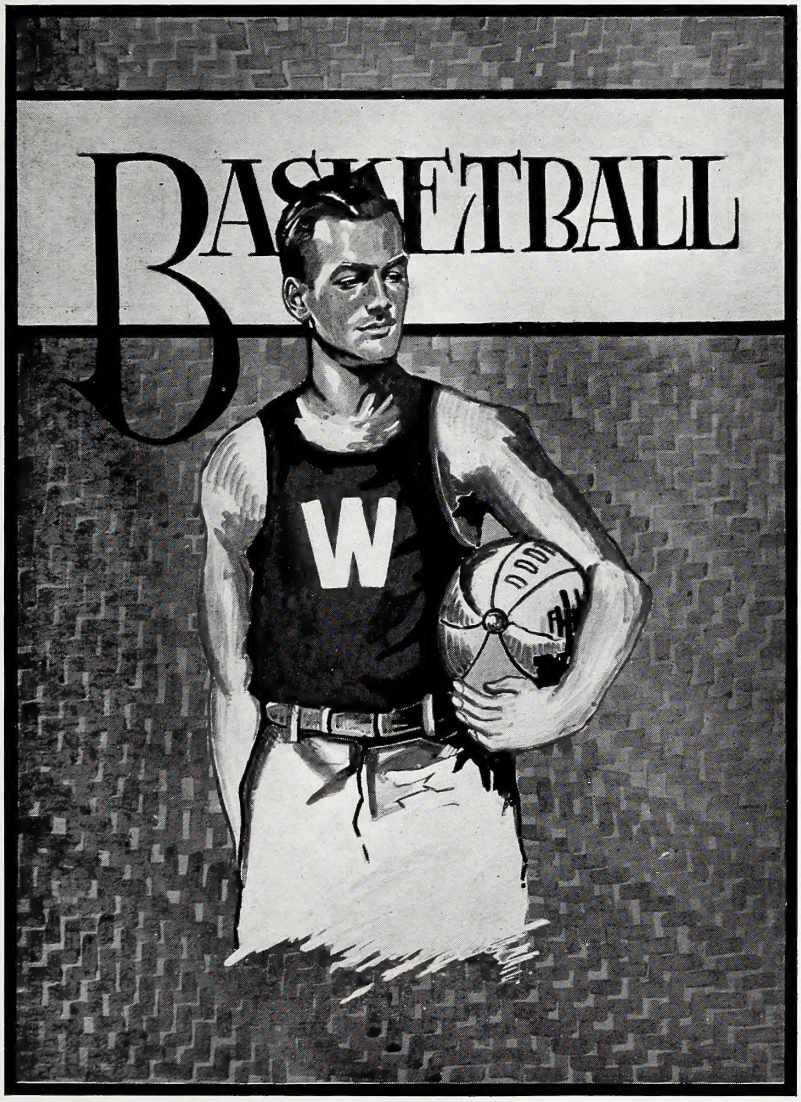

And—Doc, the smelling salts!—we'll have from that same 1917 aggregation of pig-skin artists Bondi, Jacobi, Stark, and Gould, all backline stars, and Weston and Olson, performers in the forward wall, all of whom have been in service and have just been discharged from camps in this country.

And when they take the turf next fall—

When four captains are battling on the same team—

When "W" men are sitting on the sidelines or composing the third team because there are better men on the squad—

MAY WE BE THERE TO SEE!

The 1918-19 Season

It was the most disastrous season in history for a Wisconsin basketball team—a season characterized by the most inconsistent performances in years, a season which ended with Wisconsin in last place, after a brilliant record extending over seven years, in which time five western championships had been attained and during which no Wisconsin team ever fell below third place.

Much of the liability for failure may be accredited to lack of material. When the season opened, there was not a regular back from the championship 1917–18 quintet. Chandler, Brock and Simpson had been lost by graduation,Captain-Elect Zulfer was at Great Lakes, and Swinsen and Maisel were not in school. Knapp, with Bauer, the only substitute of last year's team to win his "W," was in service. Of the four aWa men of the 1917–18 squad, Fladoes and Birch were in service.

Barlow

Thus Coach Lowman had only this scanty experienced material to start with: Bauer and Spengler, substitute forwards, and Pease, substitute guard. From the freshman team of the year previous he recruited Fanning, center; McIntosh, forward; and Barlow and Schneider, guards.

Captain Zulfer, Knapp, and Weston bolstered the team when they were discharged from service and reentered school, but much of the value of their return was lost because of their coming back at different times. Until past the middle of the season, Wisconsin was unable to put upon the floor a team which had played as a unit in any previous game. Injuries to Bauer and Barlow added to the spirit of uncertainty that was in the Badger camp at all times, and the chance that Zulfer would be called back to Great Lakes was always present.

Pease

Captain-Elect Knapp

MacIntosh

As to the season proper, the performances of the Wisconsin team would have forced the mightiest intellect in the universe to admit his inability to explain them. The Badgers reversed the usual thing and played their best away from home; they defeated Chicago (and the Maroons had a title-claiming five) at Chicago; they lost to Indiana, the weakest team in the race, here, suffering a most humiliating trimming in the final game of the season.

Again, when the Wisconsin Squad was in probably the worst shape of the year, Iowa was defeated easily, 28 to 19, and Illinois was outplayed, even though the Badgers lost, 14 to 16. This was at the period when a last-minute shift in the lineup was required because of an injury to Bauer. The team looked good. Then came the next to last game of the season, just after Wisconsin had played its best basketball of the year and had beaten Chicago—and Iowa won, 29 to 27.

Perhaps it is best to forget the past season and look ahead. Of the 1919 team, only one man, Bauer, will be lost. Captain Zulfer, McIntosh, Fanning, Knapp, Pease, Weston, and Barlow will all be back. And with them, we hope, there will be this winter a host of former stars, among them George Carlson, captain-elect for 1916–17, Paulie Meyers, Maisel, Swinsen, Fladoes, and Hemming.

Review of the Season

Although no conference meet was held, whatever titular honors accrued to the cross-country season of 1918 undoubtedly belonged to the Wisconsin harriers, who proved their claim to being the best in the west by trouncing Minnesota, Chicago and Ames soundly and winning every meet entered. Chicago was defeated in a dual meet, and Minnesota and Ames were beaten in a triangular meet held at the close of the season.

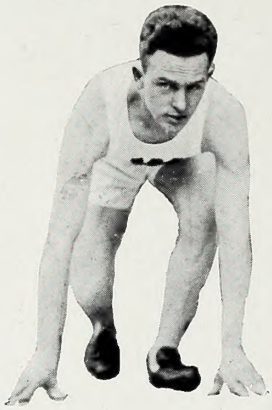

At that, the team was minus several men who had been counted upon to be back in school and to be members of the team, Captain-elect Dayton, Crump, O'Donnell, and Dennis entering service before the start of school. Meyers, another member of the 1917 squad, was in school but not able to compete, as were Ramsey and Nash, aWa men on the same squad.

The team had a good nucleus to start with, however, in Captain Elsom and Burr, a former "W" man in that sport. The new material showed capacity for rapid progress and interest in the sport was not affected to the extent that it suffered from lack of candidates as did football.

With ten veterans, Loomis, Anderson, Ramsay, Nash, Ramsey, Crump, O'Donnell, Meyers, Dennis and Dayton, who was chosen captain for the 1918 team but who enlisted before school opened last fall, back next season, as they probably will be, the greatest team in the history of the sport should be assured.

Wisconsin, unlike in other years, was entered in only one event, the two-mile relay, in which the Badger team, composed of Crump, Elsom, Ramsey, and Nash, took second place, forcing the winning Chicago team over the entire distance. The points scored in this event gave Wisconsin a tie for sixth place in the final ranking.

Chicago and Missouri divided honors at the meet, the Maroons scoring 10 points in the relays and Missouri 6. Scholz of Missouri won the special 100-yard dash.

Illinois Meet—Andrews Wins in High Hurdles

The 1918 Outdoor Track Team

Manager Hammond Edwards Gill Urech Hanson Spafford Coach Jones
Elsom Maleckar Captain Andrews Nash Crump Golden

War Takes Captains

For the first time in history, Wisconsin last year had three captains for one season in track, Jimmy Peterson, stellar dash man, had been chosen to lead the 1918 cinder and field performers, but enlisted just before the start of the indoor practice season, going to Great Lakes.

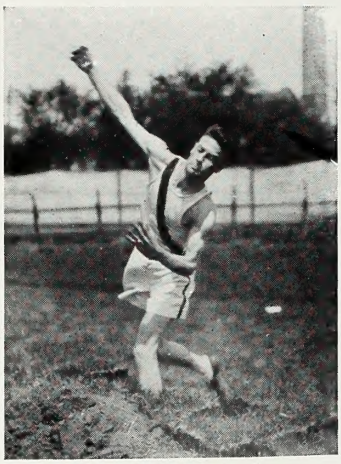

At a special election called by Coach Jones, in which all the track candidates participated because there were not enough "W" men in school to give the balloting a semblance of dignity, Harry Heintzen, veteran high hurdler, was chosen captain, adn acted as such all through the indoor schedule and well into the outdoor campaign. Then he was called to Pittsburg for special war work.

The mantle of leadership then descended on the shoulders of Irving Andrews, also a high hurdler, and "Andy," although momentarily expecting his application for enlistment to be accepted, continued in that role throughout the remaining few weeks of the season, competing in the last meet, the conference classic at Chicago, just before enterin an ensigns' school.

William Malecker, crack sprinter of the team, was chosen captain for 1919, but enlisted in the navy and was sti at Great Lakes when the first track men donned suits this year.

Review of the Season

The 1918 outdoor track season was just what it was expected to be, a year which would have contented many schools minus the imposing record in that sport which Wisconsin has maintained in recent years. It was a season unmarked by record-breaking performances, but one full of development of young candidates.

In the four dual meets of the year, with Ripon, Minnesota, Illinois and Chicago, the team showed its superiority in three, although Minnesota earned a technical victory after the Badgers had outclassed the Gophers over all the route. Illinois scored a clean-cut win over Wisconsin, its strength in the weights proving the undoing of the wearers of the Cardinal. Ripon was snowed-under, as was Chicago, while Minnesota's one-point victory was a result of a combination of "breaks" in the luck, all of which went against the Badgers.

Fifth place in the conference meet at Chicago rounded out what was a successful season, a season which had been classed as one certain not to be a championship one from the middle of the indoor schedule, when lack of veterans precluded any possibility of a team of stars.

The greatest strength of the team lay in its distance-runners, among the best in the west. It was woefully weak in the weight events, as it has been since the days when Arlie Mucks garnered his certain 15 points each meet. Most of the members of the squad were sophomores, so with the return of a majority of them and their consequent advances, a title-seeking team may be looked for in 1920. 1919 will probably be another season of development, as most of the members of the 1918 team are still in service or have been released too late to permit of their entering competition this year.

LA DANSE DE LA FONTAINE

A student artist's interpretation of a women's dancing class at Wisconsin. "Even the most colorful dancers appear 'glum gouache' with an unaesthetic background, or in the colorless gymnasium," says the artist. "But touch up the rhythm of the body with the rhythm of music and flexible imagery, and there flashes forth at once the charm of a summer night dancing for joy of the high season."

The Regimental Eagle

The Regimental Eagle was the only S. A. T. C. regimental magazine published in the United States. Three days after deciding to have a company weekly, the first issue of the Eagle appeared on the campus. The first issue was a magazine of 16 pages. The second issue contained 20 pages, with an abundance of cartoons and reading matter. The third and final issue appeared with a colored cover, and contained 32 pages. Two thousand copies of this issue were printed and sold.

With the demobilization of the S. A. T. C. the magazine automatically ceased publication.

The University Band

WILLIAM E. YATES . . . . . Conductor

Conditions were unusual this year with regard to the band and many obstacles hindered its progress. The first quarter a band was organized in the S. A. T. C. Its progress was slow because of the limited number of rehearsals. After the demobilization of the S. A. T. C. we were left without a band as only a few members returned. At the beginning of the second quarter a new band was organized. This band promises to be a first class organization in a short time. With the co-operation of all band men here in the University every effort will be used that the standard of the University bands may not be lowered.

Review of 1918-19 Forensics

The opening of the university year in the fall of 1918 found practically every star Wisconsin debater of the past two seasons in the service of his country. Most of them were commissioned officers. Two of them, Guy Black, '17, and Harold E. Kinne, '18, were killed in action.

Out of the chaos of the first quarter—the Student Army Training Corps, the joyful celebration of the armistice, and the return of many students who had rallied to the colors at the country's call—after this rapid turn in the tide of affairs, the university entered on the "after the war" period, and forensics revived with the opening of the second quarter in January 1919.

The First Annual All-Forensic mixer became a reality under the auspices of the Forensic Board at Lathrop Hall, Feb. 15. Members of the five literary societies, Athenae, Castalia, Hesperia, Philomathia, and Pythia, participated in the very successful event. One representative of each society made a short speech. Harold M. Groves, president of the Forensic Board, was chairman of the evening.

Warren

Fletcher G. Cohn, '20, of Athenae, won the final oratorical contest and the honor of representing Wisconsin in the Northern Oratorical League contest at Northwestern university in May. His oration was on "The Short Ballot." Keats S. Chu, '19, of Hesperia, was awarded second place with an oration on "China and the World Peace." Chu, who was elected president of Hesperia during the second quarter, is a member of Artus, honorary economics fraternity, and is also president of the Mid-West Chinese Students' association.

Marguerite L. Schulz, '21, of Pythia, and Charlotte J. Calvert, '21, of Castalia, were elected to represent their societies on the Forensic Board following long contemplated action by the board to provide for women representatives. Miss Schulz won first place in the sophomore oratorical contest, and Gladys E. Riggs, '20, of Castalia, was awarded first place in the junior open oratorical contest.

Hayden

Cohn

Chu

The Agricultural Literary Society reorganized and elected officers: Elmer R. Clark, '19 president; Hugo A. Stoltenberg, '19, vice-president; Nels T. Nelson, '19, secretary; Harold H. Cole, '20, treasurer; Bruce L. Carter, '20, sergeant-at-arms. Charles King, '20, was elected to the Forensic Board.

Athenae and Philomathia will meet this May in the annual joint debate which looms up as the biggest forensic event of the year. Government ownership of railroads is the question on which the Philomathian team will uphold the affirmative against Athenae's debaters on the negative. The scheduling of the intercollegiate debates, which had been cancelled because of the dreary outlook in the fall, met with so many obstacles that the attempt was given up.

The freshman oratorical contest, the joint debate, the Northern Oratorical League contest at Northwestern, the sophomore semi-public debates between Athenae, Hesperia, and Philomathia, and the annual Castalia-Hesperia and Pythia-Philomathia parties, in April and May, will mark the close of the 1918–19 forensic year.

The inter-literary society championship in debate and oratory will be decided by the outcome of the joint debate and the semi-publics. The winner of the joint will receive four points, the loser two. Each victorious team in the sophomore semi-publics receives one and one-half points. Athenae won the championship last year, and already has six points towards this year's honors; Hesperia has four, Philomathia none.

Schulz

Prospects for next year are hopeful. The Forensic Board is co-operating with Prof. J. M. O' Neill, chairman of the public speaking department, in efforts to arrange for several intercollegiate debates in 1920. The Regents' appropriation does not cover necessary expenses. Hesperia, this spring, will choose her joint debate team to meet the Athenae-Philomathia winner next fall. The oratorical contests will be held at the beginning of the second semester as in previous years.

All of the literary societies have been holding their regular weekly debating programs since the opening of the second quarter. An increased interest in forensics has swollen the membership of every society; the women have been granted representation on the Forensic Board; the Agricultural Literary Society has been reorganized; the first annual All-Forensic mixer has been held—everywhere there is an atmosphere of progress which predicts a banner forensic year for 1919–20.

Joint Debate

History of the Joint Debate

The '91 Badger printed in 1890 says of the joint debates:

"These contests are the pride of the institution, their participants the heroes of the college, the realization of the grandest possibilities attainable through service in the (literary) societies * * * each succeeding struggle confirms the truth that in the production of powerful debaters the University (of Wisconsin) stands foremost among the educational institutions of the country."

The first joint debate was held at the Chapel in 1867 between Hesperia and Athenae on the question of the constitutionality of the reconstruction bill of the 39th Congress. Hesperia upheld the negative and won the decision.

Burr W. Jones, Madison, Wis., widely known at present in the field of law, was one of the three members of Hesperia's winning team in the first joint debate. He was also on the Hesperian joint debate team which lost to Athenae in 1869. President Charles R. Van Hise of the University of Wisconsin, who died in the fall of 1918, was a member of the Athenaen joint debate team which defeated Hesperia in 1879. Francis E. McGovern, former Governor of Wisconsin, was on the Athenaen joint debate team which won from Hesperia in 1890.

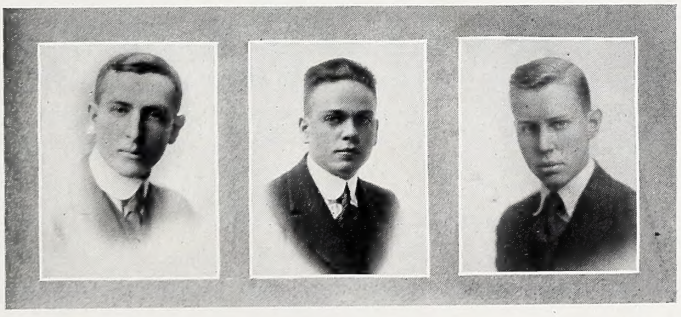

The late United States Senator William F. Vilas; ex-United States Senator John C. Spooner; the late John A. Aylward, United States District Attorney; Judge Evan A. Evans of the United States circuit court; Prof. Elmer Robinson of Leland-Stanford university; Dr. H. L. Smith and Professors Chester Lloyd Jones and Julius E. Olson of the University of Wisconsin, and many other prominent men served on joint debate teams.

Victory in the joint debate carries with it the debating championship of the university.

Athenae, Hesperia, Calliope, Lionia, Adelphia, and Philomathia are literary societies which have figured in joint debates.

There were no joint debates in 1870–71–72. The debate this year between Athenae and Philomathia will be the forty-eighth annual joint debate.

The joint debate has gained nation-wide prominence. Many of the debates have been printed and filed in the Historical Library.

Athenae's History

At the very beginning of the university, the need of a good literary society was felt, and, largely through the efforts of Prof. J. W. Sterling, Athenae was organized in 1850. Two years later it was incorporated under the laws of Wisconsin with Levi Booth, Charles T. Wakeley, George W. Stoner, D. K. Tenney, Francis A. Ogden, and George Woodward as charter members. Meetings were first held in North hall.

Athenae won every home, two state, and one inter-state contest during the time that the university was a member of the Inter-State Oratorical Association. The Hon. Robert M. La Follette, present senior United States Senator from Wisconsin, won the inter-state contest in 1879.

Since the first joint debate in 1867 between Anthenae and Hesperia, Athenae has won a good majority of the debating championships, which have been a source of friendly rivalry and the means of stimulating forensic activity.

Athenae is proud of her history in both war and peace. Her members came willingly to the nation's support in the Civil War and in the great World War just ended. Former president Charles R. Van Hise of the university, former Governor Francis E. McGovern of Wisconsin, Paul S. Reinsch, United States Minister to China, and a host of other prominent men were Athenaens.

Hesperia's History

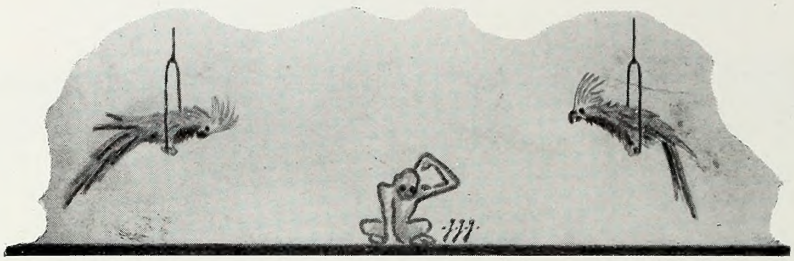

Hesperia was organized in 1853, three years after Athenae. A charter under the Wisconsin laws was secured the next year with R. W. Hanson, G. W. Perry, A. W. Lathrop, R. W. Hubbell, W. F. Vilas, T. D. Coryell, and S. W. Botkin as charter members. The first meeting was held in South Chapel, which was lighted by tallow candles.

"Magna Parens Virum" is the Hesperian motto which the members strive to verify in war and peace. Hesperian debaters won the judges' decision over Athenae in the first two joint debates held in 1867 and 1868. I. S. Leavitt, F. S. Stein, and B. W. Jones were the members of Hesperia's first joint team, which successfully upheld the negative on the question of the constitutionality of the reconstruction bill of the 39th Congress.

Hesperians are rightly proud of the excellent record of the society in war and peace—the Civil War and the World War, and the days of peace that intervened. Col. William F. Vilas, charter member of Hesperia, was a member of President Cleveland's cabinet. Former United States Senator J. C. Spooner was an Hesperian. Congressman E. E. Browne of Wisconsin, Prof. J. F. A. Pyre of the university, and prominent men in all walks of life are numbered among the alumni of Hesperia.

Guy Black, '17, closer of the Hesperian joint debate team which won the decision over Philomathia in 1917, was reported "killed in action" in France during the summer of 1918.

Keats S. Chu, '19, at present president of Hesperia, is one of the most brilliant Chinese students in America. He is a member of Artus, honorary economics fraternity, and is president of the Mid-West Chinese Students' association.

Philomathia's History

Young, self-reliant, persevering, and successful are epithets that Philomathians are proud to use in describing the merits of their society, which was founded in 1886 to meet the need of another active literary society which could provide more frequent opportunities for exercise in rhetorical work than could be obtained in the older and more crowded societies.

That they succeeded without any "banner high advanced" betokening them either great or the sons of great; without any catalogue of precedents or names of mighty alumni to stir them to exertion; with nothing to rely on for success but their own industry and perseverance, is the boast of every Philomathian.

Since being admitted to participation in forensic rivalry with Athenae and Hesperia—the youngest literary society, Philomathia, has proven her ability by winning many joint debates and several university championships in debate and oratory.

Her young alumni are beginning to take their places in responsible positions. Among these are Julius T. Dithmar, Assistant Attorney-General of Wisconsin; Ernest N. Warner, prominent Madison lawyer, and a host of others who cannot all be mentioned.

Gustave J. Wright, '15, Madison, Wis., who was a member of joint and inter-collegiate debating teams and Northern Oratorical League representative in 1915, is typical of the calibre of men that Philomathia is turning out for her country's service in war and peace. Wright gave up his life on a French battlefield during the summer of 1918.

Review of the Year

Americanization was the theme about which the work of Pythia centered this year. A certain portion of the time was set aside for the studies of the countries which have been sending immigrants to American shores in recent years. The home environment of Russian, Polish, Aremenian, Greek, Italian, and other incoming folk has been investigated in an attempt to arrive at a more complete understanding of the contribution they make to western civilization and of our problem in making them American citizens. Speeches were prepared from time to time which were adapted to various types of unassimilated Americans. The psychology of the immigrant was studied and practical methods of dealing with him as an individual were worked out. Original programs and debates dealing with problems arising within our national boundaries provided variety. Special features such as a pageant and the celebration of National Night have been provided.

While Pythia exists as a literary society, like every other organization, she has felt that her problems must deal with questions arising out of war and the period of reconstruction. Thus, while the program of Americanization appeared one of vital interest for the college woman to consider these days, yet the training in speaking and writing and thinking that should be developed by a literary society, has been obtained by the methods used in approaching these contemporary problems.

Pythia, this year, also originated a plan for a national federation of women's literary societies. The plan received enthusiastic endorsement by all the leading societies of the colleges of the country who find it desirable to affiliate for the discussion of problems and policies vital to their several interests.

The 1920 Junior Promenade was given in honor of Wisconsin's returning soldiers, and was known as the "Victory Prom and Homecoming." It was the first of the famous Wisconsin Proms held for two years,—the first post-war Prom—and with the beautiful state capitol building as the setting, was perhaps the greatest and gayest of social occasions Wisconsin has known.

For the first time, Prom-time was at Spring-time, the event being held during the latter part of April, and not during the middle of winter, as in previous years. Thus the occasion lent itself to the charms of "soft spring nights" and the youthful dancers, including the returning warriors, impressed with the fascination of a Homecoming Spring Prom, found in the 1920 Prom, for a time at least, what they had been yearning for—a return to the joy and youth of old Wisconsin.

"The Mound was named Muir Knoll in recognition of John Muir, who here first received that instruction which opened an acquaintance with hidden problems of the scientific world, the after pursuit of which brought such luster to his name.

"The Muir marker is directly at the roadside, perhaps 200 feet from North hall toward the lake, the Muir locust between."

Keystone

Keystone is a society composed of the presidents of women's recognized organizations. It originated the method of regulating women's activities by inaugurating the point system to abolish a monopoly by a few girls upon these activities. This organization also affords its members an opportunity to become more familiar with parliamentary procedure.

The Consumers' League of the University of Wisconsin was organized as a branch league of the National Consumers' League in 1909.

The aim of the National Consumers' League is to abolish child labor, unsafe and unsanitary work places, long hours for workers, and the sweat shop system.

A series of lectures by prominent workers and promoters of the National League has brought the aim of the League to the students and awakened an interest in the vital problems of the working world of today.

Wisconsin in the War

WISCONSIN'S war-time spirit is the theme which inspired the artist in the creation of this painting.

Wisconsin's Heroes, the gallant men who volunteered liberally and gladly are shown marching away from the great, white dome which stands for Wisconsin, the University of Wisconsin, and all of the great institutions of a great state.

Above the allegorical figure of Forward, the symbol of Wisconsin spirit, hovers a martial air-craft, and in the background is shown the outline of a battle-ship. On land and sea, and in the air, Wisconsin sent the flower of her manhood into the great struggle for democracy. Victory, with sword and laurel wreath, flies beside them—our boys, who have brought honor and glory to their Alma Mater, and a victorious peace to the world.

Wisconsin in the War

Wisconsin's Roll of Honor will forever remain her greatest heritage. On it stand imperishably inscribed the names of more than 4000 of her students and faculty who have answered the nation's call and enlisted in the fight for Liberty and Humanity.

Some have served in the ranks or on deck, some have played their part as officers, still others have kept turning the wheels of essential industries, but all have been inspired by the one great Ideal, and have bent their efforts unceasingly to the one common end — the vindication of Democracy.

One hundred of these valiant men sleep in foreign soil; as many are returning maimed or wounded; twenty-five are wearing military decorations. It is the spirit with which every Wisconsin man is imbued that has given this sityunivera place second to none in the war annals of the land.

DECORATED FOR VALOR

Decorated for Valor

Lieut. Arthur H. Alexander

Arthur H. Alexander, '14, Wellesley, Mass.

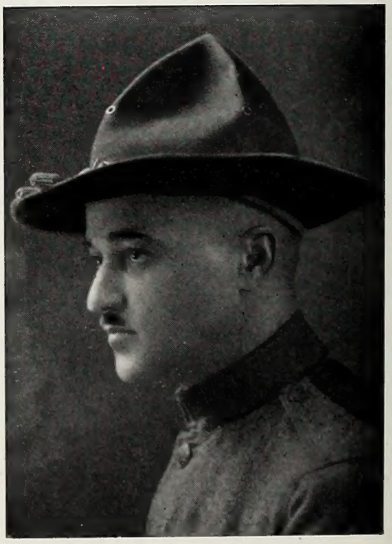

Lieutenant, Aviation

RECEIVED the Distinguished Service Cross for bravery while piloting his plane during an attack far behind the German lines. He was seriously wounded in the encounter, but he brought his wounded and unconscious observer back to the starting point 20 miles behind our lines, driving and safely landing his machine between fainting spells, as his comrades reported, then secured surgical attendance for all the other wounded members of the escadrille before he himself was attended to. After his recovery General Pershing selected him as one of six officers, one from each branch of the service, who had been conspicuously brave, to investigate instances of bravery and recommend awards.

Harlan R. Amen, '10, Clarinda, Iowa

Lieutenant, U. S. A. Ambulance

WAS awarded the Croix de Guerre in 1917 while commanding the 51st Ambulance Unit in Alsace. Amen enlisted in the S. U. I. Ambulance unit in June 1917. After completing his training at Allentown, Pennsylvania, he was made Sergeant-Major and sailed for France in January 1918. In July and August Lieutenant Amen attended non-commissioned officers' school near Paris where he received his commission.

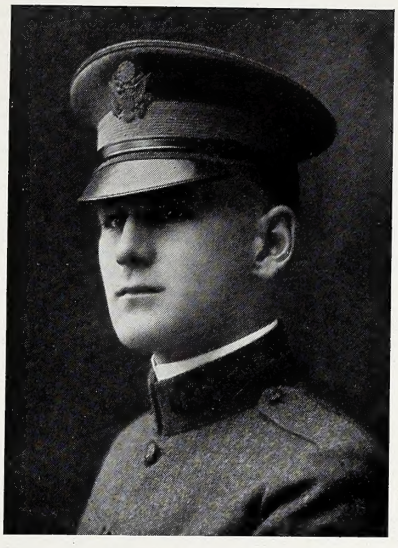

Lieut. Harlan R. Amen

Decorated for Valor

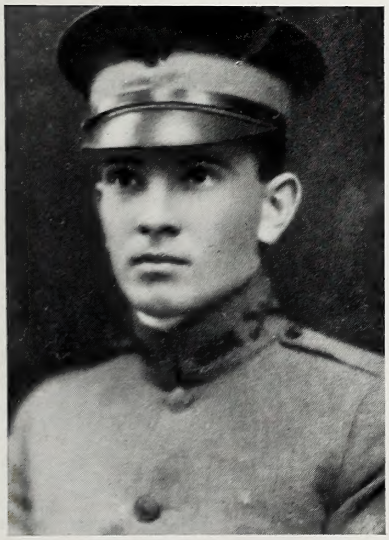

George Carey, '17, Beloit, Wis.

Lieutenant, 28th Infantry

PROBABLY no Wisconsin man has received as many citations as Lieutenant Carey. On August 2, 1918, he received the Croix de Guerre with palm at the Barrech Marech al Ney near Toul. Commander General Petain of the Tenth French Army signed the order for the decoration, citing his work at Berzy le Sec in the Second Battle of the Marne, July 18–23, 1918. Previous to Carey's award for gallantry he was cited by Major General Bullard, commanding the First American Division, for extreme bravery during the operations connected with the capture and defense of Cantigny, May 27–31, 1918. Lieutenant Carey seemed always to be placed where the fight was hottest for he again acquitted himself nobly in the terrific action at Soissons, July 18–23, 1918. For his heroism at that time Major General Summerall, who succeeded General Bullard as commander of the First Division, cited him for the third time.

Lieut. George Carey

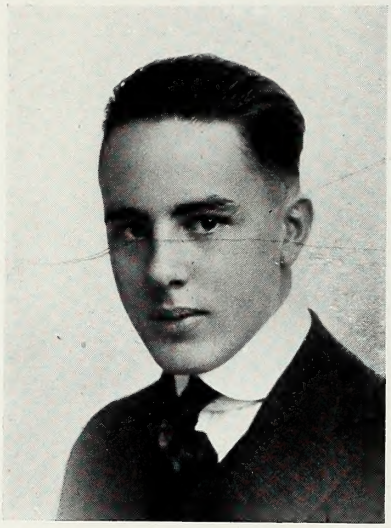

Lieut. John A. Commons

John A. Commons, '18, Madison, Wis.

Lieutenant, 339th Infantry

RECEIVED British Mlitary Cross for bravery shown in service in the Archangel district. Lieutenant Commons was one of the first Wisconsin men to go into training at Fort Sheridan in 1917. Sent to Camp Custer, Michigan, he joined the same regiment with a part of which he is now serving. During his period of training he became an expert in the Browning machine gun, and many of his exploits in Russia have been due to his adroitness and expertness in control of this weapon. On Sept. 7, 1918, he went to Russia and saw immediate service. Slightly wounded, he was sent to the hospital but was shortly again on the front. It was during the attack on Kadish that Lieutenant Commons won his decoration. After almost all his men had retreated under the heavy enemy fire, Lieutenant Commons with a fellow officer held his post, fighting stubbornly, and saved the day for the allied troops.

Decorated for Valor

Lieut. Harry W. Craig

Harry W. Craig, '19, Cleveland, Ohio

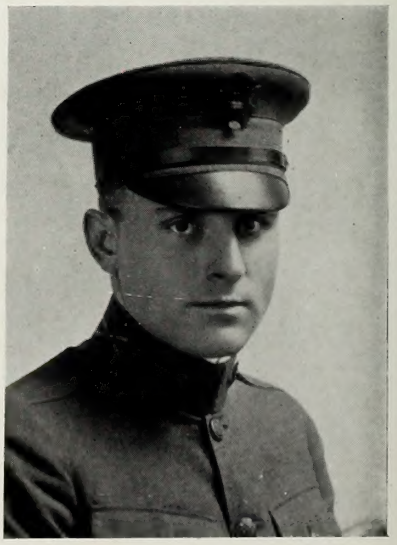

Lieutenant, Aviation

RECEIVED Croix de Guerre with palm for conspicuous bravery as an observer. While flying with the French army he flew far behind the German lines to get necessary information for artillery. During his return flight his plane flew directly over a German trench firing at the same time all his machine guns and severely crippling the German sector. One of the bravest feats of the war, his commander says. At this time he received the Croix de Guerre and was cited again shortly afterward for bravery during another flight. For this he received the Croix de Guerre with palm, but lost his life in the exploit.

Harry Dillon, '13, Mondovi, Wis.

Lieutenant, 26th Infantry, Co. C

LIEUTENANT DILLON was awarded the Croix de Guerre early in August, 1918. Prior to his award he was mentioned in General Orders twice for extraordinary bravery. He was first mentioned in General Orders No. 2, from 2nd Brigade Headquarters, dated Aug. 2, 1918, "for gallantry in action in the operations, July 18–23, 1918, near Soissons—showed unusual coolness in the final attack of his battalion when the left flank of his company was temporarily held up by heavy fire, directed a flanking movement that dislodged the enemy on the battalion front and was the first to storm and occupy the final regimental objective." He was later mentioned in General Orders 44, from Headquarters First Division, A. E. F., August 5, 1918, for "leading his men over the top four consecutive days and at all times displaying great coolness and daring. He took all objectives assigned him, and by his splendid example made the taking of the objective possible." It was this last exhibition of heroism which won him his cross. On October 2, while performing a difficult service, Lieutenant Dillon was struck and instantly killed by a piece of shrapnel.

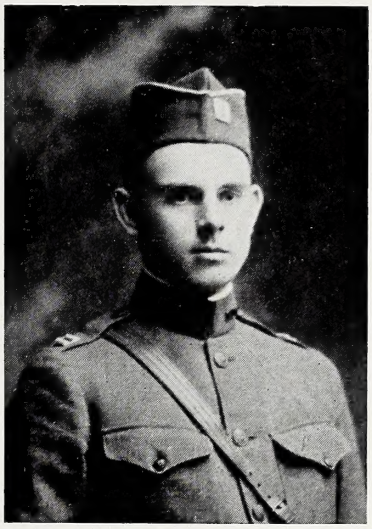

Lieut. Harry Dillon

Decorated for Valor

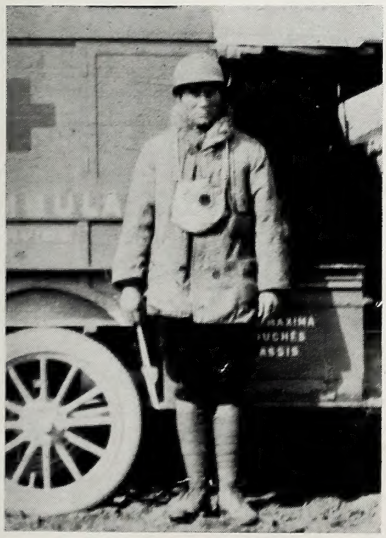

Starr S. Eaton, '17, Madison, Wis.

Captain, Company 1, 23rd Infantry

RECEIVED Distinguished Service Cross for bravery shown July 1, 1918. During the Battle of Vaux, when hard pressed by the enemy and support and reserves were kept back by enemy artillery, with a depleted company he held his section of the line for nearly twelve hours. During all this time he was a constant example of heroism to his men, sustaining them and urging them to greater bravery in the face of almost certain death. He was killed in action Sept. 14, 1918.

Capt. Starr S. Eaton

Capt. Lloyd M. Garner

Lloyd M. Garner, '17, Madison, Wis.

Captain, 17th F. A., U. S. A.

RECEIVED Distinguished Service Cross for bravery shown at Chateau Thierry in August, 1918. Garner has seen continuous service since he went to the Mexican border during the 1916 trouble. He served at that time with Company G, Wisconsin National Guard. After he returned he volunteered as an ambulance driver and was sent to France. After six months hard service in this work he was commissioned First Lieutenant in the 17th Field Artillery. During the terrific fighting at Soissons and Chateau Thierry, Captain Garner took an active and heroic part. His entire division was practically annihilated. As ranking officer of his regiment at one time he gallantly led his men against the outnumbering Huns, fighting night and day for nearly 72 hours. It was for the conspicuous bravery and coolness displayed at that time that Pershing awarded him the United States decoration. After his hard work he was sent home in September to instruct at Camp Lewis, and was awaiting orders overseas when the armistice was signed.

Decorated for Valor

Lieut. Cyrus J. Gatton

Cyrus J. Gatton, '18, Bozeman, Mont.

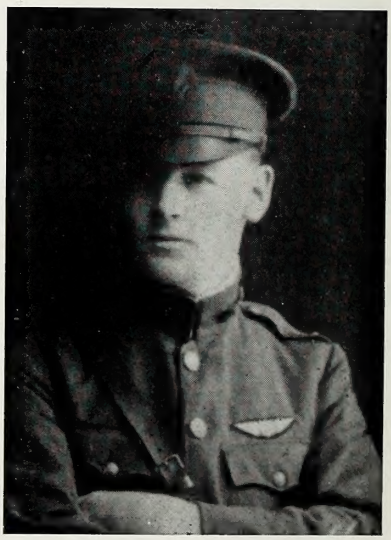

Lieutenant, American Pilot of Escadrille, Br. 127

LIEUTENANT GATTON was decorated with the French War Cross August 18, 1918. At that time he was serving with the French. His citation came as an order from Chief Commander Vuillemin. Gatton is described as an "excellent pilot, one who braves all hazard. Has never missed a bombing expedition since attached to the escadrille. Has on July 16 and 18, 1918, particularly distinguished himself at the time of bombing of the several passages of the Marne, also on the 9th, 10th, and 11th of August, during bombing expedition at very low altitude." Shortly after his exciting adventures with the French, Gatton was transferred to one of the American squadrons where his work was equally courageous.

Albert F. Gilmore, '19, Princeton, N. J.

Lieutenant, U. S. Aviation

RECEIVED Croix de Guerre for bravery displayed near Verdun. He was one of the first Wisconsin men to enter service. For six months he served with a French ambulance unit in and around beleagured Verdun. At one time he traversed steadily for 48 hours a shell swept road, narrowly escaping injury. Without food or sleep during that time his work of mercy continued until he was removed, exhausted. During the course of one of his trips he entered a field which was swept by enemy machine gun fire and without assistance took out several wounded French soldiers. For this valiant service he received his cross. After his term of service expired he reenlisted in the aviation corps and served for some time as a pilot until he was killed near Issodun in September 1918 while making a daring observation flight back of the American lines.

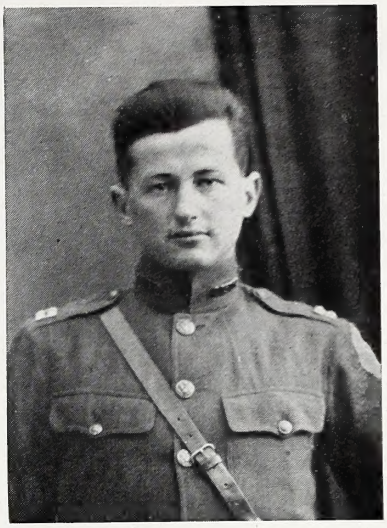

Lieut. Albert F. Gilmore

Decorated for Valor

Richard P. Hildreth, '15, Wheeling, W. Va.

Captain, 2d Division, 23rd Infantry

CAPTAIN HILDRETH, who was one of the first Wisconsin men commissioned and sent overseas, received the Distinguished Service Cross Nov. 3, 1918. Captain Hildreth holds a rather remarkable record for rapid promotion. Two weeks after he received his commission in the infantry he sailed for France—June 12, 1917, with the First Division, 28th Infantry. After a year with that division he was transferred to the Second, 23rd Infantry. After this his rise was rapid—promoted to First Lieutenant Sept. 12, and Captain, October 24. For his bravery during the severe battles just prior to the signing of the armistice General Pershing, for the United States, pinned on his breast the Distinguished Service Cross.

Capt. Richard P. Hildreth

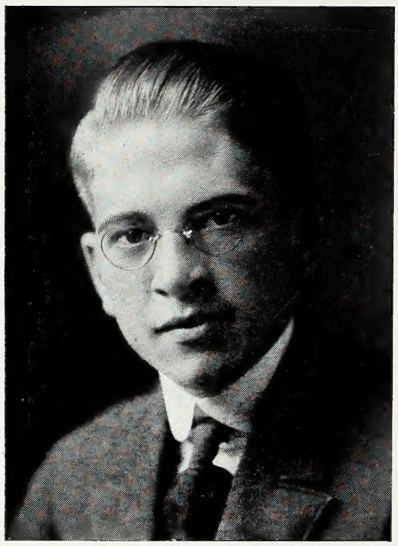

Lieut. Asher E. Kelty

Asher E. Kelty, '17, Rice Lake, Wis.

Lieutenant, 91st Aero Squadron

RECEIVED Distinguished Service Cross for bravery at time of death, Sept. 26, 1918. Kelty was distinguished as an excellent pilot, for the Hun found him impossible to engage in battle. He met his death while on an important photographic mission behind the German lines. He was flying near Crepion, when he was obliged to brave an enemy anti-aircraft barrage to accomplish his mission, for he realized that the success of the American troops depended upon his finding the artillery objectives. While heroically attempting the impossible a shell struck his machine, instantly killing his observer and crippling his motor so that he crashed to earth and was instantly killed in the fall.

Decorated for Valor

Lieut. Phil H. Lasher

Phil H. Lasher, '19, Elgin, Ill.

Sergeant, Medical Detachment, 129th Infantry

SERGEANT LASHER is one of those valiant spirits whose bravery consists of endangering all to help a fellow soldier out of danger. In a fierce battle in early September, 1918, the Americans were fighting along side of a company of English. The "Tommies" went over the top in spite of heavy enemy shell fire. Lasher saw one of them fall in a spot entirely unprotected from the terrific artillery fire. Observing that the fellow was not dead, Lasher left his trench and started out to help him. Oblivious of the shells which were falling around him faster every minute, he went out and ministered to the wounded Britisher. His commander recommended him for his decoration, particularly on account of this action, although his other services had been equally meritorious.

F. H. Lebert, New York, N. Y.

Interpreter

MR. LEBERT, formerly an instructor in the University, received the Croix de Guerre while serving as interpreter of prisoners under fire. For months during the worst fighting of the war Lebert served close to the front lines, usually in continual danger from enemy artillery fire. He is at present with the French High Commission, in Washington.

Gustaf H. Lindberg, '18, Takoma, Wash.

Lieutenant, Co. L. 363 Infantry, 91st Division

WAS decorated with the Belgian Croix de Guerre on December 17, 1918. The presentation was made by Lieutenant-General Bernheim of the Belgian army, in the name of King Albert, at Lovie Chateau, southeast of Proven. The citation reads: "For meritorious services in action during the Flanders offensive of October 31 to November 11, 1918." Lieutenant Lindberg saw much hard service and had many narrow escapes. Once a German bullet went through his helmet and graded his head but did not carry his 'name and number'."

Lieut. Gustaf H. Lindberg

Decorated for Valor

Casey V. Loomis, '19, Milwaukee, Wis.

Corporal, Machine Gun Co., 6th Reg. U. S. Marine Corps

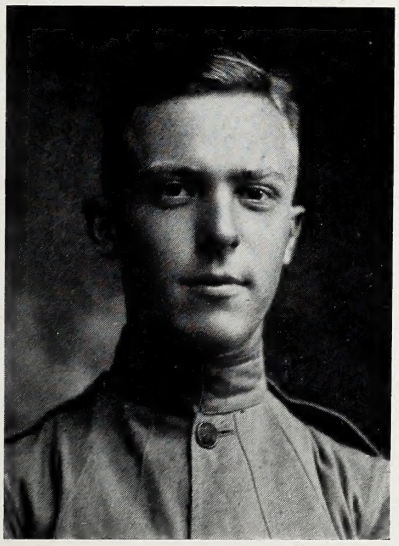

RECEIVED Distinguished Service Cross for heroism in St. Mihiel drive, Sept. 15, 1918. Loomis left the University shortly after the United States entered the war and enlisted in the Marine Corps in April 1917. He trained for three months at Paris Island, was moved to Quantico, and sailed for France in October 1917.

His official citation reads: "The Commamder-in-Chief in the name of the President has awarded the Distinguished Service Cross to Corporal Casey Vaughn Loomis, Machine Gun Co., 6th Reg. U. S. Marine Corps, for extraordinary heroism in action near Thiaucort, France, Sept. 15, 1918. During an enemy counter attack Corporal Loomis voluntarily left a sheltered position, and in entire disregard for his own safety, set up his gun in the open, under a heavy enemy fire. By securing enfilading fire on the advancing enemy, he broke up the counter attack within 100 yards of our line."

Corporal Loomis was at the front from March 5 to Nov. 11, 1918. He received a slight wound at the Argonne. At that time his regiment was decorated by the French with the Legion of Honor.

Corp. Casey V. Loomis

Corp. Frank A. McCoy

Frank A. McCoy, '16, Sterling, Ill.

Corporal, U. S. Marines

RECEIVED Croix de Guerre and Legion of Honor. No Wisconsin man has received higher honors than Corporal McCoy. During the fierce engagements at Belleau Wood and Chateau Thierry in which the Marines so distinguished themselves by turning the tide of the war and beating Germany back, McCoy was constantly in action. During those days he received not only the five citations necessary for the Croix de Guerre but also eight needed for the Legion of Honor. The two marine regiments which fought at Belleau Wood are the only soldiers of America to receive the Legion of Honor. During the fighting in which nearly every man engaged was killed or wounded McCoy was severely injured and forced to go to the rear.

Decorated for Valor

Lieut. Paton McGilvary

Paton McGilvary, '16, Madison, Wis.

Lieutenant, U. S. Aviation

LIEUTENANT McGILVARY is the only Wisconsin man who has been decorated by the Italian government for bravery during the war. For over a year McGilvary served with the American troops in Italy. During this time he made many flights over Austria, in bombing raids and as observer. His first decoration, in the form of the Croce de Guerra (the Italian cross of war), came after a successful observing flight over enemy territory, September 20, 1918. During one of the raids Lieutenant McGilvary accompanied the circus of which the famous poet and aviator Gabriel D'Annunzio was a member, and had a fierce encounter with enemy planes. During the November offensive McGilvary's bravery was again conspicuous, and he was awarded the Bronze Medal for Valor.

Ora R. McMurray, '19, Evansville, Wis.

Lieutenant, Aviation

RECEIVED Croix de Guerre for bravery in flying. McMurray was one of the first University of Wisconsin men to enter service, going over with the ambulance unit in January 1917. He saw violent and continuous service as an ambulance driver during his six months' service. After his term of service Lieutenant McMurray enlisted with the American army as a pilot. While flying with a French escadrille he was sent over with his observer to spot enemy positions far back of the lines. Four Fokkers attacked him and he succeeded in driving them all off, after crippling two machines. On his return he flew immediately over an advancing column of artillery and despite enemy anti-aircraft fire succeeded in seriously disabling this new force with his machine guns. In flying back he was slightly wounded. The French government awarded him the Croix de Guerre for bravery shown on this and other similar occasions.

Lieut. Ora R. McMurray

Decorated for Valor

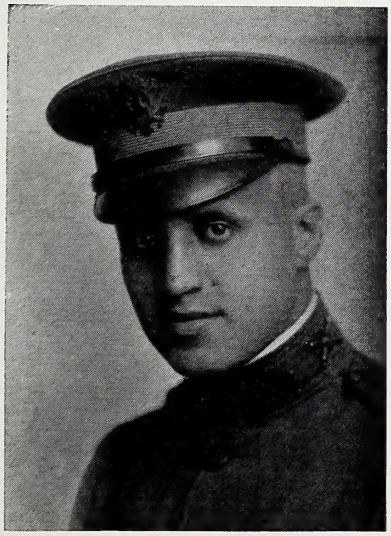

George B. Noble, '14, Madison, Wis.

Lieutenant, 168th Infantry, 42nd Division

RECEIVED Distinguished Service Cross for bravery in action July 28. During the Allied drive in which the Germans were pushed beyond the Vesle, Lieutenant Noble was severely wounded. In spite of the dangerous and painful injury he remained with his platoon in the midst of constant and severe action throughout the day until forced by loss of blood to stop. Like many other Wisconsin heroes he wrote back, "I did nothing at all wonderful." But in spite of his protestation, his major gave him a high recommendation as one of the bravest men in his command. He was later killed in action.

Lieut. George B. Noble

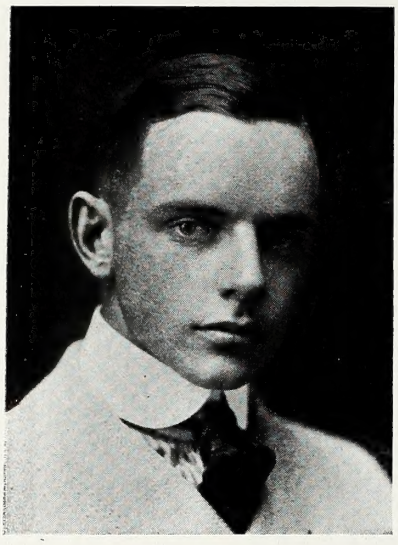

Capt. Paul D. Meyers

Paul D. Meyers, '18, Milwaukee, Wis.

Captain, Observer, American Escadrille

RECEIVED Croix de Guerre for bravery in the drive to Appermount, on May 13, 1918. General Passaga, commanding the 32nd Army Corps, cites Meyers in his order of the day. "On April 12, 1918, intrusted by the command with an urgent mission, he did not hesitate to cross the lines at a low altitude of 300 meters, despite unfavorable atmospheric conditions, and to execute the required reconnaissance under violent machine gun and rifle fire." Lieutenant Meyers is one of only two or three Wisconsin aviators who have received the Croix de Guerre for heroism. Lieutenant Meyers was one of the best football captains who ever wore the "W." He recently wrote back: "I'm coming back for one more good year of athletics at Wisconsin." We are waiting for him.

Decorated for Valor

Lieut. Gordon B. Reese

Gordon B. Reese, '18, Milford, N. H.

Lieutenant, Infantry

RECEIVED Distinguished Service Cross for actions during operations of Oct. 14, 1918. Lieutenant Reese is the only Wisconsin man to have received a decoration for bravery in Russia. During the fighting with the bolsheviki along the Vologda railroad he "reconnoitered enemy positions and brought back more useful information which was greatly instrumental in the success of the operations on October 14." Again in the same recommendation for award, the commanding officer states that "Since joining the column Lieutenant Reese had frequently shown great daring, loyalty, pertinacity, and devotion, and had given a fine example to his troops."

Arthur H. Robinson, '17, Madison, Wis.

Lieutenant, Infantry

RECEIVED Distinguished Service Cross for gallantry and heroism displayed under fire near Ville Savoye on the north side of the Vesle River on August 22, 1918. "Screened by the smoke of a heavy barrage and the dense fog, the enemy had pushed forward a machine gun to within thirty yards of the right flank of Company 'K.' As the fog lifted, this gun opened a deadly flanking fire upon the entire company, causing many casualties. Lieutenant Robinson attacked the machine gun and by skillful bombing dispersed the members of the crew. Rushing forward under heavy fire he turned the gun around and opened a flanking fire upon the advancing enemy infantry. By his prompt and heroic action this officer not only caused many casualties among the enemy, but succeeded in breaking up a counter attack which threatened his company's position seriously."

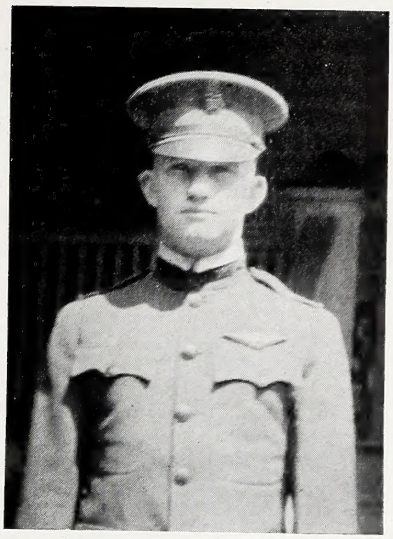

Lieut. Arthur H. Robinson

Decorated for Valor

Richard Wilson Steele, '20, Oak, Park, Ill.

Lieutenant, Observer 166th Aero Squadron

LIEUTENANT STEEL was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for great valor in action near Bois D'Barricourt, France, October 23, 1918. While on a bombing raid back of the German lines, Lieutenant Steele accompanied by his pilot was attacked by six German pursuit planes, and the enemy began riddling their plane with machine gun fire. Lieutenant Steele fought them on all sides and is credited by members of the Eleventh Aero Squadron who were flying over him several thousand feet with having brought down one of his opponents. He was wounded twice in the leg and twice in the arm but in spite of great physical agony he continued fighting. Each time he was hit he was knocked down into the observer's cockpit. At last, however, only his tail gun was in working condition, the other two being hopelessly disabled by machine gun bullets, and Lieutenant Steele sank unconscious into the cockpit. Steele, a junior in Letters and Science, re-entered the University in April, 1919.

Lieut. Richard W. Steele

Lieut. Edward C. Twitche

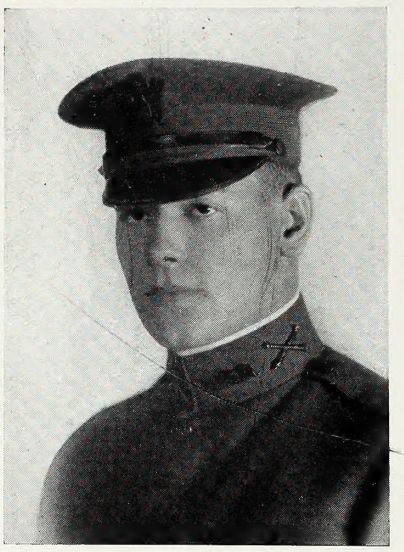

Edward C. Twitchell, '13, Madison, Wis.

Lieutenant, Artillery

IN March, 1917, before the United States entered the war, Lieutenant Edward Twitchell enlisted for six months' service, without pay, with the Norton-Harjes Ambulance Corps. The Corps saw almost continuous service at the front during the German drives of 1917, working constantly under fire. At the close of his service Lieutenant Twitchell was cited and decorated with the Croix de Guerre as a tribute to "his valor under all circumstances and his unfailing loyalty." This in itself is a proud record.

But feeling that he wanted to again give all for the Allied cause, he enlisted as a private in the Sixth Field Artillery, A. E. F., in October, 1917. After two months training he was made a corporal and sent to the front. On March 13, 1918, he was severely gassed. After his dismissal from the hospital he was one of four men from his battery to be sent to the officers' training camp at Saumur, on the Loire, one of Napoleon's old Cavalry Schools. After a three months' course he was commissioned Second Lieutenant and three weeks later promoted to First Lieutenant. He was assigned to the 107th Regiment, 53rd Brigade, Pennsylvania Guards, and sent again to the front. At the Ourcq he was detached, and later sent to the United States. He was stationed at Camp McClellan, Alabama, as Operations Officer when the armistice was signed.

Lieut. A. Mortimer Van Ostrand

A. Mortimer Van Ostrand, '16, Madison, Wis.

Lieutenant, 103rd Field Artillery

LIEUTENANT VAN OSTRAND was cited for bravery in action on June 19, 1918. During this engagement he was severely gassed and was forced to spend several months in a hospital. Van Ostrand received his commission at Presidio, San Francisco, in 1917, went overseas in January, 1918, and saw active service continuously until he was wounded. The division commander cited him as follows: "On June 19, 1918, during a heavy bombardment by the enemy on position 413, Toul sector, First Lieutenant A. M. Van Ostrand, 103rd F. A., exposed himself to this intense fire to assist two men from an ambulance which had been hit and was still under fire, becoming severely gassed himself on this occasion. The division commander congratulates this officer on his gallantry and self-sacrifice." Since his recovery Lieutenant Van Ostrand has acted as instructor in the Artillery School at Saumur.

Randolph L. Wadsworth, '17, Ft. Thomas, Ky.

Captain, Fifth Field Artillery

CAPTAIN "DUCKY" WADSWORTH, Editor of the 1917 Badger, survived nineteen months of active fighting overseas and came through without a scratch, and with both the French and Belgian Croix de Guerres as envious mementos of the long service. Captain Wadsworth had charge of a battery of regulars and was under fire at Chateau Thierry, Argonne Forest, St. Mihiel and Soissons. He entered the First Officers' Training Camp at Fort Sheridan in 1917, and was selected for overseas service immediately after he was commissioned.

Captain Randolph L. Wadsworth

Decorated for Valor

Donald W. White, '18, Manitowoc, Wis.

Lieutenant, 23rd Infantry

LIEUTENANT WHITE received the Distinguished Service Cross for heroism in action Nov. 11, 1918, the same action in which he lost his life. The recommendation to Congress came through General Pershing based upon the favorable reports of White's commanding officers. He was mentioned "for extraordinary heroism in action near Landres-et-St. Georges, France, Nov. 1, 1918. When the advance of his battalion was hindered by a strong enemy machine gun nest Lieutenant White led his platoon forward in an attack on the hostile position and was killed at the head of his platoon just before the last machine gun was put out of action."

Lieut. Donald W. White

Major Lemuel A. Wilmot

Lemuel A. Wilmot, '14, Vancouver, B. C.

Major, 29th Vancouver Batt. 2nd Canadian E. F.

MAJOR WILMOT received the British Military Cross for valor shown in action January 29, 1916. Wilmot is probably the first Wisconsin man who saw active service, and doubtless the only one to have risen to such high rank in the Canadian army. He enlisted in 1915, and soon rose to the rank of Lieutenant. He was in charge of the scouts at that time of Tobin's Tigers, the famous crack Vancouver regiment. One night with two others he crawled across No Man's Land and cut the German wires. They stayed in this dangerous position three hours, knowing well that the least sound would mean immediate death. They attacked the trench, silenced the sentries, and bombed the dugout, capturing several prisoners and putting those who resisted to the bayonet. Lieutenant Wilmot was slightly wounded in the fracas. He continued in active service for over a year after his exploit for which he received his award. He was then sent home as a training officer and raised to Major's rank. Later he went to England and served as an important member of the Munitions Council.

Decorated for Valor

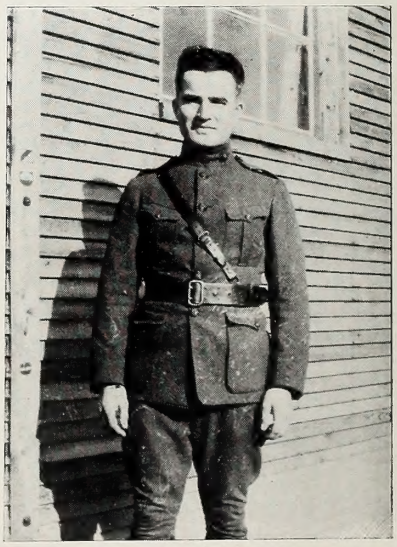

Lieut. Sol Wise

Sol Wise, '17, Cincinnati, Ohio
Lieutenant, American Observer Escadrille, No. 111

WAS awarded the Croix de Guerre on August 14, 1918, for bringing down a boche plane in the battle of Picardy. On August 11, Lieutenant Wise with other American aviators engaged in battle with Von Richtenhof's famous flying circus while making a bombing raid behind the German lines. "Vuillemin," commander of bombing squadron No. 12, cited Wise as "a calm and sure observer. He has taken part in some of the most difficult missions and has acquitted himself with intelligence, bravery and modesty." At the time Lieutenant Wise received his award, his Escarde received its third citation together with a flag bearing the Croix de Guerre with palm for conspicuously brave service. In the battle in which Wise was decorated his machine was struck four times by bullets from the Fokkers and the spots repaired by black crosses to mark enemy "hits."

Herman A. Zischke, '17, Horicon, Wis.
Captain, U. S. Marine Corps

CAPTAIN ZISCHKE, President of the Senior Class of 1917, was decorated with the Croix de Guerre, together with two sepecial citations from Marshal Petain for bravery displayed at Chateau Thierry in the attacks of June 7–13, and for "coolness and daring in taking machine gun nests with personal disregard of danger." A gold and silver star was set in the medal which was presented to Captain Zischke at the close of hostilities. Captain Zischke was one of ten honor graduates of Wisconsin given commissions in the U. S. Marine Corps at the outbreak of hostilities in 1917. He was immediately sent overseas and saw much active fighting with the Marines at Chateau Thierry where they covered themselves with glory.

Wisconsin's First Contribution to the War

The Famous Badger Ambulance Unit

Capt. Lloyd Garner, '18, in Charge of Repair Work on French Ambulances for the Front

One of the most interesting, but hitherto unpublished bits of Wisconsin's part in the World War, is that of her ambulance unit.

In early 1916 it became evident to people in Madison that the University should be represented in the work of mercy being done by Americans in France. Consequently Mrs. Robert Van Valzah, Mrs. A. L. P. Dennis, Mrs. Hobert S. Johnson, and Miss Mary Oakley, began to raise money to send some men to France. Their first move was to bring a special war movie here which served to raise the first money for the fund. Shortly afterwards these same ardent workers brough Maxim Gorky's son to Madison, Lieut. Zinovi Pzechkov, a member of the Foreign Legion touring the United States under French government auspices, to arouse interest in allied relief work. He gave a lecture in the Woman's Building which raised $100.

While the volunteer committee was debating what to do next to raise funds, Miss Belle Crowe, of the Irving, in November 1916 came forward with the munificent offer of sending two boys to France as ambulance drivers. This offer together with the money already raised served to send Healy Powell, Harry Craig, and Ray Williams to France early in January 1917.

An incident to show how true these first men were is that during action on March 19, Craig received orders to go into the woods just behind the French third line of trenches (the Germans had already captured the first and second). The woods were full of gas shells and the fighting was less than a quarter-mile away. Craig and three other men drove ambulances into the woods and for many hours continued to carry wounded out, constantly endangering their lives. After the expiration of this gallant Badger's term of service he returned as an aviator and was later killed while driving a bombing plane.

In the meantime Madison and University people were not idle. Mr. Barry Cerf and Mr. Eugene Byrne of the University formed a student committee of 20 men to raise enough to send a Ford ambulance and to maintain it as the University of Wisconsin contribution to the work of mercy.

While the student committee was busy canvassing for funds a town and faculty committee composed of Mrs. Hobart Johnson, Mrs. A. L. P. Dennis, Mr. Barry Cerf, Mrs. Robert Van Valzah, Miss Belle Crowe, and Mr. Eugene Byrne attempted to raise enough to send 20 Wisconsin men overseas. This combined with the student funds would pay to maintain a complete ambulance unit, which is composed of one ambulance and 20 men. The students succeeded in raising $800, three Madison alumni—Carl Hobart, Morris Johnson—gave $1,000, and lesser sums were contributed.

These funds were sufficient to send eleven men chosen from over fifty applicants, many of whom had tp partially pay their own expenses. These men were Ora McMurray of Madison, who later received the Croix de Guerre, Albert Gilmore, later killed in action, Leslie Rowley, who received Croix de Guerre, Lloyd Garner, another recipient of the French War Cross, Stephenson P. Lewis, also died in action, Ivan Fay of Evansville, J. A. Evans and A. R. Evans of La Crosse, Richard H. Stout of Indianapolis, Tom Hefferan, who was later killed in action, from Chicago, Gilman Blake and James F. Jenkins of Grand Rapids, Michigan, who went as hospital orderly.

In the summer of 1917 three more Wisconsin men went over as heavy ammunition truck drivers, paying all their own expenses. These men were all physically unfit for regular army service or were under draft age and did not want to be left out of the big work. They were Hugh F. Brown of St. Louis, Mo., Merrill M. Benson of Sterling, Ill., and Harry B. Haley of Madison.

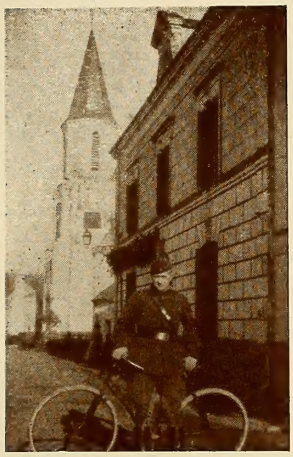

Shortly after this the Government took over all relief work as part of the American Red Cross and so closes a little known but interesting chapter of Wisconsin's share in making the world better.

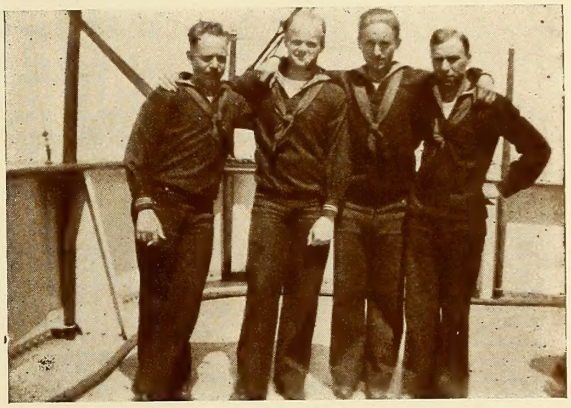

AT VERDUN IN '17—Stephenson P. Lewis, '17, is shown in the foreground before his hospital car, ten miles from Verdun, on the day American forces joined with the Allies. He entered the French service in 1916 and served as ambulance driver along the Marne. Later he was transferred to the American army, commissioned, and killed at Chateau Thierry.

A FIGHTING FAMILY—Judge E. B. Belden, '86 (center) and his two sons, Lieut. J. E. Belden, '17 (left) and Lieut. S. R. Belden, '17. Judge Belden served in the Y. M. C. A. as secretary in various cantonments for fifteen months, while his sons were assigned to infantry cam_s as drill instructors. All three are 32nd Degree Masons and members of Chi Psi.

THE CYCLER—Lieut. H. Stanley Wanzer, '17, before the post office in the little village of Raubolt, just west of Chateau Thierry, where he was billeted while awaiting orders to join a new unit preparing for the great advance of last July.

Wisconsin Battles the U-Boat Menace

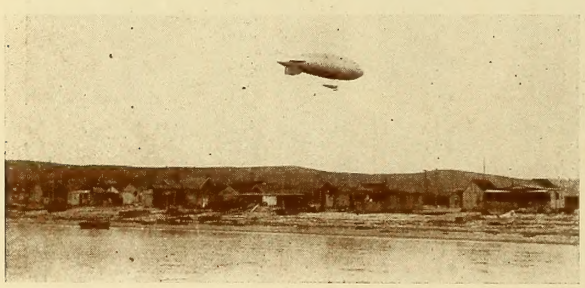

ANTI-SUBMARINE DEVICE EXPERTS—One of the most important scientific contributions to the winning of the war was the submarine detector invented and perfected by Professors Max Mason, J. R. Roebuck, and E. M. Terry of the physics department of the University of Wisconsin.

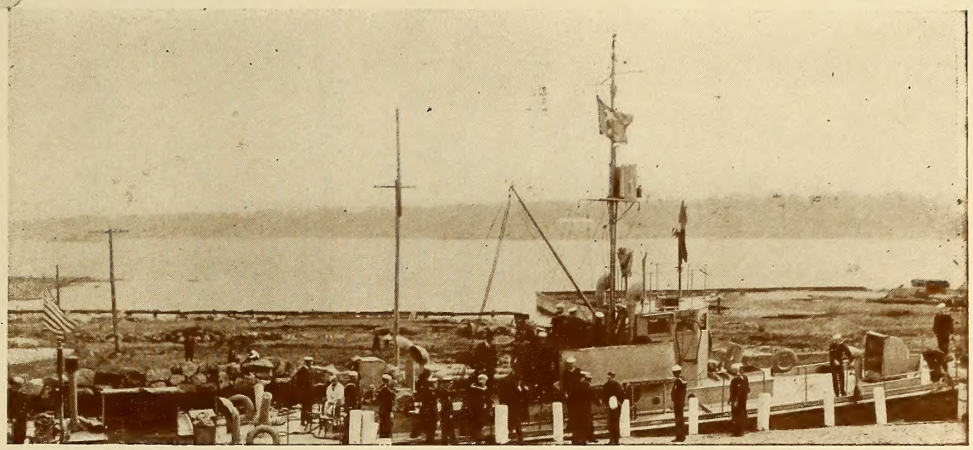

After a series of preliminary experiments conducted on Lake Mendota under the direction of the university had proved the success of the invention, it was officially adopted by the War Department and the scene of experimental operation was moved to the Naval Experiment Station at New London, Connecticut. There the device, the nature of which remains a government secret, was perfected and upon being employed on American and English transports, revolutionized submarine warfare. Not one of the vessels outfitted with the detector was sunk, and in nearly every case following warning received of the approaching enemy sub-sea boat, the latter was destroyed by means of depth bombs.

A SKY GUARD—The experimental work on the Wisconsin submarine detector was carried on from the group of buildings in the foreground. The entire area of the Naval Experimental Station was under martial law and no one without the highest credentials was permitted anywhere in the vicinity. Observers in balloons, like the one shown, kept watch of the sea coast to prevent any possible landing of spies on the water side.

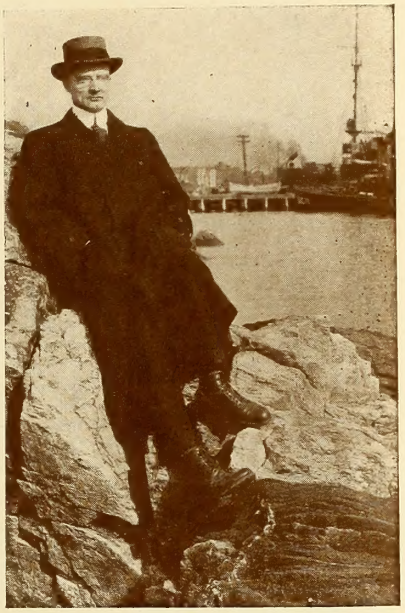

SECRETARY DANIELS STUDIES INVENTION — Just prior to the employing of the Wisconsin submarine detector on all American ships, the secretary of the navy and his staff of experts studied the device at the Naval Experiment Station. They are shown in the picture landing from a submarine chaser flying the flag of the Secretary of the Navy. Secretary Daniels, Thomas A. Edison, Lieutenant Spafford, and the five University of Wisconsin faculty members in charge of the demonstration are in the foreground.

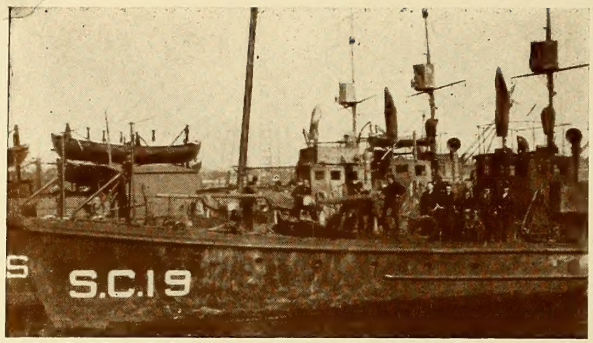

THE U. S. S. THETIS CAMOUFLAGED—Was employed as the ship on which the submarine attacks were to be made. It was the first merchant ship to be outfitted with the Wisconsin submarine detector, and in the experiments was used in conjunction with the submarine and submarine chaser shown in the other pictures.

READY FOR AN ATTACK — The American submarine "H1" used in connection with the test work on the Wisconsin submarine detector at the Naval Experiment Station, New London, Conn. This under-sea boat "attacked" the "Thetis" and was itself "endangered" by the chaser "19."

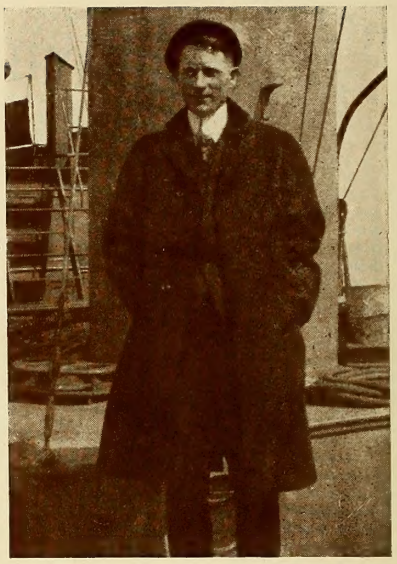

WILLIAM H. DABNEY — Superintendent of the University engineering shops from 1907 to 1917, served as general supervisor of construction and installation of the Wisconsin submarine detector at the Naval Experimental Station. He is here shown with two small American submarines used to "attack" the "Thetis" docked in the background.

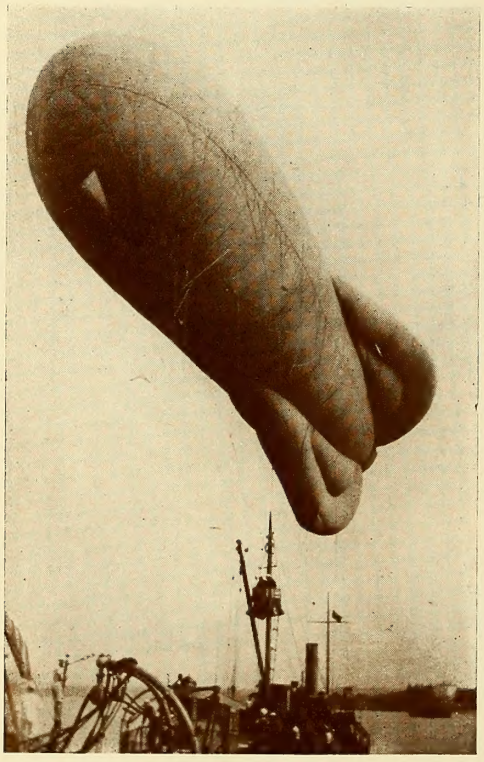

S. C. 19.—Submarine chaser 19, shown here, was the first vessel of its kind to be outfitted with the detector. It was used in tryouts held along the Maine coast. Sturdy boats and sturdy lads. They have to be to stand the racket.

The picture to the right shows Prof. Frank Gray on board the U. S. S. Thetis while the latter was being approached by the submarine "H1" for an "attack." At the time the picture was taken, the submarine was more than ten miles away, but warning of its presence had been received half an hour before.

Prof. Frank Gray

A "SAUSAGE"—Transferring commander from "sausage" balloon to S S Gloucester. Lieut. Kenneth F. Whitcomb, '18, pilot.

MUSTARD GAS, I SAY!—Capt. V. L. Bohnson, '13, arguing with a fellow officer of the Gas Service over the fine points of a western front attack just being launched by the enemy.

BOUND FOR BAGDAD—The front figure in this group is W. R. Boyd, '18, who spent fifteen months in Egypt and Palestine in English army Y. M. C. A. service before America entered the war. This picture shows a portable movie show being transported across the Mesapotamian desert.

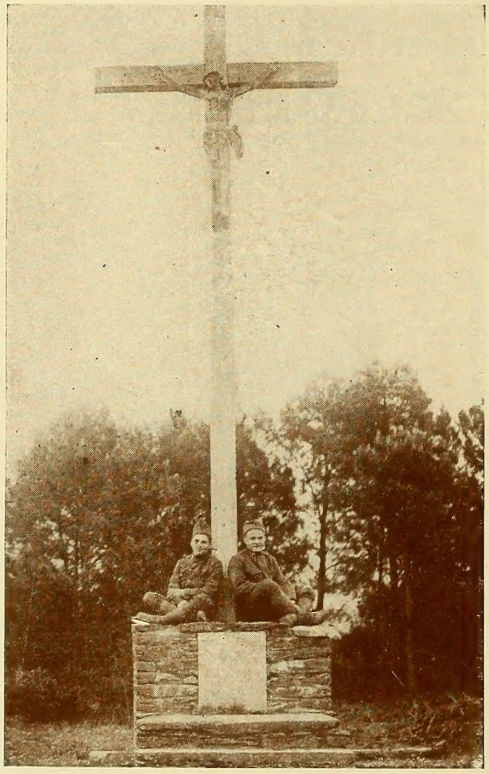

ENEMY SPOILS—A captured German "105" rifle and musket. Abandoned by the enemy in the great retreat forty miles east of Verdun. Lieut. Carl Harper, '14, is bringing the musket home with him a as souvenir.

HUSKY A. E. F.r'S—Sergt. D. L. Dietz, '17, (left) and Sergt. A. M. Dunn, '20, being entertained at the home of a grain merchant, Dinard, France.

CAPTURED BOCHES—German prisoners under French guards, Soissons, September, 1918. Picture taken by Lieut. Harold Blommer, '15, attached to the French forces as interpreter.

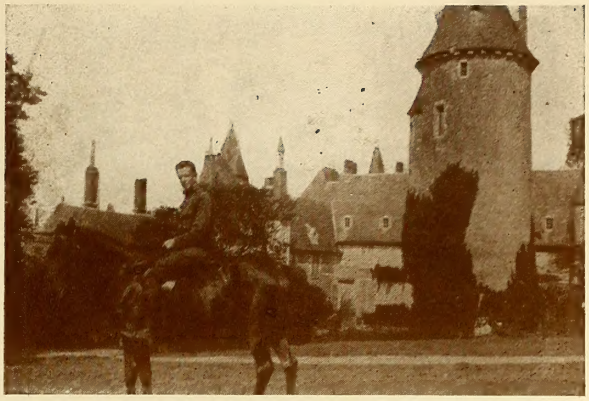

A WAY SIDE SHRINE — Crosses such as these are found at almost every intersection of roads in France. They typify the devout spirit of the French peasant, who pauses for a moment of prayer before each. Sergt. H. A. Edmonds, '14, and Sergt. Floyd C. Roth, '16, are seated at the base of this shrine near Moreau.

BACK WITH A SMILE—Lieut. Edgar A. Baird, '14, was engaged in almost continual fighting in the vicinity of Chateau Thierry from July to September, 1918. He is shown here on the day of his arrival at a rest camp. 75 miles behind the lines. Happy? Sure! Not a scratch!

A GUEST OF ROYALTY—Lieut. Kenneth W. Erickson,' 14, of the Field Artillery, was in active service near Chateau Thierry from July to October, 1918, after which he spent two weeks in southern France. This picture was taken in the gardens of the Prince of Monaco, who entertained groups of American officers.

THE HOME OF LAFAYETTE—Lieut. Kenneth Curtis, '18, of the Military Police, was billeted on the estate of France's great republican at Cosne for nearly a year. In peace times, thousands of visitors are received each season. Everything stands just as did during the French Revolution.

FUSSING IN FRANCE—Lieut. Clarance F. Watson, '10, (left) and Lieut. Edward Holmes, '11, spend a Sunday afternoon cycling through a Parisian park with two French teachers, graduates of the Sarbonne University.

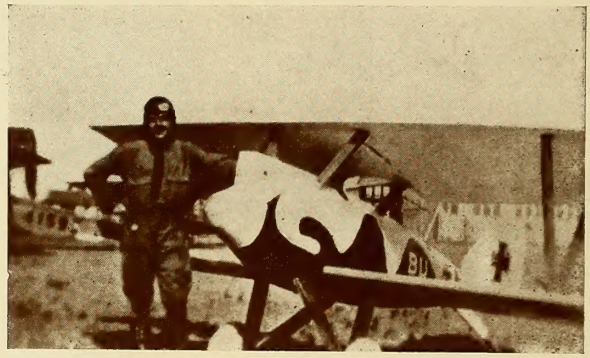

THE LUCKY THIRTEEN—A group of college men with the 20th Engineers. While all have been under heavy fire, not one has been injured. Top row: Herbert Ross,' 18, A. J. Brann, '18, H. J. Lonsdorff, '19, Henry McAdams, '19, Sidney Thompson, '17, Sergt. J. M. Hussey, '18; second row, from the University of Michigan; bottom row, from the University of Chicago.

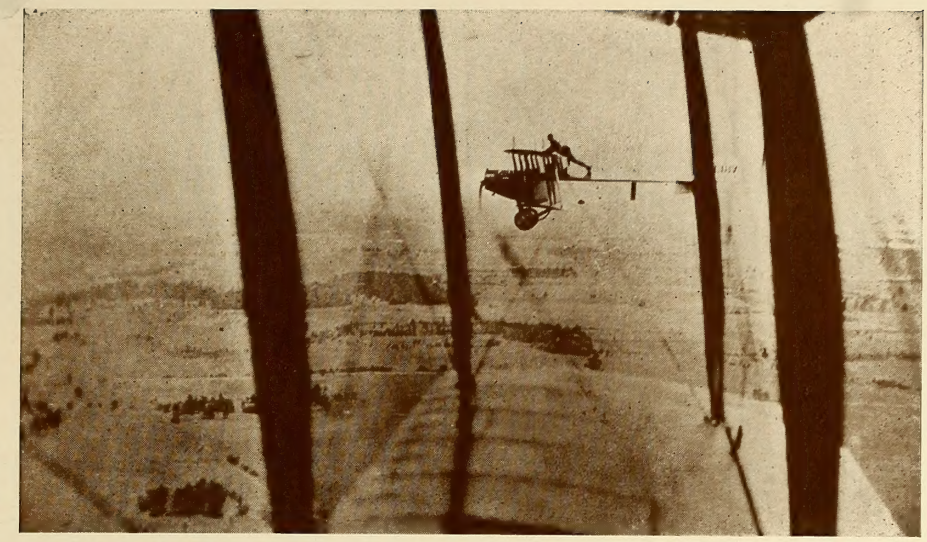

JUST A BIT OF JAZZ—Edwin R. Booth, '20, extreme right, helped to sweeten army life for the troops training in England. The other musicians are Harvard, Michigan, and North western college men. All six are now touring the country with the Victory Boys' Band.

A "TAUBE"—An enemy plane brought down on the Alsace front. These small airplanes move with terrific speed and are used in observation work, but are not constructed for fighting. The pilot is unable to defend himself from attack.

PINE ISLAND, CUBA—Louis A. Manthus, '16, of the Marine Corps, was garrisoned at a Cuban internment camp, where some hundreds of Teutons were kept as prisoners after attempting to stir up popular sentiment against the allied cause.

A DARING FEAT—Picture taken by a Badger aviator of a daring Canadian pilot performing for the birds at an altitude of 3,000 feet.

ROOM FOR ONE MORE!—Lieut. Clarence E. Rich, '17, always had an eye for the artistic, so trust him to pick out one of the most romantic and picturesque nooks in the Palace Garden, Versailles. But he wants company, for what's a romantic spot—alone?

TURNING THE "PROP"—Pilot "Bill" Reid, '18, about to "turn over the prop" for a friend going to take a joy ride among the clouds.

UNDER ARCTIC SKIES—Lieut. Gerold E. Luebben, '17, receiving the U. S. home guards at Fort Liscum, Alaska.

A COLD RECEPTION—Rollin C. Hawkes, '18, third from left, wears a pleasant smile in spite of the big blizzard which blew the transport on which he was bound for France 200 miles out of her course.

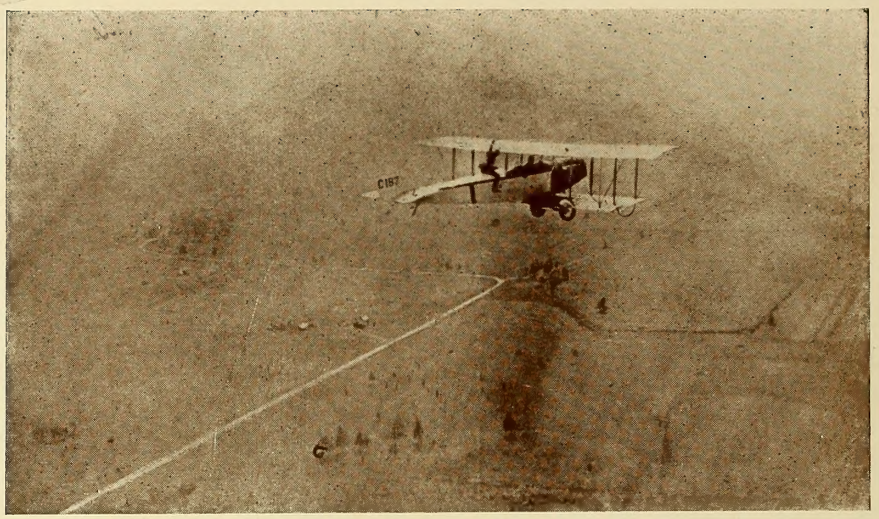

LET HER GO!—Lieut. Kenneth M. Kelley, '17, was trained at Scott Field, Illinois. Later he served as an instructor and exhibition flyer on various American fields. He has won several prizes for both speed and stunt work. He has just completed a tour of the country with the "Flying Circus" in the interests of the Victory Loan campaign.

A BADGER BALLOONIST—As a member of the air service, Major Alvin C. Reis, '13, was called upon to do observation work all along the western front from both airplanes and "soapbubbles" during his ten months of active overseas work. From the balloon here shown, he directed the artillery fire which destroyed an enemy ammunition base in the Verdun sector.

A VETERAN OF CHATEAU THIERRY—Lieutenant Vernon C. Quigley, '19, of the Trench Mortar Battery, was in front line trenches for nine months, in the thick of the fighting, but escaped without wounds.

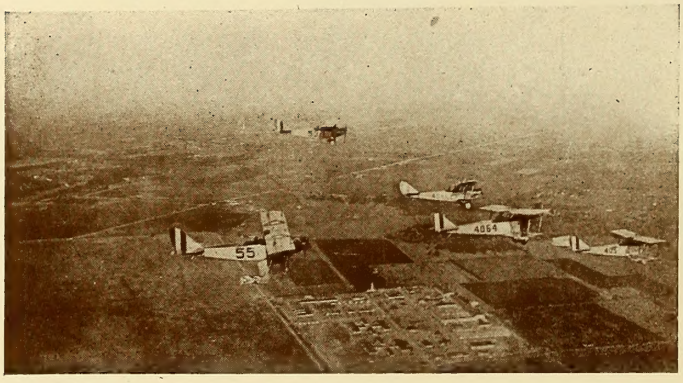

THE "DEVIL CANUCK"—Picture by Wisconsin aviator at Taliaferro Field, showing daredevil Canadian "taking an airing" on the body of an English plane at an altitude of 7,500 feet.

FROM THE HEIGHTS—Bird's-eye view of a French city taken from a height of 2,000 feet. Badger bird man "jazzing around" in the foreground. Name withheld by request.

RACING HOME—This photo taken by a Badger airman at Taliaferro, Field, Texas, shows the "birds" in flying formation racing back to camp after an hour's spin in the clouds.

"THE POPOTE"—A party of allied country officers enjoying an outdoor dinner in the Parc d'America, Paris, in celebration of Bastile Day. Veterans of Verdun, Liege, Brussels, the Marne, and Pavia were present. Lieut. Frederick Pfister, '15, is seated at the end of the farther side of the table.

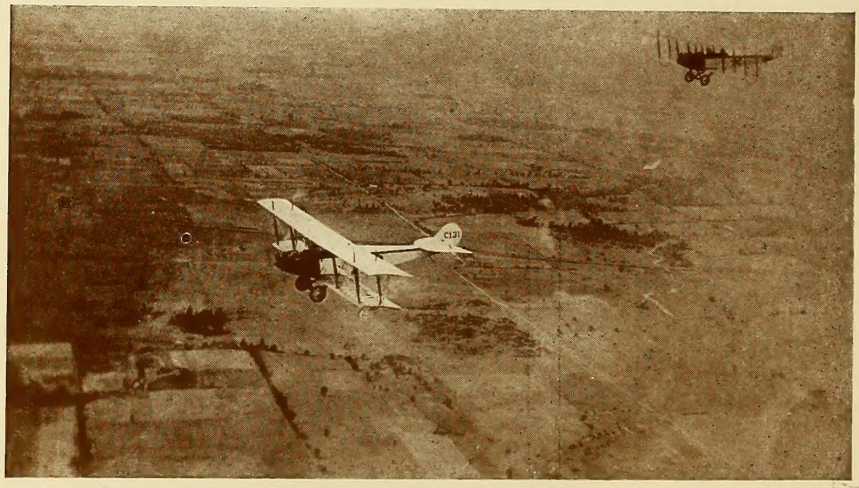

SOME CHICKEN, WHAT?—Members of A. E. F. were frequently billeted in small villages where few accommodations could be had. Consequently, anything that suggested shelter was pressed into service. Lieut. Harold Wengler, '17, was quartered in this chicken house with four fellow officers for eight weeks.

LES DEUX AMIS—Capt. James D. Basey, '15, and Lieut. James D. Boucher, '14, at Biarritz France, where the former was recovering from a serious gassing received in the Alsace-Lorraine sector seven months before.

NICE IS NICE—For a fellow to spend his furlough in, says Lieut. H. B. Heider, '15, but who wants to live there? Too many steep hills for one thing.

FLYING 6,000 FEET UP—This picture shows Canadian aviators in flying formation at a high altitude and gives an excellent bird's-eye view of the beautiful Texas scenery. Many Badger aviators were trained at Texas flying fields.

WHAT WAS VERDUN—Few cities in the war zone suffered so much devastation during the past five years as did Verdun. In the path of two fires, what was one of France's fairest cities, is today nothing but a mass of tumbled stone. This street, Rue Joan d'Arc, was formerly lined with magnificent dwelling houses and public buildings. The battered walls, the appearance of the lawns, and the picket wire are indicative of the condition in which the whole city now stands. Major Alvin C. Reis, '13, is shown in the foreground.

Freak Crashes!

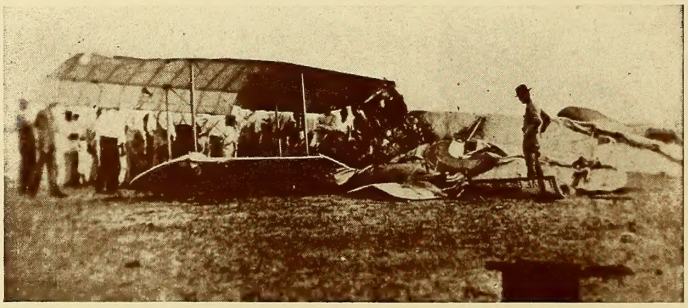

From Flying Experiences of Badger Aviators

A MIRACULOUS ESCAPE—Remains of a scout plane following fall of 4,000 feet in a tail spin. The pilot, Lieutenant William Reid, '19, was unscathed—a miracle of the air game.

THE SMASH-UP—A disastrous crash at Love Field, Texas.

More Crashes

JUST DROPPED IN—Lieutenant "Bill" Reid, '19, flies into barracks with his sky ship in an attempt to find the shortest way home. He did.

NOSE OF SAME SHIP — As seen inside of the barracks.

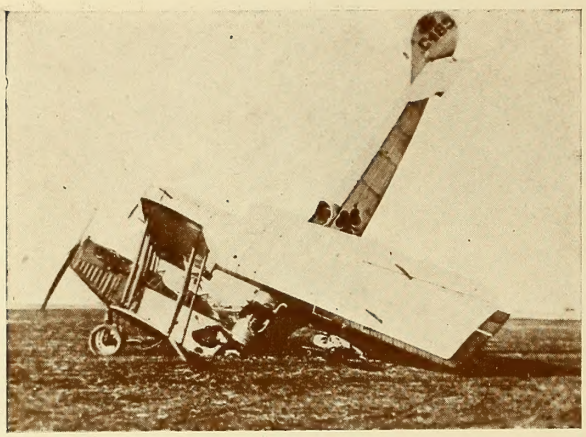

CASUALTY — The passing of a "tailspin" and its results—one fatality. Photo by Lieut. "Bill" Reid, '19.

WRECKAGE— Picture of a fatal crash at Love Field, Texas. Taken by Lieut. S. H. Harrison, '13.

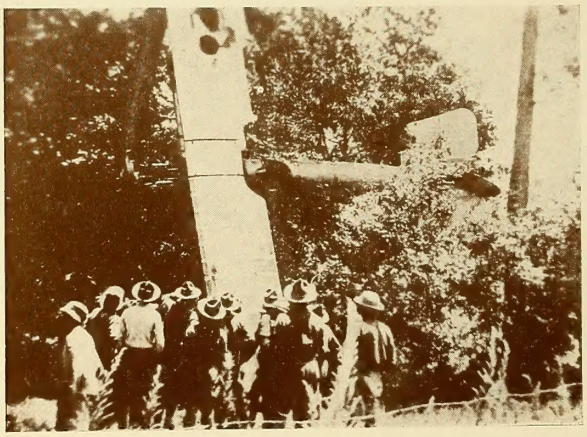

Going Up and Coming Down

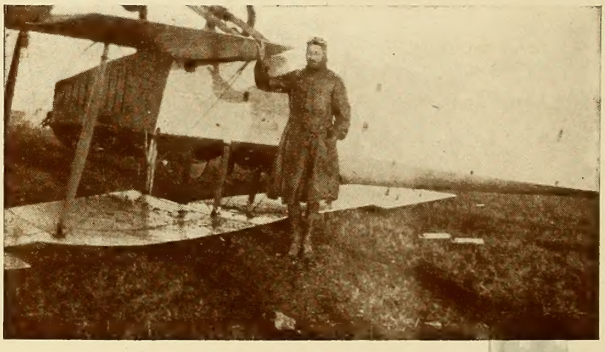

CUTTING HER TAIL OFF—Crash at Taliaferro Field Texas. No fatalities.

GOING UP!—Lieut. George M. Chritzman, '16, at Kelley Field. After completing his training, he served as bomber near Verdun, and aided in destroying an enemy ammunition base there. He is now employed in the aerial mail service between New York and Washington.

A MIRACLE—Snap taken of a Wisconsin man's plane taken after a forced landing sidewise in the heather. No casualty.

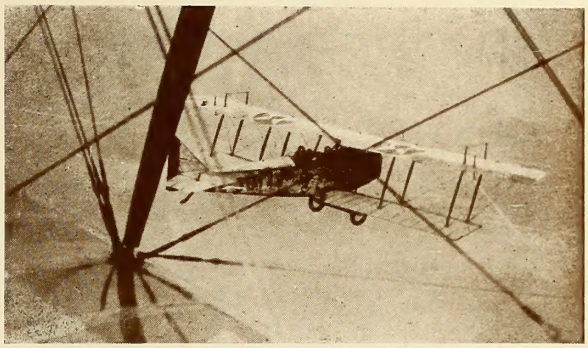

UPSIDE DOWN—Lieut. S. H. Harrison, 13, experiments with new landings. He has just landed, upside down but unhurt, and is waiting for the wrecking crew.

Stunts Above the Clouds

NO TRAFFIC COPS—Lieut. Wm. H. E. Reid, '18, looping the loop at a height of 8,000 feet. Lieut. Reid discharged from service, is now a senior in the Ag school.

FORMATION FLYING—Part of the tactics at Ellington Field, which Lieut. David Mossis, '16, claims he thoroughly enjoyed.

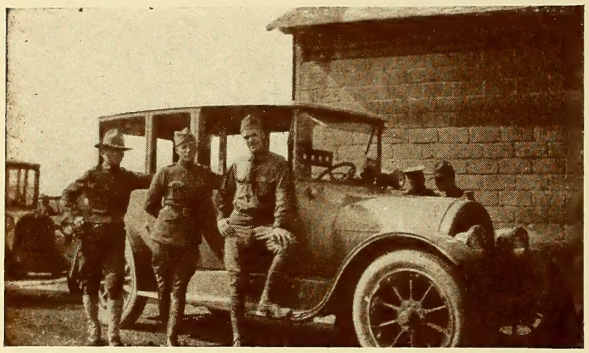

HOBNOBBING WITH ROYALTY—Burdette I. Kinne, of the Romance Languages Department, is an attache at the American Legation at Berne. In off hours he spends his time making the acquaintance of exiled nobility who may be straying about. He is here shown with Prince Pierre Boycoyans, grandson of the former Prime Minister of Roumania. Burdette says that he "likes the kid."

LOOK OUT BELOW—Truck train passing through St. Voe, France. Taken by a Wisconsin aviator from his plane at an altitude of 5,000 feet.

OH, FRENCHY, FRENCHY!—They're all fine fellows, these brother-republic lieutenants and captains, says Lieut. Frederick Pfister, '15 (last man, front row), but their language is so queer 'n all that! Still, one can have great times with them. Taken in Parc d'America, Paris.

PERSHING'S CHAFFEUR—Upon his arrival overseas, Sergt. Sherman M. Sykes, '19 (right) was detailed as chaffeur to America's Commander in Chief. The four stars on the windshield signify that the car is General Pershing's. Sergt. Sykes was drum major of the University Band when attending Wisconsin.

VICTORS IN FRANCE—General Rebault of the second French army, his staff officers, and Major Howard Frocher of the American army, congratulating the winners of the athletic events of a field day staged at the American officers' training camp in the suburbs of Paris, on July 4, 1918. Lieut. Harlan Amen, '10, fifth from the left, was winner of the cross country run. Six weeks later, he was awarded the Croix de Guerre for bravery at Chateau Thierry.

CERTAINLY I LOOP!—Lieut. Herbert Mahler, '17, instructor at Kelley Field, won an enviable record as a "stunt flyer."

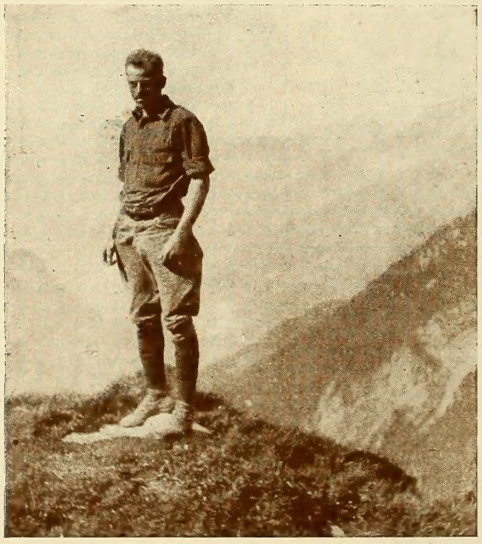

BOUND FOR BRUSSELS—After the signing of the armistice, letters of congratulation were written by American officers of the first army to the authorities in the Belgian capital and dispatched there by airplane. Major A. C. Reis, '13, is here shown in his machine, making preparations for such a flight.

NOW FOR BERLIN!—L. S. Clark, '17, with the army of occupation in Trier, Germany, says that he is taking this Royal Prussian Artillery helmet eastward with him and that he will wear it during the triumphal march up Unter den Linden. He took the tin hat from a Boche prisoner, captured at Verdun.

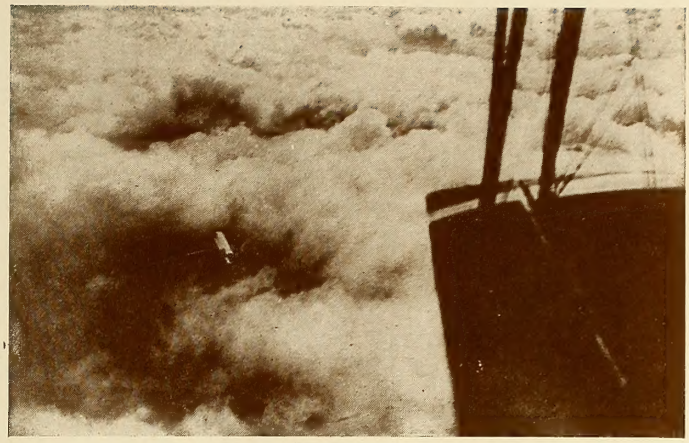

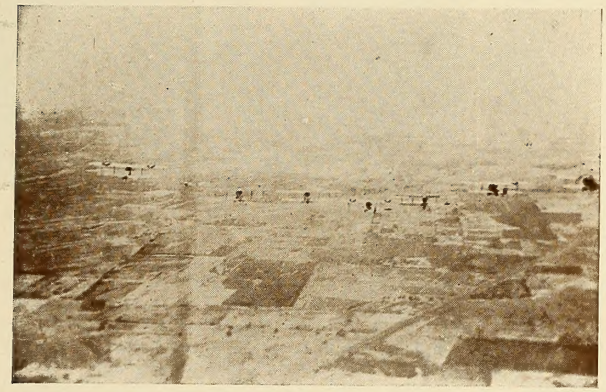

SAMMIE'S SISTER — Marget "Muggs" Rowland, '13, who has been in the Red Cross Service since the spring of 1918. She has served at Verdun and Chateau Thierry, has been in over a dozen bombing raids, and has helped rescue patients from a burning hospital ten miles behind the lines. She is now in Siberia.

ON ALPINE HEIGHTS—While on furlough after four months of constant fighting on the western front, Lieut. Stevenson P. Lewis, '17, accomplished a feat which won for him undying fame among the hardy Swiss. Alone, and with little mountaineers' equipment, he scaled Mount Blanc, the first of many thousands of amateurs to succeed in the venture. This picture was taken in the upward journey, at a point where he left his companions. Lieutenant Lewis was later killed in action.

A PAL IN THE HEAVENS—Wisconsin aviator sights a pal above the clouds, altitude 8,000 feet—the "pilot's paradise."

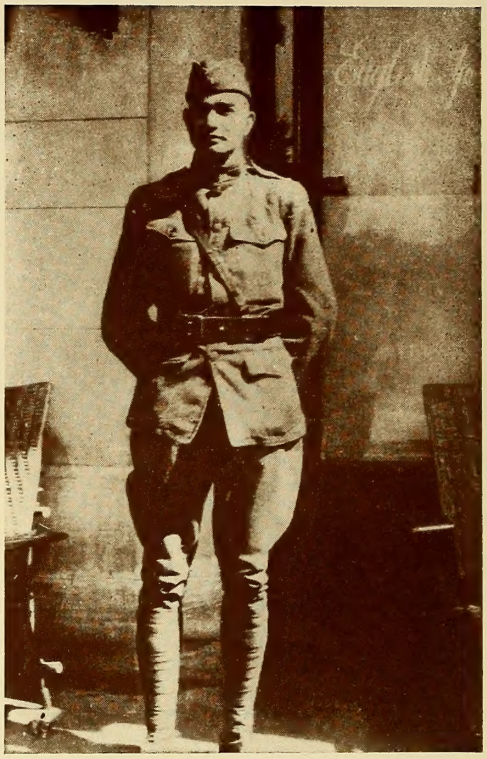

BATTLE FORMATION—Remarkable photo taken by Lieut. William Reid, '18, showing battle formation of a squadron of planes flying at same altitude over Taliaferro Field, Texas.

IN THE FORESTS OF ARGONNE—After three months near Chateau Thierry, where the heroic 32nd Division checked the Hun advance and turned the tide of victory in favor of the allies, Sergt. Arthur F. J. Stoffel, '17, who directed the ambulance drivers in one of the Sanitary Train units with "les terribles" was transferred to the forces stationed near the Argonne Forest and again saw the enemy in retreat. This picture was taken while a road over which Sergt. Stoffel was moving wounded men was impassable, due to German bombardment.

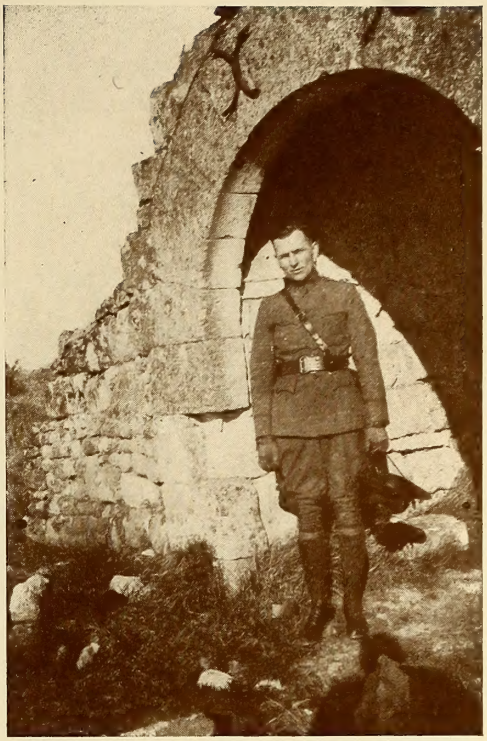

A PATIENT PATIENT—Lieut. Walter C. Hornaday, '13, of the Rainbow Division, was seriously wounded by a shrapnel shell during his eleventh month of service at the front. He is here shown on the porch of Base Hospital 23, convalescent after three months spent on a cot. "English Spoken" says the sign. "Yes!" says Lieut. Hornaday, "but it's a long time a person has to sit before someone that's able to comes along!"

TRENCH DEFENSE—Badger avaiator snaps trenches 3,000 feet below while performing contact patrol work. These trenches, near Verdun, had been abandoned by the enemy.

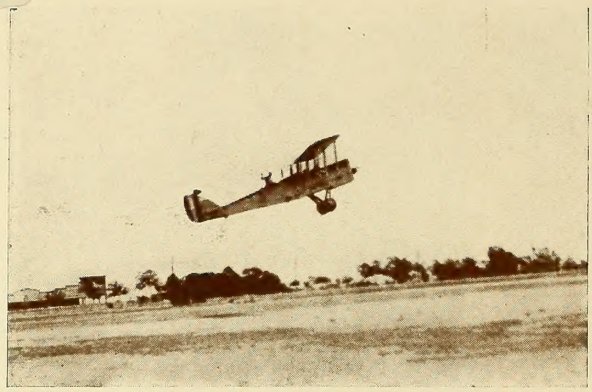

HOME, SWEET HOME—After an enemy bombardment of the village in which he was billeted, Major Alvin C. Reis, '13, of the Balloon Service, returned to what had been his comfortable quarters for some weeks. That the Hun gunners seem to have felt a personal antagonism toward him and aimed accordingly, is suggested by the result of their efforts.

THE VILLAGE CHAPEL—A 16th century church at Mandreaux, France, dynamited by the advancing Germans. Lieut. H. B. Heider, '15, of the Coast Artillery, standing in the doorway, could not find a single villager in what had three years before been a prosperous settlement.

IN THE WAKE OF THE HUN—For three months, Sergt. Howard Thomas, '16, and Corp. Joseph Kowalski, '14, members of the Field Artillery with the historic 32nd Division, were under constant fire in the vacinity of Chateau Thierry. This picture taken ten miles behind the enemy line on August 3, 1918, during a "rest" period, shows the damage done by a shell which had burst only a few minutes before. Notwithstanding the possibility that another "whiz bang" might drop at any time, both Sergt. Thomas (left) and Corp. Kowaski (right) seem to have been quite at ease.

RARIN' TO GO—Lieut. H. S. Harrison, '13, taking off in a De Haviland plane equipped with a Liberty motor.

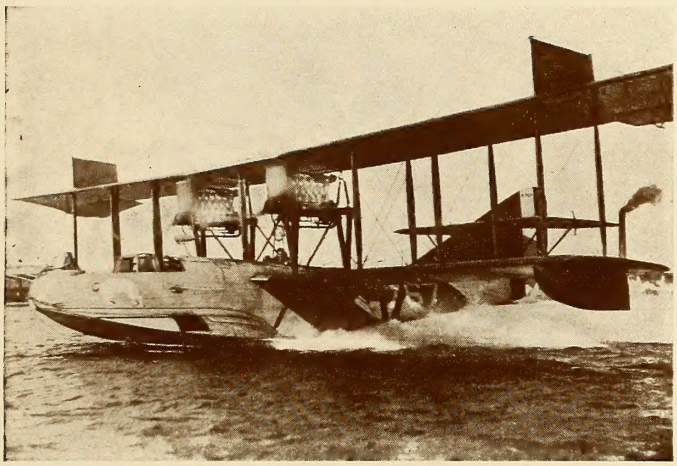

THE FAMOUS "276"—Lieut. Wm. H. E. Reid, '18, ready to take off in "276," the plane in which Lieut. Webster made the altitude record for Hispanica motors.

WRECKAGE—Crash of Lieut. H. S. Harrison, '13, with another plane, which resulted in a broken arm and other minor injuries to Harrison and death to the occupant of the other plane. One plane is partly burned.

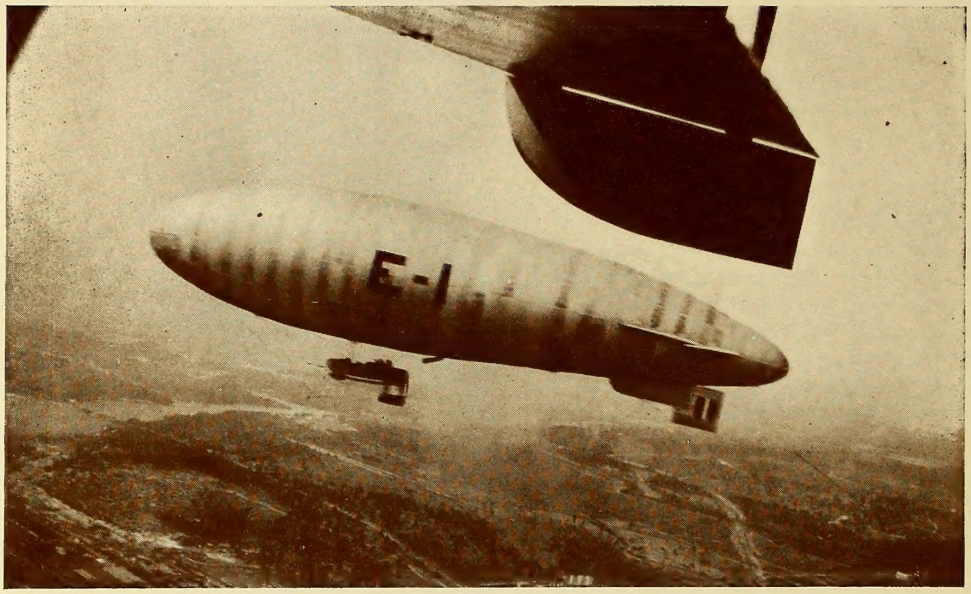

ZATTAH BOY!—Lieut. Arlie A. Schardt, '17, Wisconsin's famous athlete, wears three wound stripes. Of fifteen months of service overseas, twelve were spent in hospitals. In three engagements, he was wounded by shrapnel, twenty-eight pieces of which were removed from his body. One time he lay in No Man's Land for two days and a half before rescue was possible.

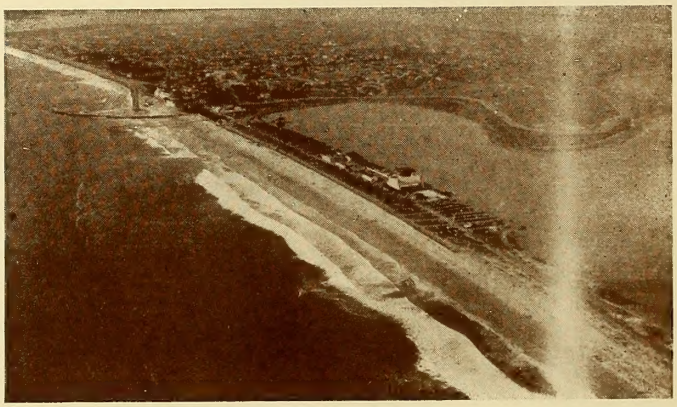

"CHUCK" TAKING OFF—Ensign Charles Carpenter, '20, taking off in a giant "16" seaplane at Pensacola, Florida. More then twenty Wisconsin men received their pilots' licenses at Pensacola.

"JOHNNIE" RACES THE BLIMP—Ensign "Johnnie" Schroder, '20, flying in his seaplane at Pensacola, Florida, challenges a "Blimp" to a race. The photograph was taken by Ensign Schroeder's observer, and shows the dirigible running neck to neck with the seaplane.

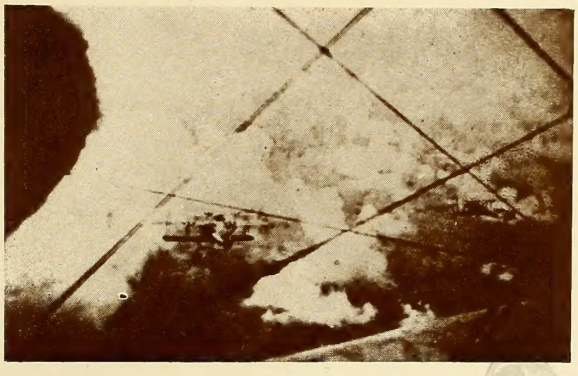

SANTIAGO HARBOR—This remarkable photograph of Santiago, California, was taken by Ensign Howard Stark, '20, from a height of 4500 feet. Many Wisconsin men were trained at Santiago.

SANTIAGO FROM THE CLOUDS—This photograph of Santiago was taken by Ensign Howard Stark, '20, from a huge "16" naval airplane.

CALDWELL CRASHES
Ensign "Tom" Caldwell, '20, forced to make a premature landing, "stubs his toe" and his plane noses in the sea nearly a half mile from shore. A miraculous escape for both "Tom" and his observer, who were rescued by a speed boat. The plane was salvaged by the wrecking crew.

OFF FOR SHERIDAN—AN HISTORIC PHOTOGRAPH—On May 12, 1917, the first of Wisconsin's volunteers were given a rousing send-off by University and townspeople who turned out en masse to bid them Godspeed. Few of these men have missed the thirlls of actual combat, and several of them heroically sacrificed their lives on the field of honor.

LOYALTY DAY, 1917—Wisconsin's first patriotic celebration was held on March 31, 1917, just prior to the break in diplomatic relations with Germany. The entire University turned out to demonstrate its unqualified support in backing President Wilson during the critical point of the German-American negotiations.

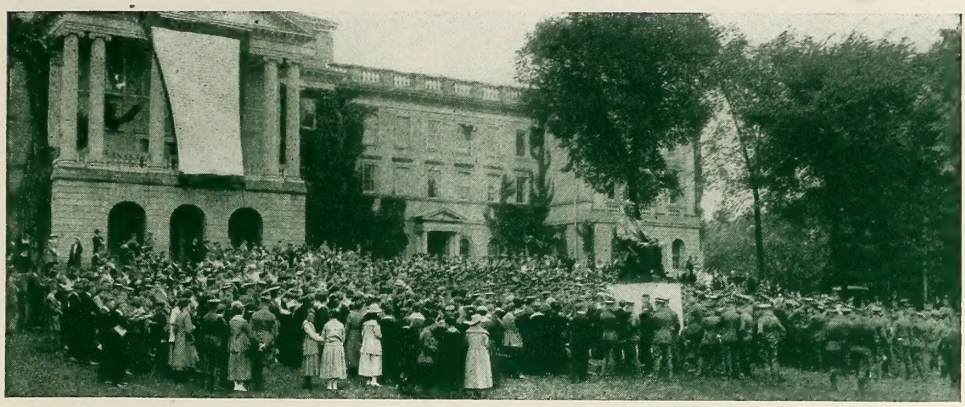

NAVAL FLYERS—ALL BADGERS—These naval aviators in service at the U. S. Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Florida, are all Wisconsin men. They are: Top row, left to right, Ensigns K. F. Whitcomb '18, D. Julian '20, T. B. Caldwell '20, D. P. Spurrier '19, H. B. Stark '20, V. N. Jones '17, R. F. Tillotson '19; lower row, left to right, Ensign M. P. Griswold '19; Lieutenants L. A. Hammer '17, G. C. Nedry '12; Ensigns C. H. Carpenter '19, T. W. Tuttle '19.

BROTHERS—ALL BADGERS, ALL SOLDIERS—Five Wisconsin men, brothers, all enlisted in the service of their country.

FARMERETTES—BADGER CO-EDS DON OVERALLS—To help push the war to victory, many of Wisconsin's women filled men's places on farms during the summer months. Sue Olesen 19, is pictured shocking grain in her father's wheat field in Iowa; Ingrid Nelson '19 was caught painting a silo; Jean Patterson '19 and Jeanette Lamb '19 are shown at the noon hour in their masculine attire and Corothy Martin is hoeing her big patch of potatoes. Oh yes, behind the plow is Marion Olbrich '19, doing the fall work on her father's fram in Illinois.

HONORING OUR HEROES—Wisconsin's mammoth service flag, bearing more than 4,000 stars, was most auspiciously dedicated. In the shadow of Lincoln's statue, on Memorial Day, 1918, great tribute was paid to Wisconsin's volunteers.

ROOSEVELT OUR GUEST—Among the memorable occasions of war-time Wisconsin was the proud reception accorded the great "Teddy" (May 28, 1918). The picture shows him at the station being escorted past the cadet guard of honor by the late president of the University, Charles R. Van Hise. By some odd coincidence of fate, these great men have both recently passed away. "I congratulate you on your fine record in the war, and I congratulate the country even more," were Teddy's words to the students in his address at the stock pavillion. "Wisconsin rose to the need in a way which will forever after make every graduate of it lift his head in pride when the University's name is mentioned."

CO-ED WORKERS—DOING A MAN'S BIT—Many of Wisconsin's women answered the country's call "For every fighter a woman worker" and donned the masculine overalls to work in munitions plants during the summer months. These co-eds devoted their entire vacation doing manual labor in the Gisholt Munitions plant. They are left to right: Ruth Johnson '20, Elisabeth Head '19, Ada Kroening '20, Ruth Martin '20.

WISCONSIN RECRUITING HEADQUARTERS—Gov. E. L. Philipp is shown in the center with recruiting officers of all branches of the service. More than 43,000 men from the state of Wisconsin enlisted in the various branches of active military service.

TAFT VISITS WISCONSIN—The ex-president is shown shaking hands with the late President Van Hise at the S. A. T. C. Review at Vilas Park. "A splendid review, and much credit to you who 'stood by' " said Taft when addressing the troops on the lower campus.

THE S. A. T. C.—THE MEN WHO "STOOD BY"—More than 3,000 men enrolled at Wisconsin and drilled intensively for several weeks. Had the war continued, these men would have played an important part in the final act. The picture shows the entire regiment in review before Ex-president Taft, who paid them high tribute in an address on the lower campus after the review.

BRYAN PLEDGES A. O. PI—Not least of Wisconsin's distinguished war-time visitors has been Wm. Jennings Bryan, the grape-juice authority. "Bill" was the guest of the A. O. Pi's for luncheon and he has their tacit assurance that when the women vote he is going to get the long angle for presidency.

Wisconsin Aids Fatherless Children of France

Ruins of a French Village

The University of Wisconsin early came to the aid of the war-stricken children of France. In the fall of 1917 the students of the University of Wisconsin became interested in the work for the Fatherless Children of France. Through the inspiration of the Madison Committee, plans were first laid by the Student Committee under the Student Council for the adoption of a whole village, the village of Montreuil.

Helen B. Smith headed the student committee. Her work was taken over in October, 1918 by Gladys Haskins '22.

The university women under Self-Government Association, arranged orphan boxes in all the rooming houses, sorority houses, and both dormitories. In the first six weeks over a hundred dollars, mostly in pennies, came in from the boxes, and the first three children were adopted. The yearly Christmas Festival of song, given by the University Choral Union and Glee Clubs made it possible to adopt six more of the children of Montreuil.

Solange Quiot

Gradually the interest spread until organization after organization, sororities, fraternities, individuals, and university departments have felt the joy of sharing in the great work for beloved, courageous France. Through such cooperation the number of adoptions reached sixty-six, the children living in Montreuil, Sevres, and Lyons, and other French towns.

In the fall of 1918, the work was resumed with fresh impetus. During the week just before the Christmas holidays, three Christmas trees on the campus loaded with stars representing individual contributions, represented over four hundred dollars for the children. With this money and seventy-five dollars more gained from a moving picture benefit, together with other donations, five new children have been adopted and fifteen others readopted.

The need for a continuance of adoptions is still very great and the University of Wisconsin will continue to participate in work of keeping and making happy the children of France.

Chere Mademoiselle: Le 20 Decembre 1918.

Je profite de mes vacances de Paques pour vous envoyer cette carte. Je vais vous dire que nous avons ete bombardes par les Boches, moi j'ai paue des Gothas. Nous descendons tous a la cave mais nos mamans ont du courage. Elles pensent a nos vaillants soldats qui combattant sons la pluie des obus. C'est si terrible sur le front Francais en ce moment mais cela nous donnera du courage. Mademoiselle, un bon bon baiser de votre petite amie de France.

Montreuil-sous Bois, the first "Wisconsin City" is just outside the city walls of Paris and is only a fifteen minute ride from the heart of the great French capitol. Sevres, the second "Wisconsin City" is a town of 19,000 inhabitants, situated on the left bank of the Seine River, and only forty-five miles from Versailles. Lyon, the home of ten of Wisconsin's orphans, is the third largest city of France and is located on the Rhone River.

VICTORY DAY—The University heralded the news of the armistice agreement in characteristic Wisconsin fashion. Before day-break the entire University had assembled on the Capitol Square to begin a day of strenuous celebration. The picture on the Capitol steps was taken at 3 a. m. on the morning of Victory Day. All day long co-eds, S. A. T. C. men, and townspeople joined in staging an impromptu celebration unparalleled in enthusiasm.

Westermann

WITH WILSON TO EUROPE—These Wisconsin professors accompanied the American peace delegation to Europe as authorities in their specialized lines of work. Prof. W. L. Westermann, as a specialist on Turkey, is a member of the history department. Major Lawrence Martin is professor of geology, and Capt. Stanley Hornbeck is on leave of absence from the political science department until he completes his work for the government. Wisconsin has furnished more professors for this sort of war work than any other university.

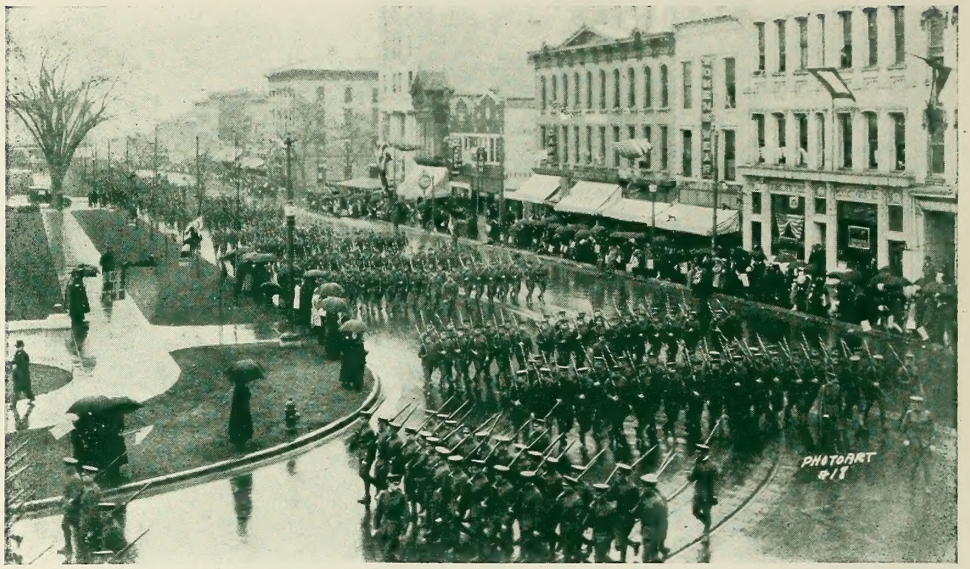

LIKE MY OVERALLS?—Hazel Brashear '19 as she looked when inspecting 4-inch naval guns in the Naval Ordnance Factory, Moline, Ill. last summer.

OH JOHNNIE!—Ensign John W. Blount '20, before flight off the Florida Coast in naval airplane.

The McElroy Affair

THE BEGINNING—THE LIBERTY DAY PARADE—This photograph shows the cadet corps marching through the rain to the stock pavilion where they were forced to sit in drenched clothing for hours, principally on account of the long-winded McElroy speech. Because a few of the cadets were physically unable to endure the irrelevant outburst, the Princeton professor on returinng East spread false charges of U. W. disloyalty through Eastern newspapers.

'VARSITY OUT—The effigies of McElroy and the Kaiser were flaunted through the streets for hours. McElroy's effigy was labeled "McElroy, Prince of Asses," and the Kaiser's dummy was dubbed "Kaiser Bill, Me und Gott "

LAST OF McELROY—Students danced wild about the fire which consumed the effigies of the two characters held in mutual contempt. McElroy was forever squelched.

The Spanish Club

The Spanish Club was founded in 1917 for the promotion of interest in Spanish art, language and literature, at the same time offering practical application of academic work. During the year some interesting programs have been rendered by the students in the form of singing, dancing, readings, one-act plays, and University Glee Club selections. A successful comedy was staged last spring. This was the first Spanish play ever given at the University of Wisconsin. The success of the Sociedad Hispanica is due to the marked interest of the faculty as well as that of the student body.

The Alumni Association

Alumni

Your committee (consisting of secretaries of all the classes) on membership in the General Alumni Association asks you to read the following statements carefully.

Numbers

The General Alumni Association has a membership of more than 4,000 leading men and women graduates of the University (126 members of the faculty are members of the General Alumni Association).

Sense and Sentiment

Absolutely regardless of any sense of gratitude to the University, you cannot afford to cut yourself off from University associations when you graduate. You need the University more than the University needs you.

No Accident

An alumni organization always ready to serve, with a publication always full of information about the University and its alumni, IS NO ACCIDENT. It exists because there are alumni who consider their University training a trust entailing obligation.

Organization is Necessary

It is axiomatic that the alumni can work efficiently as alumni only through organization. The graduate who willingly stays out of the alumni organization not only does not contribute to the success of the organization but is a drag upon its efficiency.

It is a well recognized fact that one of the most important factors in promoting the welfare of a university—particularly a state university—is the intelligent interest and support of its alumni.

Every member of the General Alumni Association is a center of intelligent interest in the University.

Loyalty

There is only one test of loyalty—that is service. Hundreds can do more by cooperation than thousands working each by himself, and do many things which thousands could not do at all without cooperation. To make your work count, you must associate yourself with those who are doing things for the University.

Inspiration

The years you have spent at the University have been pleasant and profitable; their memory will be a constant inspiration; the friendships you have made will bring you cheer and give you courage to face whatever the future may have in store for you.

Advantages of Association

(1) It substitutes organized alumni loyalty for unorganized good will.
(2) Efficiency—It makes possible concerted and effective action by the alumni.
(3) Economy—It insures the maximum of efficiency for every outlay of energy.
(4) Opportunity—It makes it possible for YOU to have a definite, positive and appreciable share in the work.
(5) Equality—It gives your individual effort the same efficiency as that of any other alumnus.
(6) For the average alumnus this Association furnishes the ONLY OPPORTUNITY to make his individual effort count in behalf of the University.

What the Association Has Done

(1) It has brought about effective concerted action of the alumni in behalf of the University.
(2) It has fearlessly told the truth about the University.
(3) It has initiated many good movements and supported all good measures for the betterment and advancement of the University.
(4) It has taken a dignified, powerful, non-partisan attitude in all important legislative proceedings concerning University matters. (The Legislative Committee of the Alumni Association has been received with respect and listened to with attention by all meetings of the legislature in recent years).
(5) It has enabled faculty, students, administrative officers, and graduates to work together in behalf of the University.
(6) It has kept track of graduates. (The largest directory company in the world says that the General Alumni Association has the most nearly complete and accurate list of graduates in the United States).
(7) It has built up the most efficient college employment bureau for students in the United States. (This is according to a government inspector).
(8) It is always on the alert to help graduates.
(9) It keeps track of and in touch with the local alumni clubs, and thus places recent graduates in touch with representative alumni in more than forty important cities of the United States maintaining local U. W. clubs.
(10) It is the one opportunity for cooperative effort by our graduates in behalf of the University of Wisconsin.

Cost

The General Alumni Association offers you membership for a fraction of a cent a day. This membership entitles you to a copy of the Alumni Magazine each month without additional charge. Though the work may continue without you, can you afford to let it? The annual membership fee, including a year's subscription to the Alumni Magazine is but $2.00. The life membership, including a life subscription to the Alumni Magazine is $50. The most efficient alumni organizations are maintained by life memberships. Graduates are, therefore, particularly urged to take life membership if possible. The loyalty of Wisconsin graduates to their University is well known. It is our desire, and we trust your wish, that each and every class show itself 100% loyal and we, therefore, ask your active cooperation in making the showing of the Alumni Association not merely a showing of individuals, but an enrollment of your class as a unit. Do your part! Join the association today.

May We Not

In the words of President Wilson, "may we not" enroll you on our list of members and receive the encouragement of your active support? Please join now.

THE ZERO HOUR

SHERMAN SAID—Well, never mind what Sherman said. He won't have anything on you by the time you have gone through NO-MAN'S LAND.

HERE you will find all the HORRORS OF WAR: Submarines, Gas Attacks, Tanks, the S. A. T. C. and Goodnight and Prussians.

THE CASUALTIES are enormous, only a few escaping without a scratch.

PREPARATIONS have long been made for THIS ATTACK.

G. H. Q.(?) has shifted about a bit, but the GENERAL STAFF has always known where to report.

INTELLIGENCE concerning the ENEMY has eagerly been sought after, and in some cases much has been risked to get it (and to use it).

NO CAMOUFLAGE has escaped our eagle, relentless eyes.

SPIES IN OUR MIDST, IN THE FORM OF A PERNICIOUS CENSORSHIP, have stolen much valuable information which was never recovered, but will never be missed, as the dope gathered since is better and UNCENSORED. A SHOOTING AT SUNRISE (Figurative) was secretly effected by the G. S.(?)

OUR SPIES have been everywhere and few things have eluded them.

OUR SCOUT PLANES with their observers have either spied or bared the NAKED TRUTH (Most effective in our type of warfare).

MINES HAVE BEEN LAID, and the BARRAGE IS SET!

MOVE SLOWLY, and REMEMBER—KEEP COOL! Remember that everybody else has gone through the same thing.

IF YOU GET HIT DON'T STOP! That's what you have to expect. Just wade right through 'till the fight is finished.

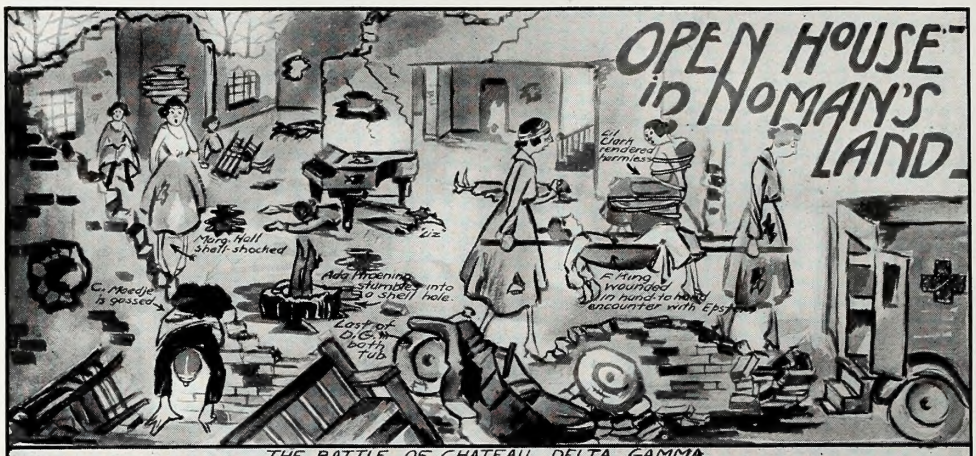

AH, THE BARRAGE IS LIFTING!

TIME'S UP!

STEADY NOW, KEEP COOL!

COME ON, WISCONSIN, LET'S GO!

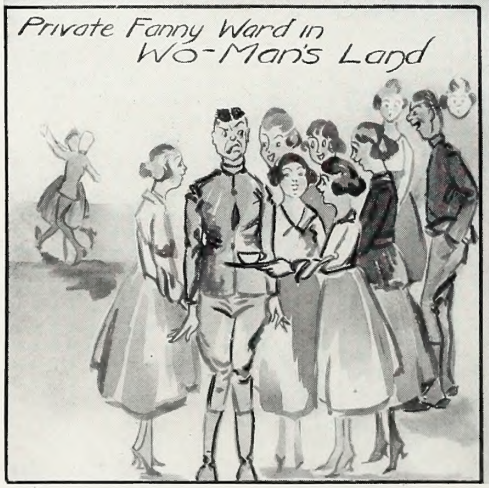

THE BATTLE OF CHATEAU DELTA GAMMA

The battle of Chateau D.G was perhaps the bloodiest of the whole war. The Psi Us lead the attack under the direct command of the veteran, Gen. Dudley Pershing Davis, with the Chi Psi's and the Betas held in close reserve. From 3 in the afternoon till 6 at night the battle raged, and the carnage was ortull. Our boys were cruelly repulsed on several attempts and it was not until the reserves were called in that the Chateau was finally captured and reduced to ruins. Field Marshal Epstein who directed the attack, was greatly pleased with his own strategy and decorated both himself and General Davis for bravery, valor, and extinguished service.

Spasm I—Registration Days

KO-EDITH: Just look at the mob! My dear, we'll have to wait forever and my feet are just killing me. Where did all those fellows come from?

KO-EDNA: Never mind your feet. Look, there's Bob. Don't you adore him? Oo-la-la! That eyes! Them hair!

* * *

BOB: Hello Edna, how's Edith? (To Edna, tenderly —and for the seventh time that day). This is the moment I've been living for all summer. Will you go to the Studio with me Saturday night?

KO-EDNA: Sure, Bob, thanks. (To Ko-edith) I know I'm going to have a wonderful time here this year. (She doesn't know she was the seventh one Bob asked!)

* * *

KO-EDITH: There's Kate.
KO-EDNA: 'Lo, Kate. Jew eat?
KATE: No. Jew?
KO-EDNA: Uh-uh. C'mon over to Chad.
KATE: My dear! The place is full of men! It's a barrix for the S. A. T. C.

* * *

KATE: Oh dear! (We think she said "dear.") I had all my baggage sent to Chad. If one of those fellows got into my suitcase, I'd die.

KO-EDNA: So would he, probably, he'd suffocate. Cheer up! Think of the good time we'll have here with all the officers. I stuck dad for three new party dresses and I wish now I'd made it four.

* * *

Convulsion II—Three days later

KO-EDNA: Whassa matter? Where's the fire?

KO-EDITH: It aint no fire, it's a seven-thirty class. You'd better get up and get there on time. The shock would kill the prof, I think, but what's a prof more or less?

KO-EDNA: Oh Lordy! Home was never like this!

* * *

NOTICE: Classes meet in Wisconsin High School. Use of Laboratory given to vocational men.

KO-EDNA (with a groan): Five blocks further, and I'm coming to pieces now.

* * *

KO-EDNA: Not one man in all my classes! It's an outrage!

* * *

KO-EDITH: There's Dick. I wish he'd see me. He's looking this way. See, seventh row, third man from the end.

OFFICER: Eyes—FRONT!

KO-EDITH: Aw, the darned fool!

KO-EDITH: GOODNIGHT!

* * *

KO-EDITH: Do the men have to salute you when you are on K. P. duty, Dick?

* * *

Fit No. III—Saturday evening

EXTRA: All public places closed on account of the flu. No dances or movies till ban is lifted.

KO-EDNA: Now isn't that—the limit? Well, I'll ask for the back parlor. Bob used to be good in a parlor when it came to a pinch.

10:30.

KO-EDNA: Why doesn't he come? It's so late now I won't be able to make him wait. He always used to come early enough so I could make him wait a half hour, at least.

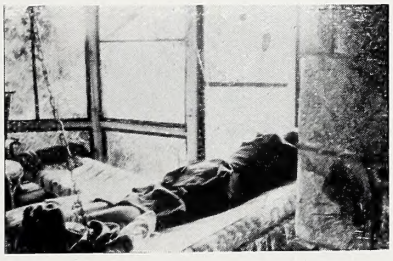

* * *

10:45.

KO-EDNA: Oh, there's the phone. Yes, this is Edna. What—Bob is on guard duty and can't come? Yes, I understand—so am I—good-bye.

KO-EDNA: DAMN THE KAISER! !

Mr. Edward L. Deuss,
Editor-in-chief of the Daily Cardinal

My dear Mr. Deuss,

As acting censor of undergraduate publications I desire to put on record my unqualified disapproval of the Skyrocket column of last Friday, November 15th. Mr. Kenneth Scott, I understand, was responsible for the exhibition of bad taste of street-corner nothing really "smells", supplemented in one case at least by a gutter "damn" and "hells", supplemented even fifty save in a back-alley way. Doesn't implication, — nothing even it seek to you that the entire series of jests to which I refer was gratuitously coarse and vulgar, and served to cheapen the entire issue?

Sincerely,

Committee Declares Quarberg Ineligible as Annual Nears End.

The student body is aroused! Dean H. H. Goodnight has again stirred up student opposition. Another bomb-shell was thrown at student activities yesterday when the Student Life and Interest committee, headed by the dean of men, declared Lincoln A. Quarberg, editor-in-chief of the 1919 Badger, ineligible for further work on the junior class yearbook.

Dean Goodnight, chairman of the committee, announced the decision of the group last night that the business manager declared that the Liberty Bond drive will have a campaign of its hands with the work. A Langdon River Anthology

BEING a running stream of personalities, a flowing account, as it were, of the foibles of the great and the near-great (not beer) together with a few nuts that the squirrels missed. The rest of this page is intended to drive into your ivory domes where we get the Langdon River stuff, and the following pages indicate the obvious enough for you to see why we call it an Anthology.

LANGDON RIVER

Oh, Langdon River,
You make my liver
Its plainest duties shirk;
You make my tummy
Behave so rummy
I cannot do my work.

Before you flowed
Down Langdon road
My innards all worked fine,
They use me now
So bad, I vow,
I'd hardly know they're mine.

Oh, Langdon River,
I burn and shiver,
With fever and ague I shake
Because you get
My tootsies wet
And cause my head to ache.

L'ENVOI

Oh, Prince, I ask, what good's my bread and butter
When health is gone because of some damned gutter?
Please try, Oh Prince, to keep the sewers clean
That we who study may not wax too lean!

"The graves gave up their dead that we might have the truth"

"anfairpwllgwyngyllgogerychwyrndrobwllllantisiliogogogoch"

IN the interests of humanity and scandal-mongers a few relentless and determined gore hunters set out to learn the truth about some of those who adorned our campus during the past year, bluffing everybody into thinking that they were farther removed from the apes than the rest of us. Most of them had been dead from their necks up since the hour of their birth. And what Nature had started, Hazzie's Skyrockets and the Students Life (?) and Goodnight's Interests Committee had finished. In other words, they were now dead from the neck both ways. But the graves on The Hill gave up their dead that we might have the truth, which same is tastefully presented to you herewith, together with appropriate illustrations.

The picture shown above was taken just after robbing the grave which held Larry Hall. We knew it was Larry because the minute we got the lid off the coffin its occupant sat up and started to talk—about himself, of course. If that had'nt been enough, there was a Sigma Phi pin stuck on one side of his ribs like a Croix de Guerre. Larry always was a Sigma Phi to his very bones, you know—as well as a lawyer.

The stiff lab also furnished us with lots of gore.

ALL, ALL, ARE SLEEPING, SLEEPING ON THE HILL

The Hill

WHERE are Helen B., Scotty Goodnight, and Kink, Al Haake, and Whitney,
The co-ed's conscience, the students' Nemesis, the red-haired, the barb, the child-wonder?
All, all, are sleeping, sleeping on The Hill.

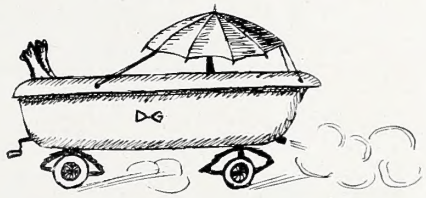

MANY DIED THUSLY

One died young in a hurry,
One got the flu in a dance hall,
One died in the D. G. bath-tub,
One as good as died—he got married,
One fell over his feet and broke his neck—
All, all, are sleeping, sleeping, sleeping on The Hill.

Where are Editors Millie and Eddie—and Jessie, and Louie,
The Bolshevik, the owl-eyed, the singer, the lover of dogs, the exhorter?—
All, all, are sleeping, sleeping on The Hill.

One got lost in the stiff lab at midnight,
One was killed in a Chi Phi quarrel,
One died when his heart stopped beating,
One was bit by a circus leopard,
One was beaten to death by an ion—
All, all are sleeping, sleeping on The Hill.

ONE DIED IN THE D.G. BATHTUB

Where is Hazzie, Delta Upsilon Beta,
To whom eight-o'clocks were a myth,
And studies a hoary legend;
Whose College Career was dependent
On keeping his grades from his father?
Lo! he blats in the Skyrocket Column
Of the doings of long ago
When better men than he ran the Col
Without fear of the Delts and the censor.
His futile attempts to be funny
Are mainly the cause and the reason
Why all, all are sleeping, sleeping on The Hill.

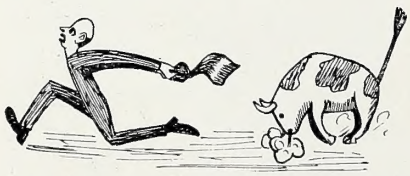

CARL MAEDJE

"My life wasn't worth the living,
And death wasn't worth
The effort it took.
How often I threatened
I'd end my life of sorrows,
Of troubles and of woes,
And seek a briny graveyard
In the surging, sighing deep.
My threats were empty ones—
Mere schemes to win the ladies' interest and awe.
It seems strange fate should pick me
To die of worn old age
In the one success of my career—
A German professorship.
You who come to follow my example,
Take this from me:
Put not your faith in dancing or Phi Psi,
For neither are found down here."

ALICE PORTERFIELD

"I was small
But my ideals were towering.
What would the Cardinal have done without me
To raise its lowered standards?
What would Alpha Phi be now
Without me to spread its fame broadcast?
What matter my life ended in a circus,
The champion Tom Thumb of my time,
No matter how high you may have carred your head
Your feet were always on a level with mine."

DAVE WEISS

"My parents had high hopes for me
When I came here to college,
But I turned Socialist
And spoiled it all.
I got so far as to write editorials
For the Cardinal,
But they canned me because
I wanted ten dollars
For one night's work
Setting ads.
The trouble with raising the red flag
Is that you get chased by a bull."

JERRY OCHSNER

"Some one told me in my youth
That I had brains and should develop them.
I spent all my time in school trying
To live up to my reputation—and the effort left me weary.
I ran the Lit., Red Domino, Theta Sig.—when I could.
I tried to convert the world to democracy,
But when I got out into the real world
I realized all my folly,
Forgot the advice of my youth,
Forgot my brains and developed my feet.
I died—a frivolous ballet dancer,
And the world has gone on as well without my reforms."

ED DEUSS

"I lived my life for Chi Phi
And the honors I could get.
I always wished there were two of me
That by dividing my work
Between myselves,
I could do all I planned.
The Lord was unkind
When he gave me a mind,
Athletic build and good nature besides,
Because I worked all three
And educated none.
Now here I lie beneath the sod,
No rest has come to me yet;
I plan my plans
And scheme reforms,
But the world goes on as well without them—
And better—I'll admit."

"AL" ROGERS

"Five years I spent at an education,
And a thorough one it was.
The Law School saw my smiling face
After all the rest grew tired of it.
I've known all the girls,
The Thetas', the Kappas', Gamma Phi's—all
Have known my soulful eyes.
I've been the dashing villain,
Broken up true love—almost,
(Shades of Fran and Ken, you haunt me still.)
I had ambition, though,
None of you considered.
I surprised you in the end
When I burst into real fame—
A scientific farmer,
And raised onions
For a living.
E pluribus unum!"

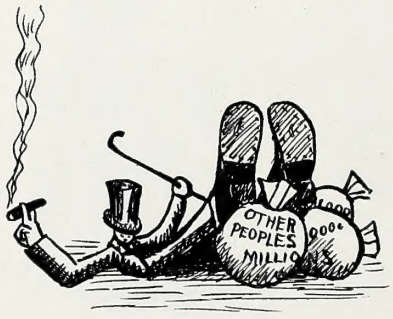

LARRY HALL

"Specialized fussing was my only art,
For years I followed it, then lost the knack.
I specialized in many, never realized the truth
Of 'Many may come but few—should be—chosen.'
Too late I changed my tactics,
Was forced to resort to Politics
To cheer my sinking soul.
My military career I count as a success
For the work I've done for my government
Was splendid, admirable—I think.
Military Police, a useless affair in the opinions of men,
Can be made most effective, if one is an M. P. himself.
My life was a trivial thing at best,
My death, nothing better;
I died of a broken heart—
A careless woman's whim."

DEAN NARDIN

"From the sunny clime of Missouri
I came to the women of Wisconsin,
As an advisor of ladies,
A soother of babies,
A prodder of slow ones,
A restrainer of fast ones,
A friend to the friendless,
A help to the helpless,
An interpreter of love letters,
A lover of suffragettes,
A keeper of secrets,
Neither a misanthrope nor a misogynist,
In short—their humble servant;
But Ah! I was from Missouri."

HERB BAKER

"I've been a moneyed man all my life—
Not money of my own, but other people's.
I financed plays and stunts by the score,
The Cardinal and Senior class
With other people's money—not my own.
Business was my hobby and my aim.
I looked at life thru horn-rimmed glasses
As thru a dollar mark.
I died—of worn-out thumbs
From counting paper money,
Other people's money, not my own."

JOHN McPHERRIN

"I've tried my hand at many arts,
I've been a versatile man,
Started my career on a newspaper
In a corn-fed Iowa town.
I passed thru successive stages of prominence,
A lieutenant, a politician, an actor, too.
I lived in the Sig Phi domicile
On the secluded, exclusive heights;
But at heart I'm a bum, a wandering bum,
With only the soul of a hobo."

FLORENCE KING

"The saddest of all things,
An unsuccessful politician,
I turned my ambitions to Delta Gamma and rollerskating.
I was an ardent member of Y. W. C. A.,
Women have always been my specialty.
They say men like red hair;
But I've come to doubt that—
As I have the men.
Here beneath the sod
I've had ample time to reflect—
Would that I'd looked upon life
With the coolness I find here."

PROF. LOUIS KAHLENBERG

"If I have caused one thinking being
To remember a single chemical formula;
O death, where is thy sting!
If I have saved one Frosh
From the vile weed, wild women, Wisconsin wine;
O life, I am not stung!
But O ye men of Wisconsin,
From my sleep here on The Hill,
My soul cries out in anguish,
Cease ye to sing that vicious song,
'Glorious'."

KEN HARLEY

"Did you ever have an ambition—
An absorbing, inspiring theme?
The kind of thing you plan for—
Hope for—pray for—
Then have it snatched from your grasp?
For nearly two months I lived Prom—
Dreamed it—ate it—thought it—
Then lost it—Holy Cow!
Do you blame me if I fought for it
And stood my ground against the powers that be?
I got the Prom.
The knowledge that I had,
Thrills me even yet.
What were Beta, Edwin Booth
Or the honors of art-editorship to me?
I made the Prom,—
The only thing I ever did,
But, by gad, I did it!"

WHITNEY SEYMOUR

"I missed my calling.
I should have been a girl;
Instead, I've only played at being a man.
I gave my opinion
Whether it was wanted or not
And valued it highly—Myself.
I profited by the freedom of the press
In Cardinal editorials. I controlled
The board that controlled the editorials—
Thus covering my tracks and covering myself
With glory.
The faculty's pride and reliable standby
In my youth,
I choked on a fish-bone and lost my voice
Before I was thirty,
Developed writer's cramp within the year
And died from the inability to express myself."

AL HAAKE

"Hell—Hell—Helen!
My pride and joy—the subject of my thoughts.
I quoted you in class-rooms,
Used you as the example of my discussions,
I cannot refrain from singing your praises now.
I argued for you as I argued for Free Beer
Before you came into my life,
I argued for you as I argued for Chi Phi
Before you became my wife.
Now, with ample time for reflection,
I can believe
Of the punster before our wedding:
I got Hell—'n Rice."

RUTH DONALDSON

"I started my life with speed—and ambitions,
And ended it—
An onlooker to the dash and ambitions of others.
I came into college life, determined upon a reputation,
And as a preliminary step, I went Alpha Chi.
Men cheered and applauded me, and encouraged my line."
Then began my career of conquest!
Full many a lusty Greek
Has pinned his emblem on my bosom;
But, like the sponge, I pick them up
Only to squeeze them.
As John Runkel says, 'Next'."

MARIE WILCOXON

'I pride myself on having been an individualist.
As far as dress goes—at least I was 'different.'
You smiled at my cap, wool stockings and gym shoes,
You—fools that you were—
Didn't realize the value of publicity.
Cutting holes in the ice to go swimming
Isn't pleasant, but it's startling
To the world and yourself as well.
I believe in a thorough education; so I got my training
Below my neck as well as above;
But I died alone and unknown,
A victim of over-activity
Trying to make a name for myself."

DEAN GOODNIGHT

"Why was I born a dean?
To be one day acclaimed of men,
And lifted to the seventh heav'n of bliss,
And on the next to be relegated
To the seventh depth of hell,
Because I repeated that simple verse,
'Let there be no prom';
But to a still lower depth was I consigned,
When, with a burning heart, I said,
'Let there be no Badger.'
The moon and the stars shone on—
The Prom was held!
The Badger was published!
And hell! The students gloried in it all—
It set me back 26 years—
I lived long enough to come back—
Long enough to see seventeen new Prexys—
But I remained Dean of Men."

HELEN B. SMITH

"I've been an authority in my day,
A believer in rules and regulations
As the antidote for all ills.
They called me the back-bone of the S. G. A.,
Or sometimes the Dean's better half.
I really was both—and a lot more besides,
For I taught the dear girls just how they should act,
Left nothing at all for them to decide,
And left them none the better for my efforts.
Why, I even praised Dean Goodnight
When the rest of the students opposed him;
Though I did that for Goodnight's sake,
And not because I believed he was entitled to it.
For now I know that the minds of both of us were turned.
I took life austerely,
Died when I felt it my duty to die—some said
With a frown on my face.
Fools that laugh on earth
Must weep in hell, you know.
I'm taking my laughter now."

PROF. WILLIAM ELLERY LEONARD

"In and out I go among my kind.
They know me not.
I hold communion with the gods,
For did I not write,
'Sunshine flashing on a red-white-and-blue feather'?
Who says my verse is melancholy?
Does not 'sunshine flashing' dispel the gloom?
Does not 'red-white-and-blue' arouse your soul,
And fill you full of joy?
Does not 'feather' suggest a chicken?
As I said to 'Lottie,' 'I'm a genius'."

MARGARET PETERSON

"Al and I rose to fame together.
Al, he was handsome—a dancer
Of fame—
And I, I was the same.
Kappa needed me to help her to renown
And I needed her for the same.
Seventeen dates for one chapter party
Was the record I made;
But that was in my youth.
Many years have passed since then,
My life, before I reached this quiet place
Beneath the sod,
Was barren of men, dances, and beauty, for many a year.
I found to my disgust
'He who laughs last, laughs best'
And all my youth was laughter."

MARGARET CRAIGHILL

"I've been a politician and a student
In my day.
The kind of student phi-betes are made of,
The kind of politician women always make:
High as to ideals, but doubtful
As to ways and means for carrying them out.
One thing I count a victory, a success,
I made the Badger—what it is—
Made it the 'poor man's book'—
'A price to fit every purse,'
Two dollars
Was the price
And I held to it
But it cost me $3.00
When I paid for mine—
I didn't live long enough
To learn what others paid for theirs."

PROF. A. C. COOL

"Many a time and oft in the rotunda,
I have been pointed out
As a man of parts,
With the exception of my face.
Wisconsin will never be reconciled to that.
But give me my Scotch lassie,
A package of desert horses,
A sack of Spanish Snappy Stories;
Throw in a Congregational Church.
'That will be glory for me.' "

EZEKIEL SOLOMON EPSTEIN

"Ezekiel is my pet prophet,
Solomon is my king!
Out of the night that covered me
In Podunk Center,
I came to Wisconsin,
With gold bar, authority, Hebrew wit.
The gold bar brought me salutes;
Some with hand above right eye,
Some with hand to nose.
Even Solomon in all his glory
Was not arrayed in such authority as I.
But my Hebrew wit!
Why, that made me what I am today.
Long live the king!"

BILL DELANEY

"They've called me 'inveterate fusser,'
With my ready eye out for style;
I pressed my trousers each morning
And used Pompeian cream by the ton.
I went in for dancing,
Picked out girls that showed class.
Only two things kept me back
And hindered my career:
My nose spoiled my profile,
My name spoiled my chance.
But considering my drawbacks
I've made quite a stir,
Though I broke co-eds hearts by the score
I fooled them all in the end.
I went back to Milwaukee
And married the school teacher
I was engaged to all the while."

JESSIE MEGEATH

I startled you all
With my leopard-skin coat.
Can a leopard change his spots?
Mine never did.
But people get used to all things,
Even leopard-skin coats.
So I had to resort to
A Ukrainian flea-hound
To keep my name in the Col.
It worked.
So did I—
Making sweaters for the beast.
If you see Prof. Mortimer,
Give him my regards.

Ah, There Addy!

If we had ever had a picture like this taken when we were a kid, it would be the last thing we would want to see in print. But since it is a picture of one Adrian Lammers, whom we are told thought he had lived it down, we take great delight in presenting it herewith. Isn't he just too cunning for anything? Notice those curls. That's where Mary Pickford got the idea. And that smile. He has his father's mouth. His father let him take it to play with. We're not kidding you, we're just showing you a good time.

GOODNIGHT FINDS PREXY INELIGIBLE

Fires Birge from Office; Student Body Is Aroused

Dean Scott H. Goodnight has hurled another poison gas bomb into the midst of student and university affairs! Again the Bean of Men brought down the wrath of the entire Hill upon his head.

Late last night, after a wild and jolly meeting, the High Life and Disinterested committee unanimously voted to put the President of the University, Dr. Ethan Allen Allen Birge, out of office, the committee preferring five distinct charges of ineligibility against him. The charges are being withheld pending the preparation of a detailed statement by Bean Goodnight, and a study of the reaction of the student body and faculty.

Wald Denies that he is President

Rumors were current on the campus this morning that Goodnight had offered the position of president to Otto E. Wald, janitor of South hall, in recognition of past services. It is understood that the Dean recommended Wald because he thought that Wald had often been in the president's office, and was well-fitted to hold the position. Wald, in a short but snappy interview, stated that he had no intentions of holding such a position, and that if the Dean wished to hand him a present he wished it would be a vacation.

"Why Birge has been on probation for 4 months," stated the Bean. "I let him go until now, but he should have told me about it. I might have fixed it for him."

Birge would say nothing when interviewed by a representative of the Cardinal. He was just about to start across the lake on a research expedition, and his chief concern at that moment was the weather.

Students Incensed

The student body, as a whole, is stirred to the fighting point by the most recent edict of the Bean of Men. Notes are pouring into the

R.O.T.C. TO BE RE-ESTABLISHED

Veterans of War Will Serve as Privates; Sherr Assistant "Commy"

Plans for re-establishing the R. O. T. C. at Wisconsin are now well under way.

The varsity cadets will all receive pay for their service, declares Major Wood, the new commandant. This will be breakfast money at Lawrence's and uniforms and equipmen cast off by the heroes at Camp Grant.

The men who have been in the service in the training camps of the country will be rewarded with the non-commissioned offices, befitting the part they played in the great struggle for the freedom of democracy.

Sherr Replaces Atkins

Major Joe R. Sherr, because of his wonderful work at the university and at the great cantonments, will aid Major Wood in reorganizing the R .O. T. C., and will replace Tommy Atkins as assistant commandant. The Chi Psis and Sigma Phis, will be awarded the distinction of holding the general and staff offices.

"All students now enrolled in school, and those who come hereafter will be drafted into the corps," declared Major Sherr.

Madison Copless

After reaching Middleton, Harley attempted to induce the Madison police department to issue an order for the arrest of the fugitives at the next station, but the force had seen the glimmer of light in Frank's window and could not be induced to leave the bar. This morning Madison is copless.

Peeper Invents New Bill

Assemblyman Peeper declared he would introduce a bill at the next meeting of the assembly, providing for an all-state masquerade party to raise funds for repairing the capitol.

Middleton Bus Line Defunct

The proprietor of the Madison-Middleton Bus Line was unable to say when service would be re-continued. In the meantime the varsity beer-hounds have taken up hiking as an outdoor sport.

Pussyfoot Burns on Job

Pete Burns' Detective Agency will handle the mystery shrouding Prof. Hyde's car. Pete was discovered by a Cardinal news hound in four different disguises during the night. That Professor Hyde was also a victim of the Prom melee is popularly believed.

Shattered Romance?

Many Injured and Much State Property Destroyed in Excitement

HARLEY VOWS REVENGE

The Victory Prom last night ended in a wild melee.

The interior of the Wisconsin State Capitol is laden with the debris of cracked marble and broken furniture, the Madison police force has not reported for duty, the Middleton bus is upside down in a ditch, Harley is on the verge of suicide and the S. A. E.'s and the Beta's are converting their kennels into armed forts. And the cause of the whole affair is the union of two loving hearts who are now speeding westward on the observation platform of the the St. Paul train.

Peeper Snoops Trouble

The first warning of the coming encounter was given by Assemblyman Carl Peeper, who left the whirling crowd for a few minutes to imbibe enough stimulant on the cool terrace to brace him for another plunge into the wild orgy. On re-entering the building he rushed up to Dean Gee See Sellery, who was complacently smoking a six inch stogie on the top balcony, and demanded in the name of Podunk County, why a mysteriously closed taxicab, accompanied by two masked and armed men, was standing at the west entrance of the building. Before the two could investigate the strange proceeding, Chairman Kenneth Haley rushed up anxiously waving his arms and tearing his hair in wild confusion.

GRANT M. HYDE IN AUTO WRECK

Journalism Professor Has Narrow Escape in Clash on Middleton Road

Late last night, a badly battered car drove down State street into one of the garages. Stopping with a clashing and grinding of gears, a human form tottered out of the car, and fell in a faint on the floor of the garage. His clothes were torn, and his face was scratched and bloodstained. One arm hung useless by his side, and his breath came in short, convulsive gasps. Finally he grew conscious, and although he was still dazed, he soon made his identity clear.

"I'm Grant M. Hyde, from the university,...journalism,....driving near Middleton....narrow road... another car with glaring headlights. ....guess I couldn't see,....never could drive with one hand,....m-m-had sort of a smashup,..they went on,....m-m-my head...hurts,...." and he lapsed into sleep again.

When he regained consciousness an hour later he told the story.

"I started out for a little drive alone last night, and was driving towards Middleton. The road is quite narrow, and when another car came along I was blinded by the bright lights. Then I was pitched through the windshield. Yes, I was alone. When I came to, I started home. This happened about ten o'clock and it took two hours to drive home. Well, fix up the car." And the professor went home.

Police authorities believe that Harley's pursuit car did the damage. However, no legal action will be taken by Mr. Hyde.

Cyrus L. Philipp, the governor's father, will lead the post-Prom dance at the Chi Psi lodge tonight. His partner will be Miss Lucile Biebermann.

Miss Lauretta Conklin left Madison this morning for a week-end visit. Her destination is unknown.

MYSTERY SHROUDS UNUSUAL MISHAP

Milkman Finds Lucy Rogers Unconscious on Middleton Highway

The early morning milk-man out of Middleton was startled early this morning by the tottering form of a young girl coming down the road, waving wildly for him to stop. Wondering, the weary vender of the lactal fluid pulled up his plodding steeds and rushed to the aid of the strange young lady. Just as he reached her, she fell faint in his arms.

The amazed man quickly opened a bottle of milk, and threw it into her face. Since it was 99 44-100 per cent pure water she quickly came to.

"My name is Lucy Rogers, and I work at the university in the journalism department. Last night one of my young friends asked me to go motoring with him. We came towards Middleton, and my friend was driving very slowly. He only uses one hand. Suddenly another car came towards us, at great speed with great shining headlights and lots of racket. I couldn't see very well, because my hair was in my eyes. Then I was tightly squeezed and went unconscious. When I awoke I was alone. Then you found me."

At this juncture the young woman started to weep and begged to be taken home. This was done, and since then she has refused to see anyone.

She did not divulge the identity of her escort.

It is thought by the police authorities that Harley's vengeance car was responsible for the accident.

Miss Rogers graduated from the Course in Journalism in 1918, and has since been engaged as private secretary to Prof. Grant M. Hyde.

Theta Xi will not give its dance tonight as planned. J. Leroy Haas enpflug fell from the box at Union Vodvil while applauding the Pi Phi act. He is still unconscious and the brothers are calling off the post-Prom affairs in respect to his memory.

The Beta Formal set for tonight, has been indefinitely postponed.

COMMUNICATION.

To the Managing Editor:—

In view of last night's scandal and elopement at the Prom, I think it my duty, in order to safeguard women's interests in the university, to sift the whole matter down, and to render a final fair decision.

It is not to be denied that Mr. Harley had the first claim on the young lady's attentions. He was giving her the highest honor possible. Yet, if the young lady later regretted her hasty decision, rendered perhaps under pressure from her sorority sisters, she did the right thing in not going through with her part of the bargain, and by giving herself up wholly to the man she loved. Mr. Maisel is a man who will treat her well, and since the drastic step has been taken, Mr. Harley would show greatness of character by sending a message of Godspeed and congratulation to the young couple.

If further interesting developments come to my desk, I will consider it an honor to inform you of them.

POPULAR MEN RESIGN FROM FRATERNITIES

Greek Clubs Undemocratic Say Latest Campus Bolsheviki

Predicting a general Bolshevik upheaval and revolution in the Latin quarter, twenty-four prominent university men resigned last night from their respective fraternities. The men in resigning issued a statement, declaring that they believed fraternities to be undemocratic, and that they will soon completely disappear from American universities.

Each fraternity sacrificed one man in the interests of democracy and accepted the resignations bravely.

The scheme has the endorsement of Deans S. H. Goodnight and Louise F. Nardin.

Hohlfeld Leads

The men who walked out last night are: Karl Hohlfeld, Al Rogers, Bill Delaney, Al Spafford, Kenneth Harley, Herb Wright, Carl Meadje, Owen Scott, Bob Rewey, Red Weston, Porter Brown, Si Spengler, Herb Baker, Stanley McCandless, Sunny Ray, Jimmie Lindsey, Hank Gotfredson, Tony Zuifer, Harlow Pease, Chuck Culbertson, Brud Taylor, Harry Westpfal, Josh Elder, Walt Malzahn.

They also maintain that they are bigger than their fraternities, and that nothing more can be gained by remaining faithful to their oaths. It is understood that they have banded themselves together and will immediately commence rushing and spread propaganda in order that promising freshmen may be saved from the fraternity menace. They are confident that their action will bring the speedy extinction of all fraternities at Wisconsin.

Frat Men Gloomy

After the action of the men had been made public, Cardinal reporters interviewed leading fraternity men affected by the walk-out. Most of the Greek letter men were pessimistic, and predicted the doom of fraternities at Wisconsin, if the men did not return.

The Delts are concerned over the withdrawal of Rogers, as he was recognized to be a man of great capacity. Bob Thompson and Rus La Due will remain, however, and it is expected that this fraternity will survive the crisis.

The withdrawal of Karl Hohlfeld seemed to give great relief to the Phi Gams, as they have been expecting such an occurance for some time. Paul Miller resigned also, the remaining fraternities agreeing that both men made the equivalent of one ordinary man.

The Phi Psis believe that the loss of Carl Maedje will mean an immediate boost to the scholastic standing of the chapter, and the S. A. E.'s expressed a similar hope over the loss of Henry Gotfredson.

D. U.'s Lose Delaney

The Betas think that the loss of Harley will mean a great lowering of the social standing of the chapter. Now they will return to athletics as their major activity. It is an overpowering blow, coming as it did, just when they were celebrating the acquisition of their first Prom chairmanship.

The Delta Phi Epsilons believe that the loss of Scott will sever their last diplomatic connection with Dean Goodnight.

The Alpha Sigs are plunged into despair over the loss of their only political hope, and the Chi Phis declare they have lost the only thread of control of the Cardinal with the resignation of Baker.

The Kappa Sigs hope to do some studying with the elimination of Brown, their noisiest jazz hound, and the D. U.'s are mourning the loss of their social prestige with the withdrawal of Delaney.

The Chi Psis hope to make up their loss of prestige by calling on the alumni to finance a $500,000 addition to their lake side castle, which will contain a dancing pavillion and a soft drink bar run by Fred Pabst, the brewer's son. It is understood that with the loss of their class treasurer the Phi Delts have given up all hope of regaining their prominence of years ago.

AT THE THEATRES

FULLER

Although somewhat overshadowed by the Prom and its subsequent events, Union Vodvil on Friday night went off with a zest and a finish hitherto unknown in the amateur theatrical enterprises of the university. Every act was an example of the lighter histrionic art.

Of special mention was the wonderful act given by the Pi Beta Phi sorority. This act had been advertised for weeks in advance and the entire front row of the Fuller had been leased to the Chi Phi fraternity for two months in advance. However, the Chi Phi men were doomed to disappointment as the original act had been severely censored by the university authorities and several "important" features summarily cut out by Dean Louise Nardin. The girls, contrary to current rumor, wore stockings. The musical numbers were exceptionally well rendered and the dancing act was par excellent.

Ray Holcombe and his actors were pulled off by the stage hands, the old Fuller Hook coming into use for the first time in six years, when it jerked "East Lynne." George Martin, in an unusual contortionist act, brought down the house. His very last trick was put to a fine climax by Marie Wilcoxon shrieking frightfully: "Look out, Georgie!"

Peg Kirch and Kate Fedde put on a very usual song and dance skit, which took like the measles. Both girls were showered with flowers of all kinds, including caulis. Many contributions came from the boxes, where the Theta Xi's vied with the Chi Phis, who by this time, felt that their money had not been spent in vain.

UP TO S. G. A.

THE controversy over the ineligibility of Prexy Birge is closed. The committee has made evident its resolution to stand firm on its original decision. Professor Fish's appeal has been ignored, the faculty and students have no further recourse.

The committee acted in the face of overwhelming opposition. The ineligibility of former President Birge is generally conceded, but since the president, ineligible since last fall, has been allowed to continue in his position until a climax in his work has been reached and until his services are indispensible to the University, it is almost unanimously held that a special dispensation is warranted.

But final decision rests with the committee and there is no use crying over milk that is spilt. The decision leaves the university in a critical situation. The way out of the situation is uncertain. But one thing is sure. And that is, that it is up to S. G. A. to decide what it will do and decide quickly. There is nothing to be gained by an extension of the debate between the committee and the students. S. G. A. should get together immediately and weight the proposition from all its angles. It has a grave responsibility to the whole school and to the alumni. There is nothing to be gained by further delay

HAROLD M. GROVES.

CAVE MAN STUFF

THE sensational events of last evening serve to emphasize the need for proper chaperonage of the social affairs of the university. It is deplorable that a man who has asked a girl to be his guest at such a function should have her stolen away almost while he was dancing with her. Such a Lochinvarian performance might do very well for a ballad, but it is hardly what one expects in polite society in this day and age. Let us have no more elopments from Prom!

THE SAFER SIDE.

(EDITOR'S NOTE—The following editorial from the prolific pencil of Whitney Seymour, treasurer of the Board of Control, is reprinted verbatim from the Cardinal of March 8, as peculiarly applicable to the events of last evening. The Vocational Conference should be heheld immediately.)

THIRTY-NINE out of every hundred university women get married. Sixty-one do something else.

What are you going to do. Certainly not live on your parents. Your education has opened many fields for your abilities. Now is a splendid time to decide on which one you will choose, before you wake up some morning to find yourself with a B. A. and no place to go.

The Vocational Conference is here to help you if you are one of the sixty-one. It is giving instruction which cannot help but inspire you to new endeavor for it opens up to women ways in which they can be of real service to their country. You feel that all it takes is a little effort and the will to do and you will be a real woman.

Even if you think you are one of the thirty-nine, you owe it to yourself and your future connections to have some means of support. Some day you may have to tell a daughter what to do, this is a chance to start thinking about it.

Women today have as many opportunities as men without for a minute losing their high place. Find out about it at the conference. It is a challenge to your seriousness of purpose.

Communications

To the Managing Editor:

Is it possible that the immense teaching staff of the university is to sit by, helpless, while one man, well esteemed as he might have been, literally pushes its leader from his throne? Can it be fact that we, who represent the highest thinking people of this state are to let such an outrage pass without a murmur? No, I say, and again NO! It is not to be thought of.

Whatever charges of ineligibility have been brought against Ethan Allen Birge by the whilom Bean of Men, whatever faults there might have been in his theories, certainly it is not to be denied that the action is entirely too summary, too needlessly sudden. Time and thought, as well as consideration of us, should have been the guiding principles of the High Life committee's actions.

They say that the great charge against President (as I will ever call him) Birge is that he was not yet old enough to vote,—hence ineligible to hold office What of that, as Skyrockets would say? Men who were not yet old enough to vote were still deemed old enough to die in the services of their country Is that not alone sufficient proof that a man under the legal age is old enough to die in the services of his school? O tempora! O mores! Or more freely,—What tha doose are we comin' to?—to again quote the inimitable Rockets.

It is indeed time for us to rise in our holy horror and demand that the right be wronged, and the tower clock readjusted. Rise up, ye sons and daughters of Minerva, cast about ye and slay the brute.

Yours impassionedly,
A. B. HALL,
Professor Political Science.

To the Editor of The Cardinal.

For the honor of the university and in fairness to all students here, persons not qualifying should not be allowed to represent the university in its activities. As college men and women we should be broad enough to consider the principle involved in a situation and be strong enough to live up to that principle regardless of the individual consequences. We would not want to see men below the required standard represent Wisconsin in an intercollegiate athletic contest, and why should such men or women be leaders in other University affairs?

The matter of eligibility is clearly not one for self-determination. It has been specifically left in the hands of the faculty committee, and their decision should be respected. We expect them to uphold students' decisions in matters coming under our jurisdiction, and we should be equally as willing to back the committee in a case of this kind. The only point in which the S. G. A. is here involved is in immediately arranging for a new selection. This could be carried out with such promptness that the work of the presidency need not be materially retarded.

The university can hardly be called a "one-man job" when the many deans are considered, each of whom has almost entire jurisdiction over his particular section. It would seem that by this time the university must be so well organized that it can be successfully carried on by the competent assistants which the president has secured. They have had ample opportunity to learn his ideas. If not, there is occasion for criticism of the administration.

Let us, therefore, consider this question from more than one angle and not pass a too hasty judgment without enquiring into all sides of the situation.

PROM QUEEN RUNS OFF WITH MAISEL

he shouted. It seems that while Haley ceased his dance with Miss Irene Harley for a moment in order to reprimand Larry Hall for indulging too freely in the Shimmy, Lorenz Maisel, all-conference beauty star, had seized Miss Harley by the hand and dragged her unceremoniously down the stairs.

Violence Follows

Shrieking madly, Harley rushed down the stairs in the direction taken by the fleeing pair, followed by the entire assemblage. At the entrance, he found his way blocked by Henry Gotfredson, Dave Weiss, Russel Fetter, "Pat" Donaghey and a host of other S. A. E's, who were drawn up in a solid phalanx before the door.

Backed by the Gunderson Fraternity, and a score of Prom guests, Harley charged the barrier. In the ensuing battle, a number of the warriors were rendered almost destitute of clothing and several co-eds lost consciousness.

A shower of cracked marble was brought down by the sharp contact of Len Erickson's head with the wall, and Harley was struck with one of the state's $500 golden gobboons, knocking out the bottom of the cuspidor and forcing it over his head so tightly that it required the services of a tinner and a blacksmith to remove it four hours later.

Harley and Police In Pursuit

When the defenders of the door had been trampled underfoot and the pursuers had commandeered the remaining cars, the tail light of the fleeing taxi was disappearing in the fastness of the other end of State street. By this time the entire police force had arrived, and it followed the chase, mounted on a motorcycle.

The chase led out along the Middleton road, the cars plunging through the dark at breakneck speed. When about two miles this side of the wet metropolis, the taxi was forced to slow down to allow the Middleton bus to pass, reducing the distance between fugitives and pursuers to a few yards. With reckless abandon, Harley's car stuck to the middle of the road and struck the bus a smashing blow, hurling it into the muddy ditch. Three prominent students, whose names are withheld on request, were seen to crawl from the bus and disappear into the darkness.

Throughout the chase, Kenenth Harley could be seen leaning half out of the car, brandishing an umbrella as he heroically led the pursuit. The cuspidor added the final regal touch to his brow.

Irene Weds Maisel?

The Saint Paul train was pulling away from the platform when Maisel with Miss Haley rushed across the platform and leaped upon the steps. Harley was just in time to seize the coat-tails of Maisel's full dress suit. The coat parted with a resounding snap, throwing Harley back upon the platform.

It appears that the plans of the conspirators had included a minister on the train, for the outwitted pursuers claim they could see the eternal knot being tied under the light of the observation platform of the vanishing coach.

"Bye, bye, 'Ken' dear," yelled the eloping Prom Queen as the train pulled out of the Middleton station.

"Bah, bah," mocked the Prom hero.

Harley Tries Suicide

In an impassioned address at the Beta indignation mass meeting an hour later, Harley swore eternal vengeance. When told it was his duty for "Irene's sake" to leave her to whatever fate her true lover, Maisel, might lead her to, Harley rushed to the edge of the Beta pier and plunged into the lake, determined to end it all.

Gunnar Gunderson, Jack Brindley and Phil La Follette dove after him and forced him to change his intentions, for the time being, at least.

Harley is temporarily deranged, physicians pronounced early this morning, and his face is disfigured beyond recognition.

Gotfredson Arrested

That Henry Gotfredson, varsity tennis player and S. A. E. member, hurled the state cuspidor which ringed the Prom chairman's neck, was the deduction of Pete Burns, detective.

On the strength of Charles Batty, chief university janitor and stool pigeon for Goodnight, Gotfredson was placed under arrest. Request for release on bail was denied.

That other prominent S. A. E. members aided in the elopement is charged also by the Betas, whose case will be handled by Senator Robert M. La Follette.

Warrants for the arrest of at least a dozen of the members have been issued, but they cannot be served until the return of the Madison police force, which from latest reports was stranded in Middleton.

Sherr Mobilizes His Troops

However, the S. A. E.'s have fortified their shack on the lakeshore, and are prepared to resist all attempts at arrest.

The Betas have taken up the fight where Harley left it, after his futile attempt to commit suicide, and the Latin quarter bids fair to become the theatre for a sanguinary battle scene.

It is rumored that Major Joe R. Sherr will call out the University Cadet corps to quell the rioting between the two Greek brotherhoods Lieut. Tommy Atkins was seen cleaning the muzzle of his firing-piece, and Major Sherr had his boots shined at Prouty's at 6 o'clock this morning.

Alpha Phi will entertain the varsity wrestling team at an informal shimmy dance on the chapter mat tonight.

An effort will be made to have the Four Lakes Naval Training station put in operation again so that the Gob members of the Khaki and Blue club may regain their former prestige with the sorority women. The good ship Rock and Rye is still in operation, but it needs more co-operation on the part of the members, and for this reason along with many others, Major Sherr declares there is need of reestablishing the Naval Preserve.

"However, I will have nothing to do with the Navy," said Major Sherr. "Tommy Atkins will probably be relegated to the task of reorganizing the gobs.'"

BIRGE FIRED FROM OFFICE BY "SCOTTY"

Cardinal office from the most representative sororities and fraternities congratulating the paper on the stand it has taken.

Petitions are circulating the campus and it is estimated that there have been more than 2,000 signers. Student opinion has again been trampled on and indignation rules supreme. Very dire results are sure to occurr if Prexy is not at once re-instated, is the opinion of the entire faculty and teaching staff.

Goodnight in Defense

Tonight Wisconsin is tense and quiet under the strain of having no leader. The tower clock is not striking regularly, and it is reported that strange presences are to be seen around the stiff lab in the Science building. The end of this suspension will not come until next October when the regents meet.

Dean Goodnight denied that he offered the position to Wald, declaring that he merely mentioned him as a prospective candidate for the job. "It is up to the Regents to appoint a successor," said Goodnight.

Regents to Decide

Theodore M. Hammond, Milwaukee, president of the Board of Regents was called to the phone late last night and expressed great surprise at the action of the committee. "Who will be Birge's successor?" was asked.

"I know of no one but Goodnight who will take the job for the remainder of the current academic year," said Hammond. "However, there are only six weeks of school remaining and it is not necessary to have a regular president appointed now. Goodnight is the man for the emergency if Wald will not accept"

MOOSE HANSON CHARGED WITH KISS BURGLARY

Will be Tried by S. G. A. Monday; Asylum or Pen

Maurice M. Hanson, varsity athlete, charged with stealing a kiss from Miss Liela F. Mead '22, last Monday night, will be tried by S. G. A. in the S. G. A. room at Lathrop parlors Monday night.

Miss Mead, who resides at Mrs. Grady's 710 Langdon street, is preferring the charges. Her lawyers will be Margaret Craighill and Alice Porterfield. The case for the defense will be handled by Attorneys Lawrence Hall and Mahlon Caradine. Helen B. Smith will judge the trial, and hand down the decision.

Kiss Deliberate, Prosecution

Miss Mead's attorneys contend that Hanson deliberately compromised the young lady on Grady's front porch by forcefully smacking her innocent lips. The crime was premeditated, and the girl's innocence taken advantage of, declare the prosecution, and they will push the case to the limit to convict Hanson. Miss Mead is not yet 16. They have subpoenaed as witnesses Victor Moses, Mary Nolan, Frank Golley, Mary Jane Lucas, James Walsh and Katherine K. Whiting. Misses Nolan, Lucas and Whiting all reside at Grady's.

Kiss Impulsive, Defense

The defense, declares Laurence Hall, will admit that Miss Mead was kissed by Hanson, but will contend that the kiss was not premeditated, that it was tendered in a spasm of intoxicated revelry, that Hanson's action was merely impulsive and that he was subconsciously irresponsible, inasmuch as he was encouraged to the high emotional point by the girl herself. The defense will endeavor to place an equal share of the blame for the scandal on Miss Mead.

The trial bids fair to attract more attention than any of the student self government cases tried at the university for years.

Hanson Faces Pen or Asylum

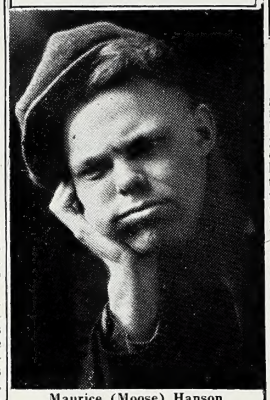

"The fundamental principle involved," declared Dean Louise F. Nardin, "means that this case will create a precedent in the annals of student self government. I only hope that all of the evidence in the case will be uncovered and that Misses Craighill and Porterfield will have abundant evident to convict Hanson on more than one count."

Plea of Insanity?

It was rumored that if Hanson lost the trial, his attorneys would carry it to the Student Court, and that the defense in that court would be based on the insanity plea.

"They will never put Hanson in the pen," declared Attorney Caradine. "We will land him at Mendota before we will permit them to put him over the road. Once in Mendota, we can trust to his athletic prowess to get him out of the asylum."

FACULTY ASSUMES CONTROL OF DANCING

S. G. A. Rules are Adopted; Kehl and Sari Fields in Charge

The good old days of jazz and the shimmy at Wisconsin are over. Terpsichorean activity at Wisconsin will be faculty controlled.

This decision was rendered yesterday after a short and quiet joint session of S. G. A., Y. W. C. A., Y. M. C. A. and Deans Goodnight and Nardin. Faculty sanction was secured.

All dancing will be done in strict accordance with a stringent set of rules which S. G. A. recommended to the Student Life and Uninteresting committee, and which was in turn recommended by that committee to the faculty, who adopted the system at a special meeting yesterday afternoon.

Professors F. W. Kehl and Miss Sari Fields will be placed in supreme control of the new dancing system. No student who has not learned his steps from either of these dancing authorities will be permitted on any Madison dance floor, under penalty of expulsion.

All university dancing will be held in the gymnasium. There will be two dances a week, on Friday and Saturday nights. There will be no shimmying permitted, and the waltz, two-step, and old fashioned quadrille will comprise the major part of the dancing program. Each couple who attends the dance will be properly chaperoned by a member of the faculty This faculty member must be the scholastic advisor of either the man or the woman. Saxophone and trombone music will be taboo, the committee agreeing that the strains of these instruments aroused the barbaric passions of the dancers.

Each fraternity and sorority will be allowed one dance a semester, these dances to be governed by the new rules and regulations, and to be conducted personally by Professor Kehl and Sari Fields

Thompson's orchestras will be no more, and jazz strains will be superseded by the old-time orchestras, with their cornets, bass viols, and accordians.

MAISEL-HALEY NOT WEDDED ON TRAIN

Waukegan Dispatch Gives Wedding Account; Irene Happy

ASSOCIATED SQUEEZE.

(Special to the Daily Cardinal)

WAUKEGAN, Ill., April 26, 1919 (6 a. m.)—Another happy and sensational romance has culminated at Waukegan.

Lorenz Jacob Maisel, 17, and Irene Willneverwed Harley, 24, were licensed and married by the Rev. I Will Hitchem, early this morning. They arrived on a special train.

The union of this happy pair was the culmination of a romance started nearly two years ago when Miss Harley first entered the University. Maisel, considered the handsomest basketball forward in the conference, had courted the fair bride consistently since.

Maisel, however, was not selected by his class to lead the annual Junior Promenade, but the honor went to his subsequent rival, Kenneth Haley. Haley chose Miss Harley as his partner to lead the grand shimmy carnival in the state capitol, and though Mrs. Maisel had often professed great love for the social leader, her heart had been sworn to the handsome basketball star, and the elopement, they say, was inevitable.

"I'm so happy," said the pretty bride, as she lovingly clasped the arm of her handsome husband

Their future plans will be kept dark until the excitement of the elopement in university circles subsides.

WHO'S WHO AT WIS.

Inside Dope for All

By LOWELL J. RAGATZ

Milton Keats Casey, the popular garbage collector at Lathrop Commons has been on the payroll of the University of Wisconsin for 43 years. Since his arrival on the ox-cart express from Boston in 1866, he has served in various administrative and executive departments of this institution, rising during that time from a professorship to his present position of eminence.

Milton was born in Moose Jaw, Maine, on February 31, 1848. His father, Patrick Casey, was pastor of the local Presbyterian church, while his mother was at one time a leading burlesque player on the frontier town circuit. He was educated at Harvard, receiving his B. A. in Philosophy at the age of 12, and a master's degree in Science the following year.

Upon the outbreak of the Civil War, he enlisted as a drummer boy, and although twice wounded in the back, he served until he was discharged. He was cited for bravery as the result of having taken a rebel flag unaided from a dead Confederate colour bearer the day after Bull Mountain. Returning home, he heeded Horace Greeley's advice, and with $13.23 in his pants, left for the Indian infested West. His money ran out just before arriving at Madison, and he went no farther.

On the strength of his sheepskin, he secured a job as instructor in Philosophy at the university, then a struggling academy consisting of North and South Halls, 243 acres of woodland, 5 Indian mounds, and a hill. Here his versatility showed itself. In 1870, he was made assistant professor of Chinese; in 1879, associate professor of eugenics; in 1888, professor of criminology and baboonologism; in 1899, Dean of the College of Theology. In 1909 he was promoted to his present position.

Dr. Casey is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Chi Psi, T. N. E., White Bones, Screaming Skull, the Middleton Club, and some seventy societies of literari and scientists. Last year, he was American delegate to the International Convention of Garbage Men of the World, held in the Royal Palace at Versailles.

He is the author of five feet of books on Marriage Customs in Timbictoo, Was Shakespeace Bacon? Expurgations in Boccacio, Topographical Anatomy, Booze from Corncobs, A Uniform Accounting System for Garbage Collectors, The Digestibility of Limburger Cheese, Simple Algebraic Invariants, Diseases of Roses, Food Waste in Baluchistan, and kindred subjects. His works have all been translated into 19 languages, including the Yiddish.

NOTE—This is the 13th of a series of articles by Lowell J. Ragatz on the prominent men of the university. The next, relating the way in which Prof. Benjamin W. Snow invented and perfected his world famous perpetual motion machine, will appear in Sunday.

"SNAPPY SATIRE" ON CAMPUS SOON

Warner Taylor to Publish Notorious Scandal Magazine

"Snappy Satire" a scream of salubrious scandal, is the latest of publications that will grace the campus periodically from now on.

The new organ will be published by Prof. Warner Taylor, university censor of undergraduate publications, supported by a staff composed of Deans S. H. Goodnight and Louise F. Nardin, and all members of the Wisconsin Literary Magazine, which will discontinue publication with the appearance of the new booklet.

Snappy Satire will be patterned after Jim Jam Jems, but will be profusely illustrated throughout, thus having an additional appeal to subscribers who revel in the sensational.

Snappy Satire will be made up entirely of material censored from the 1919 and 1920 Badger satire section besides bits excluded from Skyrockets. Editor Taylor promises students and faculty "with the greatest conglomeration of scandal, gore and sensationalism ever gathered for presentation to the reading public."

"For two years I have conducted a thorough search for the choicest scandal in the university," declared Editor Taylor, "and I believe I have it. The first issue will be an expose of under co-educational life at Wisconsin, and besides the spicy reading matter will contain over one hundred of the choicest scandal pictures I have ever analyzed."

What the Frosh Are Told

Delta Tau Delta

AL ROGERS—"What a pleasure this is going to be for good old Delta Tau Delta. The boys wanted me to come up here and talk to you about joining us. To come down to facts, we have a swell bunch of fellows here. Every one of them has great capacity and great ability. Just look at the cups on the mantel which we have won. You realize that it takes wonderful men to win things like that, don't you? Some of them are bowling cups and some are basket-ball cups, and some are just plain cups which we use for secret purposes, but they all signify ability of some kind. We think that you are the kind of a man who has ability and capacity, and want you to wear this pledge of ours. It is one of the biggest things in school, and as soon as you put it on, you see how popular you will become. Everybody on the street will speak to you. Did you notice how everyone called me Al when we walked down the street a minute ago? That's because I'm a Delt. It's the same way with Chick and Russ and Howie and Bill, and all the boys over here. A splendid bunch of boys and the most popular on the hill. You should be flattered to have an offer like this, so here's the pin."

Delta Upsilon

BILL DELANEY—"Well, old man, wait a second until I shine my shoes and we'll have a good little chat in my room. You have been here about ten minutes now, and have had a good look at our men, so I am going to ask you to wear this pledge pin. By the way, how do you like this new shirt that I have on? Doesn't it go well with my tie? But to get back to the Fraternity, I don't believe you can find a better bunch of men than we have here in D. U. Look at Hipke for instance,—a big man on the hill, and an athlete, and was a naval aviator in the War. Was a real flyer, did stunts 'n everything. Then we have Stan Gaveney, a remarkable boy, and some billiard player. Stan and I both have that pool-table crease in our trousers, and also, old timer, if you join our club, you'll get in with some of the best girls in school, the Tri Delts, a wonderful collection of girls. When you join a fraternity don't forget the girl side of it. We practically have a lien on all the good girls in school, and you ought to break your neck grabbing this pretty pin I have here for you."

Delta Kappa Epsilon

TONY ZULFER—"Some place, isn't it? How would you like to call this home while you are in Madison? All you have to do is to wear this pledge pin which I have here for you, and which I know you will do, but just as a matter of policy I'll tell you a few things about the Dekes. You have probably heard how strong we are in the East, but why not look at us right here. Why just look at Fannie Ward, easily the social leader of the university. Fannie has the enviable record of having been out with nearly every girl in school. And Fannie also has a wonderful capacity for a little fellow. That's why we call him the "Liquid Deke". He takes care of the social side of this fraternity. As for athletics, I'm not boasting, but look at the facts. I'm captain of the basketball team, and we won three games this year. Also look at Tuts Cram. Tuts would have won at least five "W's" if he wasn't ineligible all the time. Turning to scholastics, we haven't many Phi Betes, but brains abound in good old Deke. Roosevelt was a Deke, and Bill Flogaus is a Deke. Bill is holding down one of the biggest jobs in school this year—managing inter-fraternity basketball, he's a piano player, and an all-around man (all around Ella). Now that I have gone over the chapter and let you into the workings of the fraternity, here's the pin I was talking about, and which you will be crazy to wear."

Phi Gamma Delta

WHITNEY SEYMOUR—"Pardon me, old man, but that's my foot you are stepping on. Won't you have a chair? Well, you've had about ten minutes to look us over; what do you say to wearing our little pledge pin? You won't find a better bunch in school—look at me, for example! And say, boy, when it comes to grades, join our bunch and you won't have to study. We control the faculty. We control the Kappa's, too, but of course that's between me and you. Or, if you don't care about the Kappa's, play in the jazz band. We play at all the open houses and get away big, like my feet. Politics, too. The fellows don't all take an interest in school politics, but I can put you across for anything you want, unless I want it myself. Guess we can get along. Here's the pin. Put it on, and come on down and shake hands with some of the fellows."

Theta Delta Chi

BOB REWEY—"Well, you see it's just this way. You've seen about all there is to see now and we want to slip you the old pledge pin. Just take a good look at it. You'll never get a chance like this again. As far as that goes, you don't have to look the bunch over—look at me. I always get away big where noise counts, and what would I have been without old Theta Delt. Listen to me, boy—if you want to get into 'Skull and Crescent' our little pledge pin is a sure pass. Of course all the boys don't part their hair in the middle, and bat high with the Pi Phis as I do, but don't hold that against us. You might visit every fraternity in school, and you'd come back eventually to old Theta Delt anyway, so let's put on the little old button and make you one of the boys."

Phi Kappa Sigma

"SONNY" RAY—"Wasn't that funny tho? But getting serious again—you know I am just naturally funny. Just kind of naturally fits in with my looks, I guess. As I was saying: Oh, boy, if you want to be a R. O. T. C. officer, all you have to do is say the word and we will make you one. Don't take the house too serious, we are going to build before it busts. Wasn't that funny? I always keep them laughing. Let me think. What did I ask you up here for? Oh, yes, that reminds me of another funny one I want to tell you while I have something in my head. You see, joke and cap is too much to have on the brain at one time. Now I have it: I want to put this pledge pin on you, and then I will tell you the joke."

S. A. E.

HANK GOTFREDSON— (With the aid of the rest of the chapter in the act of rushing the poor frosh off his feet)—"We are mighty glad ,old man, to be able to make you an S. A. E. and we are going to put this little pin on your lapel so that you can show the world that you are pledged to the best there is. Of course you want to know a little about about us and we may be able to tell you a lot of things that haven't come to your attention yet, although by this time we know that you have heard a good deal about us. We go in for everything and generally manage to win a place in all the interfraternity contests somehow or other. You ought to see our bowling and basketball and baseball teams. Then too, the biggest thing in school is the standings you send home to the folks, and you need have no worry about them if you are taking commerce because we get all our commerce men into Beta Gamma Sigma. And socially—well, you should see our parties—we have some humdingers when the faculty will let us. There you are: now don't take it off, because you'll always regret it if you do."

Sigma Nu

DICK EDE—"Just wait a second until I tell the bunch to quit pounding the piano. You see, everyone is a musician here and since you say you can play, we want you to join. Of course when it comes to real jazz, they all take off their hats to Sigma Nu. Thompson gets all his best men here,'and if you want to improve yourself to perfection, leave it to us. Look at me—I couldn't play at all before I joined Sigma Nu, but being naturally musical I just picked up the old jazz idea around the house, and now I don't have to play second fiddle to any of them. Here's the pin. Just wear it under your coat, or carry it around in your pocket for a few days. We want you to try it for a little while to see how you like it. That's the way we get them. Some scheme too. We are quite a loud bunch here. We're always heard on Henry Street. But our noise don't interfere with our studying—we let our neighbors worry about that."

Phi Delta Theta

HERB RIGHT—"Our social committee has announced a dance for next Friday night and we'd like to have you come. Of course to make you one of the crowd we'd like to have you put our little button on and then you would be almost one of us. You know of course that we are the oldest fraternity in school, and—well you have met our fellows and they are O. K. plus. Anything you want to do—they'll do it. We can stage a party at Middleton or at the Park with equal success. And the girls all have such a wonderful time at our parties. They get so happy —its the punch in the punch—oh you should see them go home with their hair down their backs. Socially—well what we can't do can't be done. Come over to dinner Sunday night—sure bring her along. And did you ever notice how well our gang is always dressed? Well you see its like this—we don't wear our clothes except when we go to classes and the rest of the time we run around in our bath robes. You surely have seen the fellows playing ball out in the street in their robes haven't you? It's a great life and you had better join the gang."

Chi Psi

BRAD HIGBIE—"Some home we have here—what say you? Of course you know it's the best in Madison. And we are known the campus over as the 400 of the fraternities. Our mansion and the superb furnishings and all, and how they do help us socially. Of course you know all about the drag we have with the D. G.'s—on the Q. T. the Psi U's think they have the drag, but they don't know us. We'd be awfully glad to take you over and introduce you to the chapter after we put this little pledge button on you. We have such a good stand in over there that this little pin is all that will be necessary for an introduction. And aside from the purely social end look at what we have done otherwise. 'Al' Spafford and 'Mike' Ramsey are shining lights on the campus and I'm not egotistical in saying that I am known myself, as well as some of the other brothers. Better come and live in the castle with us. But whatever you do, don't pledge Psi U."

Psi Upsilon

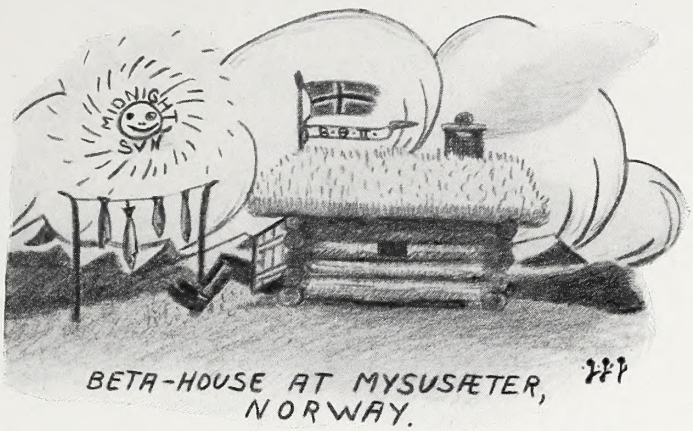

SAM MARSHALL—"How do you think this would look on your left lapel? Pretty swell, eh? Stand off and let me see how it looks. Ah, you'll do us credit, my boy. What? Now listen here! You can't do any better than make this your home while you are in the University. We need you and you need us. We've got a fine place here and with your ability and talent we can make you one of the leading men in school. Just look at our men, compare them with men in other fraternities. They may accuse us of snobbishness, but it's only jealousy. We're different than any of the other fraternities around here and we cater to different men. But we don't have to cooperate with any other fraternities around school—probably a little with the Sigma Phis and Dekes, and a couple of Alpha Delts—the rest are immaterial to us. Our men are so good that we just push ahead on our own merits. But whatever you do, don't pledge Chi Psi."

Kappa Sigma

PORTER BROWN—"Hey! bring in a pledge button for this man; I forgot to bring one. We are taking it for granted that you will want to wear it and become one of Scotty Goodnight's right hand men. You know Scotty is a Kappa Sig and we just get away with murder around this school. We can do anything we want and while the other fraternities would have their social privileges taken away from them we get by without a murmur. We've got the best athletes in the Frosh class too and they nearly won the basketball tournament for us. And we rival the Betas too for Norwegians with Sundt and Solbra. We take good care of our Frosh and never let anyone run over them. I generally go out with them nights and protect them against unruly upperclassmen or town bums. You should have seen me protect a bunch of them on State street the other night. And I run freshmen politics in school too. How would a class office sound to you? Just slip on this little pledge pin and the office is yours."

Sigma Phi

LARRY HALL—"We'l, old man, don't you think we are a wonderful bunch? We like you too, and that brings me right to the point. Always go direct to the point in what you have to say, and then say it. All lawyers do. But what I started to say was that the boys have looked you over and you looked pretty good to us, and we want you to put on this little decoration and be one of us. It isn't becoming in me to say so, but you're mighty lucky to get the chance. It means something to go Sigma Phi. We see to it that every man in the chapter becomes prominent, no matter how poor he is. Look what we did for Johnny McPherrin, and look what the boys did for me. And that isn't all. We have the strongest drag with the co-eds—but we only fuss the Kappas, and occasionally a Theta or Gamma Phi. Exclusiveness has always been our cardinal principle, so to speak. We always aim to be different. If you come with us you'll be known as an individual, not as one of the mob. We live out in the country to be different. and we always have our Badger picture taken out here with our legs crossed for the same reason. Better let me pin it on, and your future in the University will be assured."

BETA-HOUSE AT MYSUSÆTER, NORWAY.

The Way the Betas Do It

TIME—Present.
PLACE—Christiania, Norway. The Beta hunting ground.
Enter King Woodward with telephone directory in his hand, and large following of Betas. King so named because of his job as Rushing Chairman.
KING—"Well, boys, there are only about six hundred 'Gundersons' listed here, but we'll do the best we can. I want each of you to take a telephone directory and call up all the families whose names end in 'son' or 'sen' and ask for rushees; then, report to me at the 'Melting pot' within two years."
Exit King.
Curtain.
TIME—One year later.
PLACE—Beta House. Exterior. Single line of men dressed in skiis and sardine-skin coats. Line beginning at the door of King Woodward's room and ending at Lake and State Streets.
Enter King Woodward, rubbing his hands together in fiendish glee, and grinning the grin of the conqueror.
KING—"Bring them up to the den, one at a time."
Scene changes to Interior of Woodward's room. King seated in large one-armed chair, twirling an imaginary mustache. Millions of Betas spread hither and yon around him. First of the line standing meekly before him.
KING—"What's your name, lad?"
RUSHEE—"Hjalmar Skyenson."
KING—"Your pedigree?"
RUSHEE—"Ay cam froom the great familyee of Skyensons who first med de skafety match."
KING—"How long will it take you to learn the English language?"
RUSHEE—"About far months, skir"
KING—"Good. Put on this button, and move your luggage in room 368."
RUSHEE—"Yes skir. Ay vill do him."
KING (to following)—"Bring in the next man."
They do so.
KING—"What's your name?"
RUSHEE—"Olaf Larson."
KING—"Your pedigree?"
RUSHEE—"Ay cam froom das familyee uf Larsons who var das furst to catch skardines fur her Royal Highness, de Qveen uf Norway."
KING—"How do you like America."
RUSHEE—"Ay tank him van grand place."
KING—"Wear this button, and move in room 369."
And so on until the Beta chapter reaches its pre-war strength of 96 actives and the 400 rooms are filled

How the Sororities Do It

The following are the official rushing rules of Pan-Hell, and that's what they sound like:

1. No rushing shall take place previous to the receipt of a High School diploma.
2. Rushing may take place Monday, 1:09 to 6:02 P. M., Tuesday, 8:41 A. M. to Thursday, 9:68 P. M., and any day subsequent to the Day of Rest. There shall be no rushing after 9:68 P. M.
3. Each sorority shall be limited to one function an hour which shall be filed before September Morn, with the Dean of Women and the President of Pan-Hell.
4. On the first day the function shall consist of open house. The refreshments shall be limited to a glass of water, rye bread and a pickle.
5. Written bid system shall be used. The bid shall be written on pink linen paper in a clear legible hand and only on one side.
6. Invitations may be sent out after 8:01 P. M., June 25th. No chapter members shall be present at these formal occasions as they may influence the rushees for their sorority.
7. After 9:02 P. M. on every day of rushing the sorority is open to guests. Guests will present a permit and references.
8. There shall be no rushing done in public buildings, cloak rooms, Black Hawk Cave, Maple Bluff, or the bottom of the lake. The observatory may be used, but the big telescope is taboo.
9. No freshman or upper-classman shall be told how to write his name, what day of the month it is, or in any way be helped to register by anyone having the slightest connection with a sorority.
10. No Freshman shall stop all night with any person afflicted with a sorority. To do so may result in their becoming acquainted, which these rules aim to prevent.
11. Junior advisors may call on freshmen if they do not wear any insignia and do not reveal the fact that they belong to any sorority. It will be better in fact if they will try to persuade their prospective pledge not to join any sorority at all.
12. If a new girl has been traveling for 49 hours, is unaccompanied, and is a total stranger, she may be met at the train if a special permit can be secured from the Dean of Women.
13. Rushees may be called for and taken home. Every precaution must be taken to avoid their knowing where they have been or what they heard or saw.
14. It is permissible to use taxicabs in going to and from the station. A rushee may have her luggage transported by an auto truck, but they must not be driven by any member of the sorority.
15. These rules shall be binding on all members, both dead and alive.

(Sour Grapes Association)

War is Hell and so is S. G. A. Here you have our artist's conception of it, inspired by having to hand his girl over to the tender mercies of the landlady at 10 o'clock, just about when she was ready to lay her head on his shoulder and to admit that he was the nicest fellow on earth. And thus is it always forever taking the joy out of life and hanging crepe wherever Helen B. can drive a nail. No skating after 7:30, no auto riding after 9:00, no telephoning after 10:00, heavy woolen blouses at dances,—what a host of pleasant memories S. G. A. will leave with every co-ed! Pan Hell Rushing Rules and S. G. A. Fussing Rules—all a co-ed needs is a governess to make her existence ideal. More power to S. G. A.! Barnum was right.

Censored!

(Editor's Note—These pictures properly belonged in the war section, but they were tabooed by the military censor. They show the Wisconsin spirit from a different angle, and demonstrate the successful application of co-education in military life.)

Wisconsin Answers the Call to Arms—Sergeant Fred W. Brodda, '15, back from the French front on brief rest leave, demonstrates the affectionate qualities of the French girl, but Lieut. "Hobe" Bondi, '19, stationed at Camp Zachary Taylor, Louisville, Ky., writes, "Why go to France when they outnumber us 2 to 1 in the good old U. S. A.?"

Over Here

Seeing St. Louis! Well! Well! Well! Of all the small town stuff! To think these guys would fall for it. Y' see, that girl ain't really with 'em. And they ain't really goin' anywhere. It's just one of those six for a nickel photograph shops, and she gets paid by the hour to have her picture taken with rubes that want to show the folks what they do in the city, b'gosh. Notice the expression on her face. One gets bored when one does it ten hours a day, but the boys are having a good time. They're putting something over on the folks, y'see, and their Chi Psi brethern too. O, did we forget to tell you who they were? Well, that fellow that couldn't find room for his feet is "Hank" Isaacs, and the one with the graveyard expression is "Bill" Goessling. It's a shame to give you away like this fellows, but you know how it is. We got to fill up the book.

With furrowed brow he tells of his drag with the Captain

DEER HELEN:

I bought a fount an pen offen a Jew in our gun crew an I wanted to see if it was any good. That's why I'm writin to you. I didn't think I was goin to like a sailor's life. I got kind of sick of it the second day out. But it aint so bad now that I don't need a valve in my throat to keep stuff down anymore when I get it swallowed. If the govermunt could only send everybody to sea for three or four days they could save enuf food to win the war. Somethin funny hapened the other day. A fellow wuz talkin about the automobeles an things what would be waitin for him when he got back an he asked me what I had to look forwerd to. I couldnt think of anything but you as we aint got our car yet and so I sez "Helen Highwater". He looked at me kind of funny and walked away. Jelous I guess. Though he aint got no reason to be. I aint sayin that you aint alrite, of course. You kno what I meen.

"This is me in a Harum"

"Home Was Never Like This"

We are in the Orient now Helen. I ast a fellow why they call it the Orient. I thot maybe it had somethin to do with orioles or somethin. But he said where we come from is the Occidunt an this wuz the Orient. If where we come from is the Occidunt this place here ought to be called the Accidunt. Mabe they didnt name this country after a bird, but there sure are sum birds here. I am sendin you a pictur of one I went to see the other night. Home wuz never like this. You neednt get jelous or nothin cause shes only a Hindoo an I wouldnt marry her not bein my equal. The other pictur is me in a Harum. The king of Siam came on board the ship an he gave me a pass to visit his Harum. Thats me with a dishcloth around my head. I had to put on sum kind of

"She'd Make A Fine Present for the Delts"

"I've Seen Lots of Them in Frank's Restaurant"

"They call themselves the Kappahs, and are all devvotees of Omar"

style. I knoo the fellow wuz a king the minit I seen him so I sez to him "Aint you the king?" an he sez "Yes Siam".

Well I guess Ill close, the pen seems to be alrite.

With kind regards I remain as always,

INBAD.

DEER HELEN:

I got leave from the Captin an went on shore yesturday. The Captins awful good to me. He gives me leave to go to more places than I ask for. The last time I asked him for leave he said "Take it an go to Hell" but I wouldnt take advantage of him that way. It wouldnt be polite for me to go ahead of my superior officer. I visited sum freeks when I wuz on shore. Of corse a freek aint nothin noo to me, I ust to see lots of them on the hill back at Wisconsin. Most of them wuz takin law. They aint got no lawyers in the navy, the army took them all to send up in there observashion baloons. If the gas gives out they just start em to argooing. One of these freeks wuz a sword swalower but Id seen lots of them in Franks restrant. The other wuz a snake-charmer. I thot sum of buyin her to bring back to school, She'd make a fine present for the Delts.

"Another thing I went to see wuz a fortune teller"

"I ran into Moose Hanson the other day. He wuz up to his old tricks agen"

I got another pictur of a strange religus sekt. They call themselves the Kappahs. They are all of them devvotees of Omar. He wuz a Persian filosofer before he wuz a cigaret. Though sum of the Kappahs believe in Egyptian deities.

Another thing I went to see wuz a fortune teller. She wuz one, alrite. It cost a fortune to see her an then you had to tell her everything she told you. That wuz a pretty deep one. Just like the ocean.

I ran into Moose Hanson the other day. He wuz up to his old tricks agen. That boy will come to greef sum day. He'll find a wooman that will fall for him sumtime and the shock will kill him. I see the Frosh have got to put on there green caps agen. Thats a good thing. Imagin a fellow speekin to one of them on the hill just as tho he wuz speekin to an equal and then findin out he wuz a Frosh.

"I seen Chuck Carpenter in Holland. He wuz in Dutch"

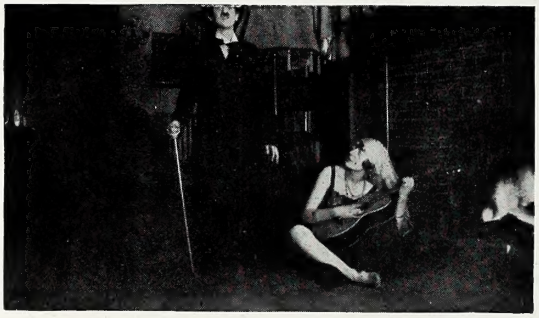

"This here Orient is a grate Place"

I didnt mind the fall tho. It wuz landing that hurt. One of the fellows ast me if it wuz a soft wood floor. The next day I hit him on the head with a piece of ice. When he got soar I told him to never mind, it wuz soft water, but he got soar anyway. Some fellows are awful unresnable.

Yours till the dog-watch barks,
INBAD.

DEER HELEN:

This here Orient is a grate place. When you get oriented. Thats another naughty cal term. I dont expect you to understand it. I dont understand it myself, so how could I expect you too? I seen all kinds of strange sites lately. Im sendin you picturs of sum of em. Bein here makes me feel like one of the Arabian Knights. You probibly red about them in history.

"I seen all kinds of strange sites lately"

I aint got much time to rite today. Got an important duty to perform. Got to help swab down the decks. That dont meen playin cards. It meens doin janitor work. I guess the janitors on this ship are all on a strike. But I dont like the idea of bein a strike-breaker. But I been doin valet work for this ship ever since I got on it. We didn't do nothin like that in the S. A. T. C. All we had to do there was keep out of Epsteins way. We wuz afraid hed want to buy our uniforms frum us and wed have to obey orders: Its agenst the law to sell your uniform. So we kept out of his way.

Well, I got to stop. I'll probibly wright to you agen. If I dont forget. I'm awful forgetful. I forgot to say "sir" when I ast for leave the last time, and the Captin forgot to give me any leave. That wuz the time I got left insted of gettin leave.

Are you goin with any other fellos? Tell me if you are

INBAD.

Well I got to quit now, its four bells. You tell the time on board a ship by bells. When they sounded the call to get up the other morning I herd one of the fellows say somethin about Hells Bells. But I dont think he knos much about geografy.

Did I tell you I seen Chuck Carpenter in Holland? He wuz in Dutch. Well I cant go on writin forever. I got somethin better to do. Sleep. They got a sayin on board the ship that if a fellow joins the navy he'll have to swing for it. I didnt kno what they ment till I found out wher I had to sleep. The first night I swang cleer out of the hammok. The flloor wuz only ate feet below so it didnt take me long to get there.

"Bein here makes me feel like one of the Arabian Knights"

"Are you goin with any other fellows?"

"Ooh la la! as the Frenchees say"

DEER HELEN:

This navy aint like the S. A. T. C. The only mast-head we ever seen there wuz the mast-head on the Regimental Eagle. They got a place on board ship they call the crow's nest. It's stuck way up on a telegraf pole an the Captin sends you up there to look for other ships. It aint really a crow's nest, Helen. Thats just a naughty-cal term. We'er havin sum auful hot weather here lately. Im beginnin to think the fellow knoo somethin about geografy after all. Yesterday I climbed up into the crow's nest an found two hard boyled eggs. I ast the C. P. O. how they got there. He sed the ship laid too in the nite. I couldnt figer out eggsactly what he ment but I guess it wuz alrite.

I got leave from the Captin to go ashor agen last nite. Me an too other fellows. The Captin gets our leaves from the hall-tree just outside his door. Thats a joke, Helen. If you dont get it I'll explane next time I rite. I visited a diferent Hindoo last nite. Oo la la, as the Frenchees say. I wore the same dish towel. On my head I mean. An I tied a cuple of curten rings to my ears. A fellow has to be stylish if he wants to get away with the wimin. Besides I needed a hair cut. I'm goin agen tonite if I can get off. But I'm goin to see a diferent one tonite. Variety. Thats what I like. I get away big with the wimin. Just like Eddie Wise. Its my looks I guess. The C. P. O. sed it must be my looks cause I didnt have any brains. Thats like Eddie Wise two.

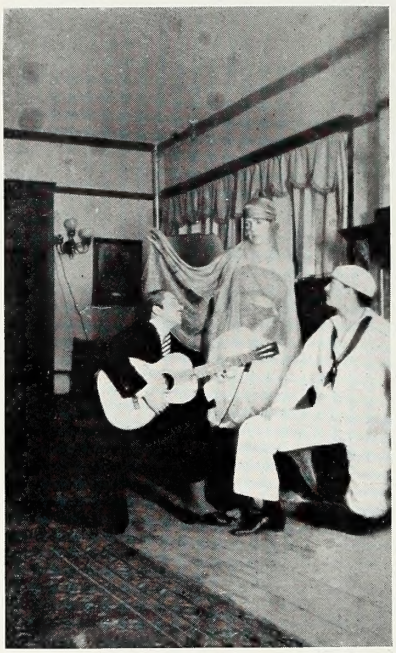

Well I cant waist any more time writin to you. I got to go see this girl. You aint soar or nothin are you?

Yours till the sharks get,

INBAD.

"I cant waist any more time writin to you. I got to go see this girl"

"I hired a fellow to seranade the last girl I wuz to see"

DEER HELEN:

The last time I ast the Captin for leave he tried to get funny. That made me homesik for the skyroket colem. You know this guy Hazzie that rites em? If you dont your probably just as well off. Anyway, the Captain ses "Dont you kno that Fall is comin?" An I ses "what did he mean?" an he ses "The leaves will soon be gone". An I ses "Yes, but I'm looking forward to Spring". An he ses "Yes, but there's goin to be a hard winter in between."

I hired a fellow to seranade the last girl I wuz to see. He played a guitar an I sang for her. But she sed she didnt care much for vocal musik. She sed she heard a Thomas orkestra just outside her window every nite and she liked that much better. I didnt kno there wuz any Thomas orkestra anymore but maybe she didnt mean the Chicago one.

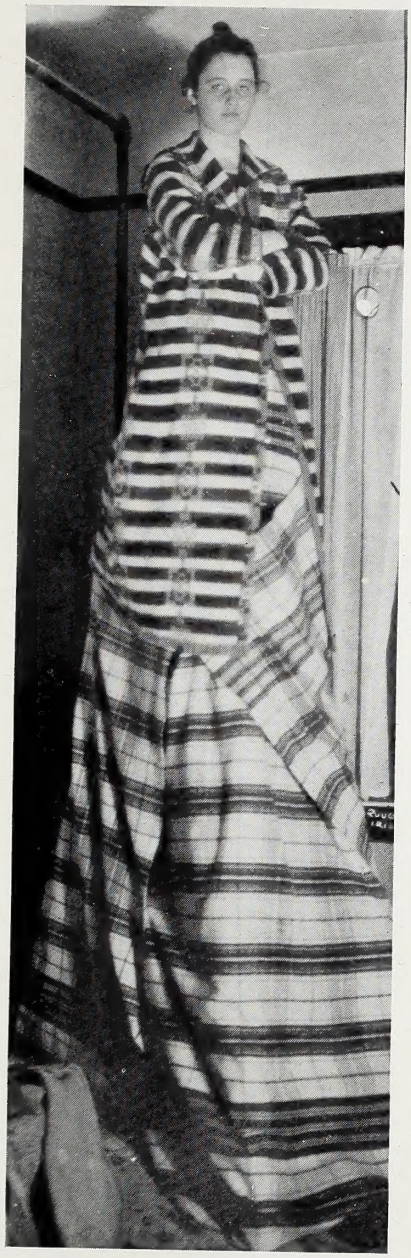

I visited another Harum again two. I'm glad I'm single. If I wuz married just think how hard it would be for my wife to keep me interusted after I got back. An I seen some more freeks two. A tall woman an a short one. I wisht youd show these picturs to Alice Porterfield an Emil Mueller. These might be sum relashion of theres for all I know. I seen a toorist the other day two. You see lots of things when you travel, Helen. Its to bad you have to stay home an remain ignerunt because you dont lern much at school. I kno I didnt, an I went to the Ag school. Except the navy experiunce I got there. That gave me an advantage over these other gobs. The Captin sed so. He sed I belonged to a class by myself. I'd like to rite more, Helen, but if Ido the postage will cost me extree. Not that I'm tite or anything but in these days we ought to cut down any unessary expenses.

Cheer up, Helen, the farther apart we are the more I want to see you,

INBAD.

"I visited another Harum—I'm glad I'm single"

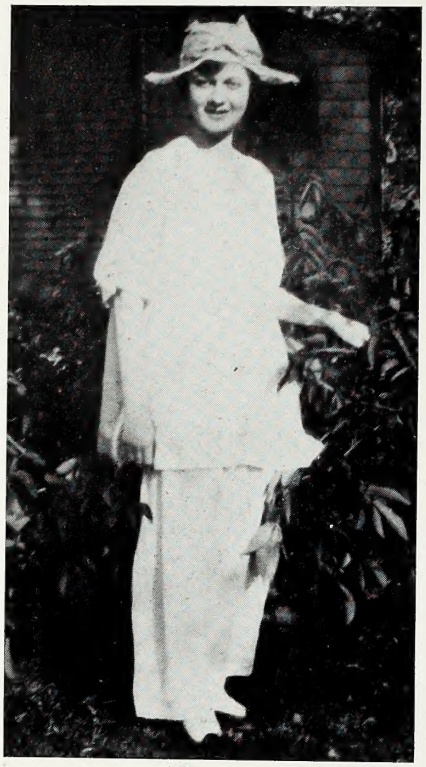

"Show this to Emil Mueller"

"Show this to Alice Porterfield"

"I seen a toorist the other day two"

"I'm sendin you a picture of a Chineze queen"

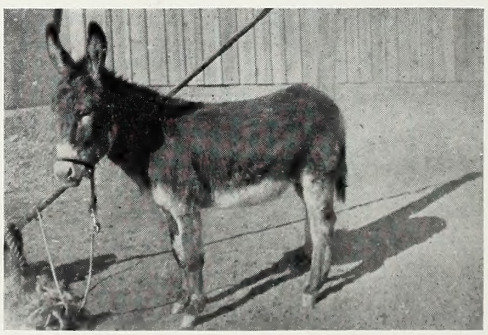

DEER HELEN:

I got your letter. I could read most of it myself. The rest of it I took to a Chineze cook to translait. He couldn't understand it eether. So I'm savin it till I get home. I hope it wasn't anything very importunt, like a wedding announsmunt, or anything. I wuz in China the other day. It wuzn't like I expexted. I didn't see any lawndrys. Thats all I thaught they did in China. But it aint. I'm sendin you a picture of a Chineze queen. One of the fellos that went ashore with me interdooced her to me. He said she was Chineze, but I think she was just a regular Alpha Chi in her pajahmas. I didn't have much to say to her, though. Not that she wuzn't allrite. I just cant speek Chineze. I needed an interperter cause I didn't kno how to interpert her Thats whut I get for not joinin the Internashunal club when they ast me to. Did I ever tell you about that? One of em saw me wun day when I needed a shave and thaught I was a Bawlsheveek. So he ast me to join rite away. But I told him no, my girl would make me shave, and he wouldn't want me when he saw me with my whiskers off. I dont kno whut made him laff.

Thats wun thing I aint seen in my travels. A Bawlsheveek, I meen. I guess this must be a pritty good part of the world. You heer things about the Chineze and there wimin's feet. That Chineze that I showed your letter to can talk a little American but he aint never been there. I showed him a pictur of Jerry Ochsner in her goulashes. He sed we aught to be ashamed to treat our wimin that way. I told him we didn't treet em that way, we treeted em at the studio. And I sed we got robbed every time we did it. He ast me if we didn't have no poleece. You cant make a Chineze understand anything. There like sum wimin I kno. Dont get soar. I didn't say I ment you.

I'm cumin home soon. I ast the Captin if I could be releesed to go back to skool. He ast me whut skool an I sed "Wisconsin." So he sed they wuzn't anything he'd like better than to send me back to Wisconsin. He went too years to Minnesota and too years to Chicago himself. So you see he appresheates a colledge man. So I'll be with you soon. Always remember that if you haven't got anything else, you have got me,

INBAD.

"A friend of mine met me at the dock"

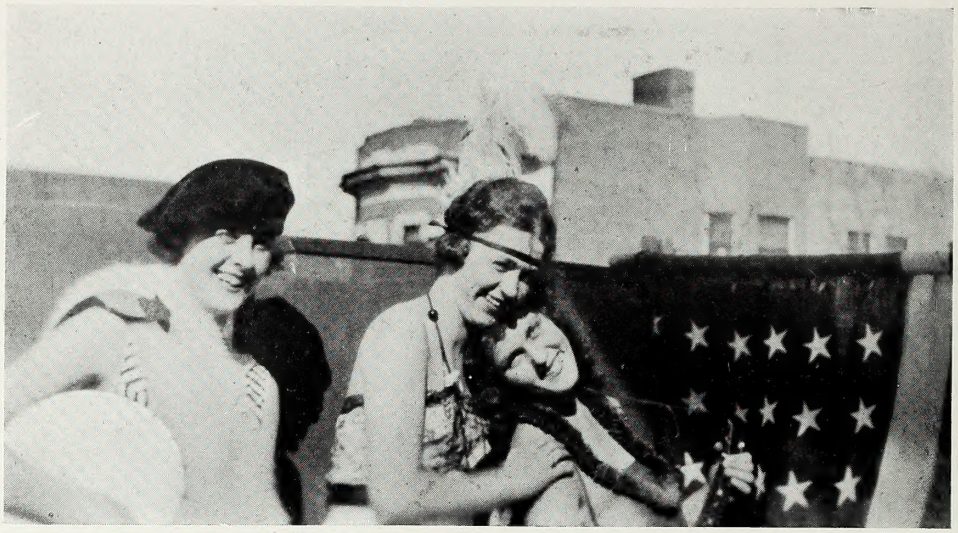

"These are pictures of parties we had on the bote"

DEER HELEN:

Hooray! I'm in New York. A frend of mine met me at the dock. I'm sendin you his pictur' The Statchoo of Liberty hadn't changed a bit since I felt. I thaught she had moved to Yoorup. But she hadn't. These other pictures are parties we had on the bote. You needn't wurry about em. There all men. Except the wimin. But there alrite. They belonged to some soroarity or sumthin. I took in a roof gardin last nite. Or it took me in. I dont kno which. They called it the Alfalfa

Flea Stock Co. But they wuzn't any fleas on them. They feetured Stars and Strips. Its funny whear I got all these picturs, aint it? Youd think it wuz funny if you seen whear I got em. I expect to have sum deckorashuns when I hit town. That is, if I can stop off in Milwaukee long enough on my way. Are you goin to Prom? I am. Maybe I'll see you there. They tell me they wont sell you a ticket unless you got the floo. But if thats the case its goodnight Prom.

Yours undeservedly,

The Rhyme of the Ancient Drinkabeer

By Krusophalax Nutopasgn, T. N. E.

It is an ancient Drinkabeer,
And he stoppeth one of three.
"By the bleary eye and whiskey breath,
Now wherefore stopeth thou me?"

"My study desk is open wide,
I have lots of work to do;
A theme to write and Math. to get.
Let go, you dirty stew."

He holds him with his quaking hand,
"I'm a T. N. E.," quoth he.
"Hold off and haul your drunken freight."
Eftsoons his hand dropt he.

He holds him with his bleary stare—
The Lonesome Stude stood still,
And listens like a Gamma Phi:
The Drinkabeer hath his will.

The Lonesome Stude sat on a chair:
He cannot choose but hear;
And thus spake on that T. N. E.,
The pickled Drinkabeer:

"We're quite a gang around this place,
Merely do we drink,
Of soda-high and sloe-gin phiz,
And stuff that looks like ink.

We meet at places west of here
Where the beer and whiskeys flow.
But when and how we get out there,
None but ourselves can know.

The reason why we are so shy
And keep our actions hidden,
Is because, to join our cheerful throng,
Is by the Profs, forbidden."

The Stude thinks of his study desk,
A Phi Bete pledge is he;
His books are calling long and loud,
And he sighs regretfully.

"Before the town was voted dry,
For us, this place was heaven.
We used to drink all afternoon
And start again at seven.

"Them were the happy days, my boy,
Oh, would that they were here.
We never had to go out west
In search of Lager Beer.

Since this town has gone bone dry,
It makes it quite unhandy,
To take a bus and go out west
For just one drink of brandy.

In spite of all the things they do
To chase us out of school,
We still exist and always will.
Sub-rosa is our Rule."

"And therefore, since the things we do
Are always kept well hidden;
'Tis hard to tell if a man belongs.
To admit it is forbidden.

Full many a big man in this school
Is a loyal T. N. E.
We've got control of politics, why
We run this 'Varsity.

You'd be surprised if I should name
The men who now do carry
That Skull and Crossed Keys pin of ours.
On that point let us tarry.

But, before I start to name a few,
You must before me swear
To tell no one that I told you.
Now do not tear your hair.

Now, first of all, there's Bathhouse Gene,
A politician, he;
He can drink his weight in Pilsener;
He swears by T. N. E.

The next man who to my mind now comes
Is a Phi Delt man named John.
He is rather stout and slow of foot,
Many a pound has he put on.

And in that same fraternity
Is Charlie from the South;
He has found our way the easiest—
To live from hand to mouth.

A Delta Tau by the name of Bob,
Well-known to all who drink.
He wears our pin and drinks our beer.
He must sleep in the sink.

And Clarence is a Kappa Sig;
Was voted in last fall.
He's a husky boy, he can hold a lot,
But he tries to drink it all.

And well could I thus name a score,
Indeed, we're quite a bunch.
But, 'twould take all night, I haven't time.
Moreover, here's a hunch.

You can never tell just who is who;
So take a tip from Dad:
Keep a still tongue in that head of yours,
If you don't, you'll wish you had."

The Drinkabeer, whose eye is dim,
Who has a thirst for more,
Is gone; and now the Lonesome Stude
Turns toward his study door.

He went like one that hath been stewed
And is of senses shorn,
A sadder and a wiser man,
He rose the morrow morn.

Not So Bad this Month

"Now, that's better! It's the first time the figures haven't given me a horrid feeling.

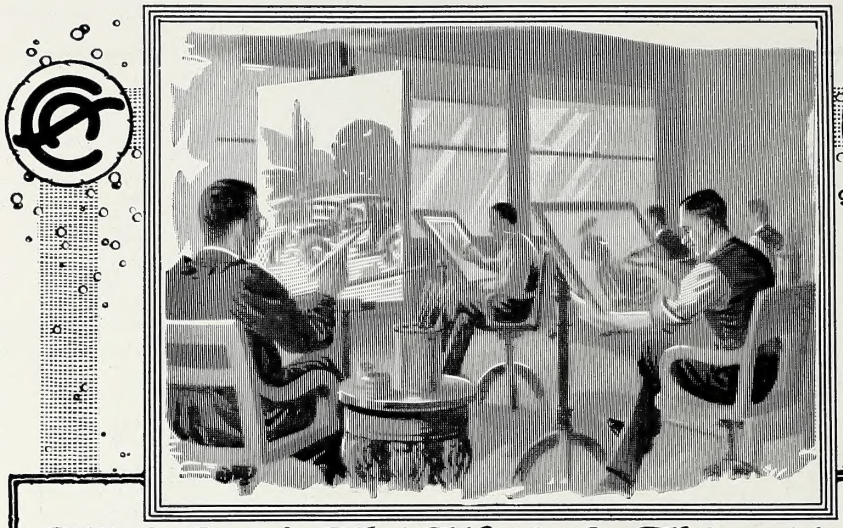

"If I'd only known sooner about Jell-O and some of the other money savers, I'm sure I'd have more dollars now and fewer wrinkles."

(NOTE—Just see the wrinkles.)

There are a good many young women and older ones too who are wasting money and time making desserts and salads of materials that cost more, require more time and effort than Jell-O does, and then are not half so good.

Jell-O is made in six pure fruit flavors: Strawberry, Raspberry, Lemon, Orange, Cherry, Chocolate, and sold by all grocers at two packages for 25 cents.

Why Should Anyone Burden His Friends

with the care of his estate and also expose it to the risks of individual trusteeship, when he can name a responsible Trust Company an unfailing executor and trustee? This Company has wide investing experience, a permanent organization, ample capital, and highly specialized facilities for many sided service. No individual is in a position to afford as extensive protection.

BOB BRADFORD

The Bevo Bum

She came here to go to school. She tried the University first. She didn't like that, so she switched to 4C. After that? Rumors, nothing but rumors. Joe Sherr said in the Milwaukee Sentinel that she was going to drive an ambulance in France. Joe wasn't the only one that was fooled. But this picture shows her real occupation. Behold, Bob Bradford; the original Bevo Bum.

The Wisconsin State Journal, Foremost Progressive Paper in Wisconsin

THE Wisconsin State Journal was founded in 1839. It was first known as The Madison Express and issued weekly. It took its present name and was issued daily in 1852. It is the second oldest newspaper in the state of Wisconsin. It was the great battle-for-freedom paper in 1860 and through the Civil War it was the foremost progressive paper in Wisconsin, fighting then as now for the rights and liberties of humanity.

The Wisconsin State Journal is a thoroughly independent newspaper, devoted to the protection and advancement of broad human interests. It is the leading progressive paper in the state.

It is fearless on all issues. Its view point is optimistic, sunny and hopeful. It will not compromise and it can fight.

It stood uncompromisingly for this government in the war with Germany as an American newspaper should. It was true to its rich traditions as the American paper for a great American state. It has fearlessly fought for a united American spirit, a united American people, deploring every tendency on the part of citizens to attempt to group themselves together on lines of foreign land affiliations and antecedents, forgetting the common Americanism they professed to cherish when they swore allegiance to our flag which protects them.

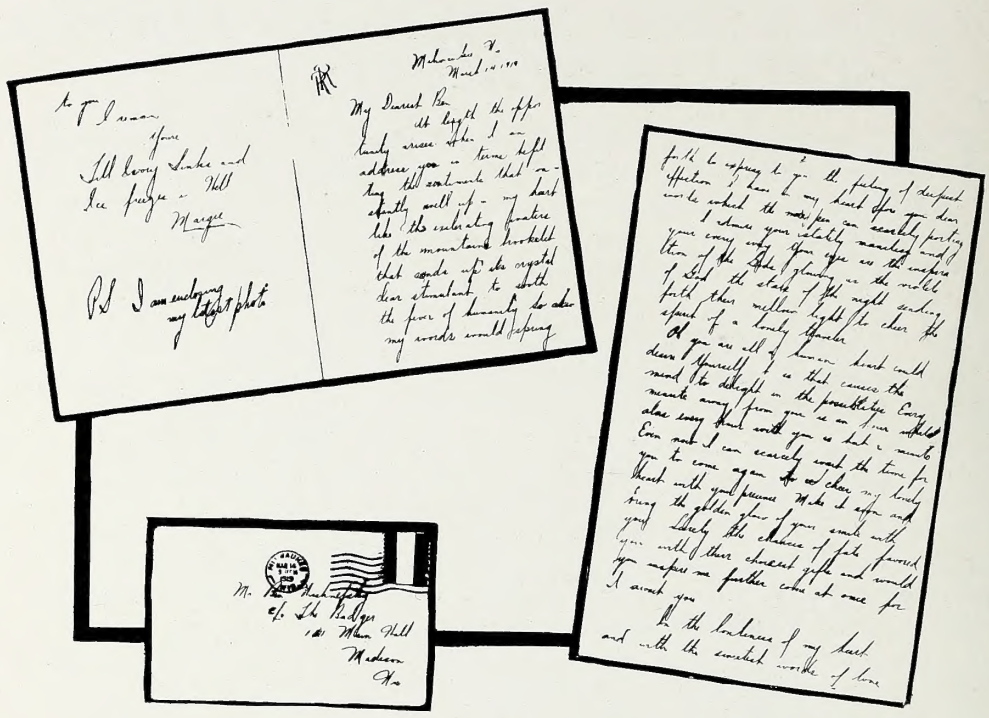

The Wisconsin State Journal not only publishes the foreign news and the national news which comes into our office over our own leased wire but it attempts to fully report and interpret the state's work centered in the state's capitol, thoroly covering the work of the legislature, the executive and judicial branches of the state's government as well as the activities of the state's commissions and departments and the great commanding constructive work which our great university is constantly doing.

In addition to all this and to the news of the city, it attempts to review the work in the educational, agricultural and industrial world. And beyond this, it reports the news of all the towns and cities that lie within the wide radius of Madison's marketing territory.

Ninety percent of the foreign advertising that comes into the city of Madison uses the columns of The State Journal for the same reason that it is the great advertising medium of Madison merchants,—it is the substantial newspaper of the people, the paper that reaches the people; it is the great home newspaper of populous southern Wisconsin.

A newspaper that is true is a greater treasure to the people than uncounted millions of gold. It is the endless book, the history of the world day by day, the schoolmaster of the common people. It is our national glory.

—Henry Ward Beecher.

Ben Wishnefsky's Romance

You'd never suspect our Ben of having a romance, but the Badger isn't the only thing that Ben thinks about. The Spring weather gets him just like it does the rest of us, then Ben has dreams of a home all his own. Forthwith he journeys to Milwaukee and ah, what does he find there? No, we're not thinking of those little loads he carries on his hip when he comes back. But of that other load he carries on his lap when he's there. However, we'll let you judge for yourself. The evidence is all here.

For your picnic parties

JONES DAIRY FARM

Sausage—tender little links or crisps patties

Bacon—broiled or panned to just the right turn

Ham—fragrant and appetizing from the green hickory boughs that smoked it

Any of these three cooked over a faggot fire under the open sky and served on a bread and butter sandwich with a cup of steaming coffee will make your picnic an unequalled success.

Valve Value

—50 years ago and today

Jenkins Valves have proved themselves every day since they were first made and installed over fifty years ago—their dependability is established.

The steady "year in and year out" service of Jenkins Valves is the result of heavier construction—stronger valves of superior metal.

Jenkins Valves are made of Brass, Iron or Cast Steel—in types and sizes to meet all requirements.

The Jenkins "Diamond Mark" on the body distinguishes genuine Jenkins Valves from imitations. Look for it—demand it.

This Jenkins No. 20 Catalog Sent on Request

It is a 256-page handy catalog of useful information, descriptive of our comprehensive line.

A word and a valuable suggestion to you regarding

"The Lost Purple Trostan Calf"

This wonderful color, rediscovered by us, and so evident in officers' shoes, boots, puttees and leggings, was during the war emergency regulations officially adopted by the Authorities and was the only "color" tanners were permitted to produce in shoe leathers. Manufacturers of high grade ladies' and gentlemen's footwear are using enabling you to obtain such shoes in nearly every first class retail store.

"Trostan Calf in the Lost Purple Color"

Be Sure to Demand Trostan Calf in Your Shoes

To further add to the popularity of this leather and prove its position as the beauty shade in colored leathers, justified and substantiated by its use in the finest shoes, purses, etc., we have made arrangements with the leading manufacturers of high grade leather goods, enabling us to supply you with gentlemen's billfolds or ladies' purses at wholesale prices, as outlined on certificate at bottom of page and will be pleased to have you take advantage of this purchasing privilege.

EFFICIENT SERVICE BY MAIL

A discovery that benefits mankind

Two discoveries have added greatly to human welfare.

In 1835 Newton originated the vacuum process for condensing milk with cane sugar to a semi-liquid form.

In 1883 Horlick at Racine, Wis., discovered how to reduce milk to a dry powder form with extract of malted grains, without cane sugar.

This product HORLICK named Malted Milk. (Name since copied by others). Its nutritive value, digestibility and ease of preparation (by simply stirring in Water) and the fact that it keeps in any climate, has proved of much value to mankind as an ideal food-drink from infancy to old age.

T. N. E. After July First

(This photograph was taken by a Badger Staff photographer in the basement of the Bachelor Apartments.)

T. N. E. will live on. Here is the proof. And all because one of the honorary brethern [redacted] has invented the wetless, but not [redacted] an entertaining concoction which has all the advantages of real liquor and none of the disadvantages. The Wisconsin Chapter of T. N. E. has been lauded by its filial chapters in other colleges and is prouder than ever of its achievements. The photograph shows the Professor and Bathhouse Gene, T. N. E. president, serving their brethern in an experimental drink fest in the basement of the Bachelor Apartments where the new and strange scientific beverage will be brewed and served. Other chapters of T. N. E. will be supplied from the same source, 'tis rumored.

(the last named was self-appointed)

(N. B.: The above names were printed solely because of the tenacious insistence of Dean Goodnight, and because in order to pacify his rantings we promised it would be done, and not because the regular members of the board desired to see their names in print. We hope we have discharged our obligation to the Dean in this respect. We claim honesty in keeping all of our promises. Why Mr. Goodnight was so insistent that the names be printed is not hard to fathom. We hope he is satisfied, and we simultaneously express our regrets that we could not see our way clear to satisfying him still further and placing the names on the "copyright" page as he first insisted we should do. The Board's picture will be found on page 623. We, the Editor, respectfully apologize to the members—we have tried to acquiesce in their wishes that their names be withheld from the pages of the Badger in connection with the Emergency Board. We are sorry if we have disgraced them—but we all must cooperate and make sacrifices in the interests of the General Cause: the speedy production of the Book.)

Lunch Time—Bed Time—Any Time

For the quick lunch—the mid-afternoon snack—the bed time drink—try Borden's Malted Milk.

It's better than a heavy lunch at noon time—doesn't slow you up the rest of the afternoon. After exercise it's just the thing to brace you up and give you something to go on till dinner. Taken hot before going to bed it's a sleep inducer, quiets the nerves.

All good fountains can give you Borden's. Remember the name—it has stood for the purest and best of milk products for over sixty-one years.

The Last Shot—A Volley of Gratitude

From the Editor's Last Trench of Defence

THE Liberty Badger—the culmination of an Idea—has been realized. We have okayed the last proof, the last of over 700 printed pages will be shipped to the bindery tomorrow, and in another ten days we hope to see 3500 Liberty Badgers in the hands of satisfied subscribers.

We are glad our job is finished, but nevertheless we shall always cherish the few lively months spent in engineering the "Idea." The persistent opposition we have encountered, real and superficial, has roughened the progress through the tunnel at times, and darkened the way frequently. But with true faith in our loyal and efficient staff, and the thousands of students and alumni who have supported and boosted us with their subscriptions and generous words of encouragement, we have seen the way clear to publication—and here it is: THE LIBERTY BADGER.

There was a time when we first launched our plans for the publication of Wisconsin's war history, that it looked as though there would be no 1920 Badger. War circumstances were not encouraging to the production of a college annual: financial prospects were dim, and it first appeared that there might be a serious shortage of good staff material.

The battle began. With verbal ammunition we fought with a faculty committee for permission to attempt the undertaking, and then proceeded to muster together what is without question the finest and most loyal staff of workers that ever assembled a college annual. To them belongs the real credit, after all is said and done. They all conceived from the outset that this was the logical year for the Badger of Badgers, and imbued with that spirit they entered whole-heartedly into the work. Nothing, not even faculty committee decisions, could shake that belief. Encumbered with handicaps they have achieved the seemingly impossible, and it will always by a feeling of pride to recall our associations with them and their work.

It was not mere circumstance, either, that enabled us to see the job through. Last fall, when we did our work between drill hours and a military mapping class, and blew out the candle at 10 bells, we never hoped nor desired to be here when the job was completed. We planned on receiving our copy of the Liberty Badger in France, and looked forward to that day overseas with no little zest. And when the fighting stopped over there, we began to get plenty of it right here, and it is only because we insisted upon our own ideas of the liberty of the college press that we are able to give you the kind of a Badger we hoped for and fought for. In more than one sense, then, this Badger is a "liberty" Badger.

For the Liberty Badger, what it is, was not assisted by faculty counsel or intervention. The apparent consistency of an obtrusive faculty committee to discourage the launching of the book and later the fulfillment of the undertaking was no small hindrance. From the outset we were hindered and hampered by their intervention—we fought for the privilege of publishing the book, we fought to continue, and if we have to fight to deliver them, it will be one helluva scrap.

In the construction of this volume, one Idea has been paramount: to preserve and consecrate to the greatest degree possible, Wisconsin's proud record in the Great War. That record, now history, stands as the greatest chapter in Wisconsin annals. Those who made it so should always be remembered and honored.

To the men and women who made the Liberty Badger a reality—the staff—to them belongs the real credit for success, however great or small that may be. We are indeed grateful to Mr. M. H. Baumgartner of the Cantwell Printing Company for his consistent cooperation and invaluable suggestions. His keen personal interest and supervision of the printing of the book has accomplished enviable results. Also to Mr. Erwin Koch, of the Print Shop, who gave us the best of cuts and finest of art and engraving service, we place on record our sincere appreciation.

We feel not only grateful, but fortunate as well, over the striking results achieved by the members of the business staff. Headed by Ben Wishnefsky, and working under abnormal conditions, they have accomplished what no other college annual staff has done before. They have attained a record circulation and a record amount of advertising. They have made it possible for the editorial staff to do bigger things.

Lack of space forbids mention of all of those on the editorial staff who deserve special recognition. All of them deserve great credit for their faithful and efficient work. Maurice Hanson's results with the S. A. T. C. and fraternity sections, his hard and faithful work, will always be appreciated. Miss Doris Simonson, women's editor, did splendid and efficient work, and we feel fortunate indeed that we had an editor of her high calibre to handle the women's end of the book. Miss Margaret Lewis' faithful and efficient work in handling the Died for Dmocracy section will not be forgotten. The hard work put into the athletic section, and the results accomplished are all to the credit of Harold Gill, who handled that portion of the book.

We feel grateful to many more, especially to Miss Marion McCabe, Miss Esther Warner, Miss Irene Haley, Miss Margaret Melaas, Mr. Lowell Ragatz, Miss Adelin Briggs, Mr. Whitney Seymour, Miss Elizabeth Hooper and Mr. Kenneth Scott for the able administration of their respective sections. We feel greatly indebted also to Kenneth Harley and Gunnar Gunderson, art editors, for the valuable drawings they have contributed, and to the other members of the art staff who have labored hours in the working out of ideas and drawings for the enhancement of the book.

To the entire staff we feel obligated. They have made the Liberty Badger a reality—may it serve the purpose for which it is intended: the interpretation and preservation of Wisconsin's great war record, abroad and at home.
